Civil Service Urges Time and a Half Over 40 Hours for 800,000

President Approves Proposal Affecting Those Who Receive Less Than $3800

By Jerry Klutz Post Staff Writer

Time and a half pay after 40 hours for an estimated 800,000 "white-collar" Federal workers whose salaries are less than $3800 was recommended to Congress yesterday by the Civil Service Commission.

The program, which would increase up to 30 per cent the incomes of the affected employees, is wholeheartedly endorsed by President Roosevelt.

The overtime pay plan and its approval by the President was reported on Sunday in The Post.

The Administration will press for early action on the President's overtime plan. The goal is set for July 1, the start of the 1942 fiscal year. Authority to pay overtime to all classes of Government workers will expire on that date.

Saturday Law Would Die

The President's overtime program would:

1. Apply the Administration's industrial labor policy to the Government itself. Private industry is compelled to pay time and a half after 40 hours through the Wage and Hour Act.

2. Require payment of time and a half to all employees below $3800 instead of about half of them as is the present practice.

3. Suspend the existing Saturday afternoon holiday law which requires compensatory time off for a six-day, 48-hour week throughout the Federal service. Congress already has suspended the law for the War and Navy Departments.

4. Deny overtime to the thousands of professional, subprofessional, and technical employees in the War and Navy Departments, the Maritime Commission, and the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics who are paid more than $3800 and who are now paid overtime.

Affects Only "Official Hours"

The proposed bill would provide payment of overtime only for work during "official hours of duty." The official hours in all Federal agencies here now are 44, except the War and Navy departments which are on a 48-hour week. However, thousands of hours of overtime are worked daily in the war agencies.

Under the bill the employee who works voluntarily or even at the request of his supervisor, longer hours than those officially set would not be paid for it.

Department heads have the authority to fix working hours. Of-

Rubberneck Buses Banned by ODT Effective June 1

By the Associated Press

All sightseeing bus services were prohibited yesterday by the Office of Defense Transportation, effective June 1, and chartered bus services were ordered cut to such essential operations as transporting troops, war workers and school children.

The action, expected to save more than 100,000 pounds of crude rubber a year, was intended to save the tires on sightseeing vehicles now so that they will be available for operations essential to the war production program, ODT Director Joseph B. Eastman said.

He called on "local and State police authorities and the general public" to assist in enforcement of the decree.

The order prescribes that any rubber-tired vehicle having a seating capacity of ten or more may not be used to carry passengers "for the primary purpose of sightseeing."

Douglas, Vickery Get Shipping Jobs

Lewis W. Douglas, former budget director, yesterday was given the task of obtaining maximum war transportation service from the Nation's available supply of cargo ships.

He was appointed deputy war shipping administrator under Rear Admiral Henry S. Land. At the same time Rear Admiral Howard L. Vickery was named deputy administrator to stimulate production of new ships.

Farm Bloc Defeated on Parity Wheat

Agriculture Bill Passed by Senate Giving U. S. Right To Sell Surplus

The Senate yesterday voted the Administration authority to sell up to 125 million bushels of Government-owned wheat at below-parity prices to build livestock supplies "for victory."

The concession was wrung from a sharply split farm bloc, until recently united in its flat opposition to release of Government farm stocks at sub-parity levels. Senators from corn States battled the compromise until the end, but desertions from the cotton and wheat States shattered the once impregnable farm front.

The two-day floor battle over the Senate passed the 600-million-dollar farm appropriation bill, obliterating most of the House economies in the measure. The approved bill carried 60 millions more in farm loan authorizations and 32 millions more in cash than approved by the House in its first serious farm rearmament drive.

Senate economy bloc efforts to duplicate House farm savings collapsed early this week when the Administration threw its support behind Senate farm increases, but one last cut was attempted before the Senate passed the bill.

Senator Danaher (Republican) of Connecticut tried to shave 150 million from the 450 million appropriated for the soil conservation program.

"Certainly the soil resources program can be curtailed by a third in wartime, when our people are making extraordinary sacrifices to meet these expenses," argued Danaher. His amendment was shouted down, and the bill was passed, unamended.

But previously the Senate had refused to agree to an additional 47 million dollar increase in appropriations for the Surplus Marketing Administration to swell funds for free school lunch and food stamp programs. The increase was proposed by Senator La Follette (Progressive), of Wisconsin. He failed, 50 to 46, on a motion to suspend the rules to pave way for his amendment.

The Administration's partial victory in its long battle with the farm bloc over parity prices, came on adoption by a 62 to 18 vote of a compromise permitting sale of Government wheat at 85 per cent of the parity price for corn. The compromise was perfected by Senator

Reds Stem Flanking Attack, Grind Slowly On at Kharkov; Cripps Pledges Second Front

Churchill's Commons Leader Tells House Invasion Is Certain When All Is Ready

By the Associated Press

London, May 20.—Britain intends to make "a carefully planned attack" against the Nazi-held continent, the government assured the House of Commons today, but until such an action can be prepared it regards the continued bombing of Germany as its best contribution to the common war effort.

Speaking in the absence of Prime Minister Churchill, Sir Stafford Cripps, Lord privy seal and government leader in the House, said that bombing Germany is the best way of assisting Russia "until such time as we are able to make a carefully planned attack upon the continent of Europe, which we intend to do."

Challenges Vote of Confidence

Concluding a two-day war debate, Sir Stafford wound up 15 hours of oratory covering almost every aspect of the war and war-planning. In reply to critics of what they termed Churchill's domination of the nation's war direction, Sir Stafford praised the Prime Minister as the possessor of unsurpassed experience in his tasks as defense minister.

The government, Sir Stafford said, was ready to face a vote of confidence "if any substantial body of members" desired it. To critics of Churchill's absence he added that "if any specific case was put down involving a question of confidence in the Prime Minister, then he would take part in the debate."

Here-Beliefs Urges Caution

The critics covered a wide field, renewing many old grievances. Emanuel Shinwell, Laborite, summed up by saying:

"I doubt whether any government in history has been more often and regularly excused for its failures."

Sir Stafford said that Churchill was absent because he had nothing to add to his recent statement, and then when two members asked pointedly why the Prime Minister was not present, Sir Stafford replied that it was "not possible" for him to be there.

On plans for current conduct of the war, Sir Stafford said that Britain was continuing to give Russia priority on available war supplies

Japs Routed Before Changsha, But Gain in Drive Along Coast

By the United Press

Chungking, May 20.—Chinese troops have smashed a Japanese column directed at Changsha, in south central China, but in the east coastal province of Chekiang a many-pronged Japanese offensive is still gaining ground, it was announced today.

Details of the new offensive toward Changsha, where the Japanese suffered a disastrous defeat in January, were meager, but an army communique said the Chinese have routed crack enemy troops in a two-day battle along the Hsinchiang River, not far south of Yochow, on the Yangtze. The Japanese had withdrawn to Yochow after the Changsha battle during the winter.

The approach of the monsoon rainy season, officials pointed out, will make transportation in the

McNutt Says Some Labor May Be Drafted

Compulsion Probable In Few Cases, He Tells Industrial Conference

By the United Press

New York, May 20.—Chairman Paul V. McNutt of the War Manpower Commission, told the National Industrial Conference tonight that "compulsion may be necessary from time to time" in mobilizing the Nation's human resources in the all-out war effort.

He did not elaborate on this first official disclosure that a labor "draft" is contemplated, but he said "that is the only realistic and honest attitude that can be taken. Half way around the world the lives of men in America's Army depend upon the efficiency of production at home."

McNutt declared his confidence that "just as most industries have converted themselves (to war production) in large measure by voluntary action, so American workers will switch to Uncle Sam freely and enthusiastically."

He warned, however, that "the destiny of this Nation shall not be jeopardized by anybody's private interest."

"Just as in some cases where speculative management or self-interest intervened and the Government was forced to take action," he said.

Hoover Upholds War 'Dictatorship'

Former President Herbert Hoover declared in an address at New York last night that President Roosevelt "must have dictatorial economic powers" if the United States is to win the war.

He declared, however, that he would like to see more liberty given those "who discuss the war or speculate or even criticize in private conversations."

Navy, Marine Corps to Start Enlistment of Negroes in June

The Navy announced yesterday that the enlistment of Negroes will begin at all recruiting stations on June 1.

Facilities are being made available to accept about 1000 men a month in training at the Great Lakes (Ill.) Naval Training Station, it was said. Vocational schools are to be established for selected men, attendance at which will lead to specialist's ratings and petty officer ranks.

At the same time, the Marine Corps announced that it will recruit its first battalion of Negroes, numbering about 900 men, during June and July. The unit will be a composite organization, employing all fighting arms of the corps.

Soviets Launch New Thrust at Taganrog, Say Troops Still Are Fighting Near Kerch

By the Associated Press

Moscow (Thursday), May 21. The crushing Red army offensive around Kharkov was still rolling ahead at dawn today over ground "littered with wrecked German tanks and machines," the official news agency Tass said.

Fresh German reserves have been thrown against the Soviets but five villages have been recaptured by the Red army, and an attempted German flanking offensive 80 miles south of Kharkov in the Barvenka-Izum sector has been checked, the dispatch said.

The midnight Russian communique said: "During May 20 in the Kharkov direction our troops conducted offensive battles, and repulsing enemy tank attacks, continued to advance."

Moreover, the Russians declared their armies still were fighting near Kerch in the eastern Crimea (where the Germans claimed complete occupation of bridgeheads on the narrow straits opposite the Caucasus).

In the Barvenka sector where the Russians yesterday acknowledged the Germans had begun a counteroffensive, the Soviet communique said "our troops repulsed several attacks of German Fascist troops."

A Soviet ship also was credited with sinking three enemy transports totaling 26,000 tons in the Barents Sea, and Red airmen were declared to have won a 27-to-12 advantage in aerial combat Tuesday.

Dispatches reaching London said the fighting in the Ukraine had erupted on a new front with the Red army launching an offensive in force around Taganrog on the Sea of Azov, the United Press reported.

While most of the dispatches were credited to Stockholm sources, one quoted the Berlin radio as reporting "fierce fighting in the Taganrog zone, with the Russians attacking strongly."

The attack was believed to have been launched from the Pskov area, 20 miles north of Taganrog on the railroad running up into the Donets Basin.

In Heart of City's Defenses

40,000 Fire Bombs Strewn On Mannheim

Allies Now Are Able To Send 800 Planes A Night Against Nazis

London, May 20.—Forty thousand incendiary bombs and "great loads" of the biggest explosives from hundreds of bombers were showered upon the German industrial center of Mannheim last night, the British said today, and even greater attacks employing up to 1000 R. A. F. and American bombing planes a night were promised for the aerial offensive against the Reich.

Air ministry quarters said the 40,000 fire bombs were dropped by one detachment of four-motored Stirlings, leaving hundreds of fires for the succeeding waves of Halifaxes, Lancasters, Manchesteres and Wellingtons with their "heaviest high explosive bombs" to shoot at.

Like Ruined Rostock

(The raiders fought off many German night fighters, the United Press reported.

Few towns in Germany are as important to the enemy armed forces as Mannheim, whose docks receive a continual supply of raw materials, tank bodies, armor plating and other goods on the Rhine from the industrialized Ruhr. The concentration of industrial plants at Mannheim is believed to be as dense as anywhere in Europe.)

Intelligence reports quoting the raiders said the destruction in the big chemical, armament and engine building center reminded them of Germany's ruined Baltic port of Rostock.

Four Tons to a Plane

It was the fifty-fourth raid on Mannheim, a city of 283,000, and the first against Germany since the weather forced a lull in Britain's air offensive 11 days ago.

Lifting the curtain on the plans for this offensive, authoritative quarters said they were building up to the point where 1000 bombers would be sent against Germany any night the weather permitted. United States planes would fly with the British, it was indicated.

"A thousand planes is not a fan-

Doolittle's Wife 'Had an Idea' He Raided Tokyo

Copyright by Chicago Sun

By "putting two and two together" Mrs. James H. Doolittle had an idea that her famous husband led the bombing raid on Tokyo and other Japanese cities, she disclosed yesterday. But she was careful to keep such thoughts to herself.

"Jimmy left under sealed orders and I didn't know where he was going," Mrs. Doolittle said in an interview. "I don't feel that wives should ask too many questions of their husbands in wartime. We've been too free and easy with chatter about the war. I've been appalled at many things I've heard."

"When I read the newspaper accounts, however, that B-25 bombers had been used in the attack on Japan, I did put two and two together and got some ideas but I kept them to myself."

'Gotta Plane I Can Borrow?' Asks Jimmy, as Wings Fall Off

Undaunted After
Crash, He Returns
To Stunt Flight

(The second of a series.)
By Bob Considine

International News Service Staff Writer

"Jimmy" now Brig. Gen. James H. Doolittle, leader of the fliers who bombed Tokyo last month, got an A. B. degree from the University of California in 1922 and to that he added in 1929 the degree of doctor of science in aeronautical engineering from the famed Massachusetts Institute of Technology. His interests in the theory of flight and aerodynamics multiplied. It was natural, therefore, that when the Guggenheim Fund began a research into the problems of "fog-flying," Doolittle would be loaned to it by the Army. His findings for the Guggenheims revolutionized the industry. Doolittle took a lot of the guesswork out of pilot-

Despite the daily risks he took, Doolittle did not have to bale out of a plane until 1929, two years after he became the first man to perform the so-called impossible feat of making an outside loop. At the Cleveland air races of 1929 he was power-diving a new type of plane at 400 miles an hour when the tremendous pressure bucked the wings and Doolittle found himself hurtling toward the ground in the fuselage. Somehow he managed to extricate himself, when 2000 feet above the ground, and floated the rest of the way by parachute.

"Always meticulous, Jimmy gathered up the parachute and walked back to the field, where everyone was frantic. 'Do you have a plane I could borrow?' he asked. They had, and up he went immediately and put on a rousing stunt show.

Retired at 'Advanced Age'

Like General MacArthur, who retired in 1935 to engage in "cultural pursuits," and then came back to become a great military symbol, Doolittle retired from the Army in 1930. He was 34. "Because of my advanced age," he explained, "My wife has made up my mind that I'll do no more flying."

Practical joker that he is, he must have had his tongue in his cheek. Associated subsequently with the Shell Oil Co.'s aviation division, he became a part-time scientist and part-time record breaker. He continued his studies in instrument and blind flying, won the Harmon Trophy in 1930, the Bendix Trophy in 1931, the Thompson Trophy Race in 1932 and set a world record the same year by pushing his snarling land-plane through the air above the National Air Races at a speed of 308.040 miles per hour. He had designed the plane, certain features of which can be found in today's American fighting planes.

Growing older, Doolittle was no less timid about pushing the accelerator all the way down. Doolittle went through the 1930's acutely conscious of the role of the plane in the next war. He kept his commission in the Reserve Corps, advanced to major, flew fast jobs and tinkered with faster ones, and in 1938 the War Department rewarded him again with another oak leaf cluster for "contributions to aviation."

"He had become a legendary figure in aviation, his records were so many and his friends were so far flung. He got a ticker-tape reception once when he returned to New York after showing foreign aviation authorities how a doughty little Yankee Doodle Dandy flies a plane. But he never changed. He remained the congenial little guy beloved throughout the industry."

In January, 1940, he was elected president of the Institute of Aeronautical Sciences. When the war clouds started gathering last summer he came back into the Army. Ready to go.

His return was hailed throughout the Air Corps. The older officers, trying to express their delight, could think only of something that Ernst Udet, the fun-loving German stunt pilot of the 1930's, had said on his trip to America. . . Udet, who had wanted to stay in this country but was forced to leave because his relatives would be persecuted. . . Udet, who was to be killed mysteriously while "testing a new weapon," the Nazis said. Jimmy and Ernst were good friends in the rough and tumble days.

GENERAL DOOLITTLE
The Speed Flier in 1932

"Jimmy Doolittle is the greatest aviator in the world," Udet, who knew them all, solemnly testified to his fatherland. Doolittle, who gave up speed flying in the early 1930's because it was "too reckless," streaked over Emperor Hirohito's gold and lacquer palace at 300 m. p. h. on April 18. Behind him, barely clearing the roof-tops, thundered the other American bombers participating in a raid that is still a source of wonderment throughout Japan.

No bombs were dropped on the palace. Doolittle had been very explicit about that in his elaborate pre-raid plans. Army orders were: Military objectives only. But as he thundered across the mosted palace grounds there must have welled up in the irrepressible little American general a tremendous temptation to toss at least an egg, or a Bronx cheer, at the imperial magnificence below him.

For Jimmy—as airman will call him until he's 90 and wears four stars on his shoulders instead of one—is an incorrigible practical joker. His raid on Japan's proudest cities was, in one respect, the peak of his career as a practical joker. He was giving the supposedly impregnable Land of the Rising Sun a hot-foot it would never forget.

Anything for a Laugh

"He'll go to almost any lengths for a joke," his pal, Maj. Alexander De Seversky told me shortly after Doolittle was presented with the Congressional Medal of Honor by President Roosevelt.

"We used to live near each other on Long Island," the Russian-born aviation expert recalled with a chuckle. "We parked our cars at the same suburban station and usually took the same trains to and from New York."

"One night I got off the train in a very heavy snowfall and went to my car. Jimmy had taken the train before me. Well, I started my motor, put it in gear and let out the clutch. No movement. The back wheels simply spun around and around. I had to walk home through snow up to my knees."

"Jimmy, I found out later, had jammed up the rear end of my car, and covered up the jack with snow. He laughed for days over it, until I stole the distributor head from under the hood of his car one night, and he had to walk home himself. After that I discovered strange vital little parts missing from my own machine until we finally called an armistice to save the cars from total destruction."

Major De Seversky says there are two versions of the manner in which Doolittle broke his ankles on his trip to South America during the boisterous '20's, when he had no equal as a stunt flier, speed merchant, and pioneer in instrument flying.

"I never could find out from Jimmy which one was true," the major laughed. "One story says that he was doing some gymnastic stunts on a 12-foot scaffolding and accidentally slipped to the ground. The other sounds a little more like Jimmy. It seems that a group of aviators were arguing over the relative merits of German, French, British and American fliers when Jimmy spoke and said, 'There's no argument, boys. The Americans are best. They don't even need wings. Look . . . and he dived out the window.'

But Doolittle Is Far From Being

He was still the best aviator in the world, even with broken ankles. He proved that. I think his studies in blind flying were the greatest contribution to aviation. When I heard that Tokyo had been bombed, I should have known it was Jimmy. . . that, I said at the time, 'That's the kind of job Jimmy could do,' for I knew that it took tremendous skill and great planning, as well as fearlessness and imagination. That's Jimmy all over."

An all-around good fellow and hilarious after-dinner speaker, Doolittle did as much to make the world conscious of the merit of American airplanes as any one individual. He demonstrated and sold ships in South America with such incredible bits of salesmanship as going into the air and forcing a German pilot-salesman to land, hollering that Doolittle had actually scraped the German plane in mid-air. "Aw, I missed him by inches," Doolittle disgustedly told the Latin-American purchasing commission.

In 1930, after his retirement from the Army, he took a "stable" of American fighting and commercial planes to China and thence to Turkey, for the Daniel Guggenheim Fund for the Promotion of Aeronautics. He took a "stable" of Chinese and predicted then that some day they would produce pilots every bit as good as any other country could turn out.

His friend, Col. John H. Jouett, recalls that Doolittle's commercial invasion of China provided an excellent example of the thoroughness of his mind. The night before each demonstration for Chinese officials Doolittle would map out several sets of demonstration flights—one for each type of weather condition. He would go over each carefully and never "ad libbed," once the demonstration was under way. He was so thoroughgoing that one of the demonstration plans would be devoted exclusively to wet-weather flying.

Created U. S. Good Will

It was on such trips that he created the good will which American plane manufacturers found to be worth millions of dollars. The industry got a great kick out of Jimmy's perennial remark, "I'm through," he announced in 1930. "No more of this crazy stuff for me. Racing planes are the guinea pigs of aviation." A year later he broke Frank Hawks' coast-to-coast record for roaring across the country.

"No more stunt flying for me," he swore in the late 1920's—after a series of mishaps ranging from the loss of property to the loss of a very valuable pair of wings while diving at 400 miles an hour. But not long after he was fined $500 for happy-go-lucky stunting over the Kansas City Airport, in a plane of which he was the sole feather of an ancient Army plane that happened to be passing sedately. The fine was reduced to $100 because of his previous good behavior and because no one was hurt in the crash.

"That's final. . . I'm through," he announced after the fine. So a year later, while hurtling 100 feet high across the St. Louis Airport in a plane he had designed for the national air races, Jimmy was slightly dismayed to notice that the hide was peeling off one of his wings. With his brilliant reflexes looking full speed, he shot the plane into a zoom and when it got up about 400 feet, partly skeletonized, he catapulted out and pulled his parachute rip-cord just in time.

"Never again," he cried—but pretty soon he flew over the Empire State Building by 20 feet in a peep soup for while rushing a friend to a New York dinner engagement.

The first time Jimmy gave the Japs the bum's rush was in 1932 when he flew movie films of a Japanese capture of Shanghai from Cheyenne, Wyo., to Newark Airport—1600 miles, in 8 hours and 30 minutes. It was a record at that time, but it hardly got more than a paragraph in the papers.

He had so many records by that time that even he had lost track of them. His home was filled with vast stores of trophies. He had won every important trophy offered for speed flying and for the more serious pursuits of aviation—namely research.

One More "Never Again"

By the middle '30s it looked as if he was going to keep his word. And stay put. He told his close friends that the old urge to get out and kick a plane around in the air wasn't coming on him as much as it once had. He told me and there into the technical side of aviation. He predicted the universal adoption of the automatic pilot, which he had tested very early in his magic life. As early as 1933 he had a clear conception of how transatlantic mail, freight and passenger planes would operate.

His oft-repeated "never again" took on new meaning on January 18, 1940, when he became president of the distinguished Institute of Aeronautical Sciences. He was definitely grounded. He had a big, shiny desk and there were occasions for him to wear striped pants. His hair-raising earlier life had succeeded only in making him lose his hair.

He gave himself up to the sedentary side of aviation. . . the side of quiet research.

It wasn't long afterward, as we said, that he was busting across the Tokyo skyline like a bat out of hell.

every so often a new one is set in place and the capacity of the line gains that much. The date for beginning production, remember, is still in the future even though production has begun. More Bolts From Blue Await Japan, Reich, Doolittle Says

Japan is not likely to recover soon, either materially or psychologically, from last month's devastating American attack on its industrial heart, the man who led it declared last night.

Describing, in a radio address, the heavy pounding given Tokyo and other Japanese cities April 18, Brig. Gen. James H. Doolittle declared that "we have many more surprises for Japan and Germany."

The Air Corps hero who on Tuesday won the Congressional Medal of Honor for carrying out the successful Japanese attack said that it had been carefully rehearsed here in the United States. Telling of the preparations, he said:

"This was to be no dare-devil, hit or miss attack. We planned carefully; we worked long and hard to make our mission a success. The planes themselves—B-25's—were especially equipped for the mission."

"The greatest result of our raid is the material and psychological damage we inflicted on the enemy. In neither respect is the enemy likely to recover soon. The next most gratifying aspect is the security of the brave men who accompanied me on this mission."

"They are typical of the young men of our Army Air Force today, superior to any enemy. The B-25's were typical of the planes which our aircraft factories are producing—superior to enemy aircraft."

"I bring you this message from . . . Shanghai—my faith in American fighting men in American planes has never been so strong. We have in our training centers, on our production lines, the pattern from which will be built many more surprises for Japan and Germany. It is the ultimate pattern for our own victory."

During a conference with Army Chemical Warfare officers earlier in the day, General Doolittle praised the American-made incendiary bombs used in the raid. Every bomb "worked perfectly" and sowed an "excellent pattern," he said.

One whole section of Tokyo was "burning briskly" when the bombers left, it was said. It was not until two days later that the Japanese radio reported the flames were under control.

It is far less the draft than it is high industrial wages that have denuded whole areas of needed farm labor, he said. "Reduction of acreage; reduction of dairy herds; non-harvesting of crops; these are things the Nation cannot afford in total war."

Just as men may be deferred from military service to prevent these things, so they must be exempted or excluded from factory recruitment. There is no easy answer to such a problem. The War Man Power Commission is studying it."

McNutt reported that a survey had disclosed that 384 of 700 war contractors had been forced to reduce production because of skilled labor shortages. He estimated the proportion of available tool designers to those needed is 1 to 31; of tool makers 1 to 23; of machine men 1 to 22; and so on down a long list of key jobs.

He disclosed that by the end of 1943, the Nation's war labor force must be boosted from approximately nine million to 23 million and that during the same period the armed forces would recruit an additional seven million men, necessitating "tremendous shifts" in man power distribution.

Perfect Blackout Plant

It is a perfect blackout plant, with not a single window anywhere along its sheer sides and with mechanically operated doors which are opened only long enough to admit trucks and railway cars with parts and to discharge finished bombers. All lighting is from fluorescent bulbs high in the ceiling and ventilation is pumped in through an air-conditioning system big enough to be a plant in its own right.

Multiply this bomber plant and these earnest young workmen by America's need and you will have the answer to America's war production. And remember it is only starting, ahead of schedule. When it really gets going, weapons will flow to the Army in an unceasing stream, not just the most weapons in the world, but the best.

The will is there and the skill. It is backed by years of experience in mass production, by engineering management of the highest order.

One thought is here in this plant with its miles of airplanes moving along assembly lines always toward fulfillment of their role in flight. It is that this thing will win the war, this miracle of men and machines, this sum of little jobs, each done so well it is a victory in itself.

What is it that makes men, and women, too, so loyal to Domino's?

Is it because Domino's imported and domestic tobaccos are vacuum-cleaned and firmly rolled? Is it the expensive champagne cigarette paper? Is it Domino's modern price?

It's more than that! It's an extra something—a richness and a smoothness you'll find only when you—get to know—DOMINO!

OPA Regulates Import Prices

Copyright by Chicago Sun

A program to prevent prices paid abroad for imported merchandise from disturbing the level of domestic prices established by the general maximum price regulation is now being developed by the Federal Government, Price Administrator Leon Henderson announced yesterday.

Henderson emphasized that the regulation applies to imported as well as domestic commodities. This means that imported commodities cannot be sold in this country for more than the highest prices charged by the importer on resale last March, notwithstanding the fact that the selling price in the country of origin may have risen since or may rise in the future.

Red General's View Propaganda Seen Motive For Nazi Push

By Eddy Gilmore
Associated Press Staff Writer

Kuibyshev, May 20.—(Maj. Gen. Nikolai Zhuravlev declared today that the Nazi offensive in the Kerch Peninsula of the Crimea "was launched more for propaganda considerations than strategic reasons" in an attempt to win a victory somewhere, however small.

The Soviet tactician said German soldiers and officers have lost confidence in themselves and in their leaders.

The Nazi leadership, he said, "believes the only way of restoring this confidence is to score some victory, however small, in the early spring."

"With this aim in view," Gen. Zhuravlev added, "the Fascist command launched the operations in the Kerch Peninsula where the German army has considerably the better position."

He said the Red army's successful offensive in the Kharkov area collapsed "another German myth" that it was winter which caused the German withdrawal.

"The Germans are due for even heavier blows as time goes on," he said.

Reporting on operations of the Red fleet in northern waters, Lieut. Capt. Nikolai Sobolev said the Russians had sunk 95,115 tons of enemy shipping in the Barents Sea during April.

He said these sinkings included 14 ships. In addition he listed a submarine and three transports as damaged seriously.

Since the first of May the Red navy has sunk four transports, two destroyers and two patrol boats in the same waters, he reported.

Through these operations, Sobolev added, the German offensive against Murmansk has been thwarted.

"Their position is becoming more and more precarious," he said, "owing to difficulties in obtaining food supplies and bringing up reinforcements."

Whereas the Germans formerly sent ships singly through the northern waters, they have been forced to use convoys and have suffered increasingly heavy losses, he stated.

Meanwhile, Ivan Nazarov, head of the Yenisei River Shipping Administration, told the Moscow News here by telephone that navigation already has begun again on this great river, the most important inland waterway of Siberia.

H. Nelson Stelle, Arlington Youth, Now Army Flier

H. Nelson Stelle, 23, son of Mrs. Annette E. Stelle of 2915 North Franklin Road, Arlington, Va., has been classified as a pilot at Maxwell Field, Ala. It was announced yesterday.

He was graduated from Washington News-Herald High School, Arlington County, in 1937. He then took a special course in aviation at Columbus University, Washington, and gained his license as a private pilot.

Prior to his enlistment in March, he held the position as clerk to the Arlington County police department in the office of Chief Harry L. Woodard.

Hard-Fighting Baby Craft Wins Additional Honors

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.
London, May 20.—H. M. S. Ursula, Britain's famous 540-ton "baby" submarine, "sank" an Italian railway bridge and destroyed more than 50,000 tons of enemy shipping during recent service in the Mediterranean, official naval circles in London revealed today.

Her Mediterranean duty added four bars and a red star to her Jolly Roger ensign, the success flag of British undersea craft. The bar represents ships sunk and the red star denotes an important railway bridge on the Italian coast destroyed by gunfire.

The Ursula's crew also proudly revealed their ship had cooperated successfully in a joint operation with planes of the fleet air arm in an attack on an enemy convoy.

"We could see flares dropped by the Swordfish planes many miles away and they led us to the convoy," one of the submarine's officers said. "We attacked, firing torpedoes, which scored hits on two separate ships and then dived deep to avoid counterattack, but no depth charges followed us down."

Later, when we used our periscope, we thought that at least one of our targets had escaped for we could see her masts and they looked at first as though she were over the horizon, but they were really vanishing beneath the waves. She went down as we watched."

Anti-Nazi French Know Their Groceries

London, May 20.—A clandestine news sheet printed in Paris on brown wrapping paper and distributed to anti-Nazi clients "in the know" by grocers, butchers and other trades people, was a ruse which for months fooled the German authorities, according to one of the editors who recently got out of France and has reached England.

The underground paper, one of a dozen which helped keep up the courage of the Parisians and which the Germans made desperate efforts to track down, was printed on one side only and known clients of the vast "V" army could be sure of having a piece of steak, cheese or pound of potatoes wrapped up with the news inside.

The wrapper was then passed among the neighbors and it is estimated at least 5000 people read it in this way. Since the editor's escape, it has ceased publication.

Allied Raiders Bomb Island Bases of Japs

By the United Press
Melbourne (Thursday), May 21.—Allied bombers, swooping down on Timor Island, 400 miles northwest of Darwin yesterday, started huge fires in hangars and ground installations at Koepang Airfield and blasted the harbor area of Dili, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today.

Two Japanese planes were destroyed on the ground and huge craters exploded in runways at the Koepang Airfield in the former Dutch half of the island, the communiqué revealed. "Enemy targets" were bombed at Dili, capital of the Portuguese half, which the Japanese occupied "protectively."

It was the first raid since the start of the Pacific war on Dili, which the Japanese have been using as a base for long-range seaplanes capable of attacking Darwin and other northwestern Australian areas. The Japanese established the base as the southern terminus of a semi-official civil air line just before the outbreak of war in the Pacific.

Moresby Attack Resumed
The Japanese resumed their attack on Port Moresby, Allied strong point on the southeastern shore of New Guinea, with a strafing raid Wednesday by 12 Zero fighters, but four of them were damaged by Allied fighters. The communiqué said the attack was "unsuccessful."

The latest Allied attacks, following a one-day lull, came as Air Minister Arthur S. Drakeford urged that the United Nations send unlimited numbers of airplanes to Australia to beat off any new Japanese thrust southward and to enable the Allies to intensify their aerial offensive against Nipponese bases dotting the northern approaches to this continent.

Independent newspapers, at the same time, suggested that the Allies ship most of their troops to the Pacific, "where fighting actually is taking place," instead of to Europe.

Planes, More Planes
Speaking to Parliament in Canberra, Drakeford said that "planes, more planes and still more planes—without them our task is made heavier and longer," was the slogan he had asked Minister for External Affairs Herbert V. Ewart to adopt as the viewpoint of the air ministry.

The need for planes cannot be too strongly stressed, Drakeford said, adding that it was "encouraging to find the reaction to spirited appeals by Ewart (during a recent trip to Britain and the United States) showed they are meeting the support they merit."

The Sydney Daily Telegraph, commenting on the arrival of new forces of American troops in northern Ireland this week, said:

"We shall not be so pleased if the Americans are going into camp for the summer. The United Nations should be rushing more men, ships, guns and planes to points where fighting actually is taking place."

Japanese Take Another Step To Fascism

By the Associated Press
Tokyo (from Jap broadcasts), May 20.—The National Service Political Council, pledged to support the government's war policies and "to consolidate the national political power," was inaugurated today at a gathering of Japan's most influential men, addressed by Premier Gen. Hideki Tojo.

(Apparently the long fight of the Japanese militarists and civilian nationalists to give Japan a totalitarian political organization and expunge political groups out of sympathy with the war program has passed another milestone.)

(Before Japan went to war with the United States and Britain this campaign had made little progress. The Pacific war, however, has weakened opposition and in the general election of April 30 the government-backed League for Support of the Throne won 81 per cent of the 466 seats in the House of Representatives.)

The new council, composed of 932 members, elected Gen. Nobuyuki Abe, a senior militarist and former premier, its first president. He named a governing council of 39, including members of most of the old, now dissolved political parties and a number of retired admirals and generals.

Tojo told the council it was "a crystallization of the firm determination of the entire nation to conform wholeheartedly to the national need for successful consummation of the greater East Asia war."

Platform Adopted
The council adopted a four-point platform:

1. To consolidate all political efforts in support of the war effort;
2. To establish a parliament devoted to "assistance of the imperial rule in strict conformity with the national constitution";
3. To cooperate with the League for Support of the Throne;
4. "To exert the utmost efforts for the construction of a new world order by establishing the greater East Asia coprosperity sphere."

Chicago, May 20 (AP).—The Army now has a substitute for rubber soles, it was disclosed today by the Sixth Corps Area Quartermaster's office.

The new sole is combination of black carbon, crude and reclaimed rubber. Tests have shown it wears two to five times longer than the regular rubber sole and that it is easier on the feet.

Canada Asks Vichy to Close Consulates

By the Associated Press
Ottawa, May 20.—The Canadian government has asked the Vichy government to close its consular offices and agencies in Canada, Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King told the House of Commons today.

The request does not mean a breach of diplomatic relations with France, however. The prime minister told Commons only yesterday that the government had decided not to change the status of the French legation here or the Canadian mission in Vichy for the present.

King said, however, that present conditions had reduced the duties of the consular offices, that they rendered little service and had become objects of suspicion. It was thought advisable to ask the French minister to take action to close them.

French consular offices are situated in Vancouver, Winnipeg, Quebec and Montreal and agencies at Halifax, Toronto, Edmonton and Calgary.

The slender diplomatic link between Ottawa and Vichy is the last between the Petain regime and the British Empire, since the union of South Africa broke off relations last month.

Teaching Judges Asked to Unseat Selves in Hearing

All District Court judges who are professors or instructors in District law schools were asked to disqualify themselves yesterday from participation in a pending suit by students seeking to prevent closing of Columbus University Junior College and immediate removal of the university's board of trustees.

James J. Laughlin, attorney for a student committee said to be acting for the junior college's students, declared in a petition filed in District Court that "judges should never be put in the position where they must sit in judgment of a litigant from whom they receive compensation for financial gain."

The attorney stated that the pending case may require the appearance of District Court judges, who are instructors, as witnesses.

The student suit charges that notice of the junior college's closing at the end of the present scholastic year was issued April 30 and a subsequent request by students for hearing on the matter was denied.

Reds Stop Nazi Push to Flank Kharkov Drive

Recent efficiency without one technical failure a ground or in combat. Russian sources in London reported Marshal Semyon Timoshenko's Red army had driven "into the heart" of Kharkov's defenses, and that the Germans thus far had lost 400 tanks.

London quarters also suggested that a German announcement of the capture of Kharkov would be the start of a German offensive. The German offensive indicated possible preparations to use a German parachute army of 100,000 in a bid to bridge the narrow strait of Kerch and drive directly toward the oil fields of the Caucasus.

(Richthofen, a cousin of the World War I pilot who made the famous bombing of Belgrade in April, 1941, and prepared the way with heavy dive-bombing for the parachute invasion of Crete last May. He also is a glider-transport expert.)

Nazis Burning Villages

Soviet front-line messages said the speed of the Russian drive toward Kharkov was shown in the recapture of a village where the Germans fled so quickly that they left dinner steaming on the table.

At another point the Thirty-first German Artillery Regiment was caught, unable to move, because its horses had been sent back to Kharkov for feeding and a brief rest, said the Russians.

The great plains battle area was overhung with a pall of smoke from villages being burned by the Germans to keep them from Soviet hands, the accounts continued. In one recaptured village which once had 100 houses, only 7 remained standing when the Red army moved in.

In one tank battle, the quarters were so close that the Germans' planes could not risk helping their tanks for fear of hitting them. Red Star, the army paper, said. Forty-six Nazi tanks were reported burned or blasted on the single field. Overhead, Soviet planes shot down seven of the wheeling German airmen, the paper added.

To show the fight it is, Red Star told of these incidents: Breaking past the 15 German pillboxes and large minefields defending a village, the Russians did not try immediately to push on into the village, but swiftly turned to break havoc among German reserves who had thought they were at a safe distance from the scene of attack.

At another point, the 208th German Infantry Regiment was encircled at a railroad station. The Germans retired to fortifications underneath the station.

The Russians seized a grain elevator about 100 yards from the station and with a loud speaker commanded the Germans to surrender. The reply was a burst of fire, but after three days the Germans were caught trying to make a break from their trap.

Finnish Battle Dies Down
Helsinki, May 20 (AP).—The high command reported today that more than 1600 Russians had been killed during the last few days in counterattacks attempting to regain ground. A communique said the Soviet action died down after a brief flare-up.

Milk Shortage Seen Possible By Fall in Va.

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., May 20.—Virginia may be confronted with a milk shortage by autumn, E. C. Woods, secretary of the State Milk Commission, said today.

Virginia, he said, now was using approximately all of the fluid milk produced in the State—and this is the "flush" season for production.

With the stationing of additional troops in the State, he foresaw an increasing demand as production decreased.

Rains in the northern and western sections of the State, he said, would serve to keep production at a better level through the summer, but in the Richmond area pastures have been injured by the drought to such an extent they may continue to decline.

lished. Graduates in the latter courses will be assigned to Naval Air Stations, while those from the former will either go to sea or to other shore posts.

At Great Lakes, men selected for vocational training can qualify for one of three groups—a 16-week course to become gunners, quarter-masters, yeomen, storekeepers and cooks; a 16-week course to become radiomen and signalmen; or a four-week course to be armed guards on merchant ships.

Men who do not qualify for vocational training after their basic training course will be assigned either to sea duty, to naval ammunition depots, or to the operating company at the Great Lakes training station.

Construction Training Set

In addition, recruits will be accepted for naval construction battalions, which will build advanced bases in various parts of the world. They will be trained at Norfolk, Va.

Applicants with musical talent will be selected for bandman training after four weeks preliminary training at Great Lakes. Negro bands are to be established at the receiving ship, New York; the Quonset-Point (R. I.) naval air station, the Lakehurst (N. J.) naval air station, the San Francisco section base, and the preflight training schools at the University of Georgia, University of North Carolina and St. Mary's College, Calif.

Combat Battalion

The Marine Corps Negro Battalion will include artillery, antiaircraft, machine guns, tanks and infantry, it was stated. There will be billets for recruits skilled in various trades and occupations, such as radio operators, electricians, accountants, carpenters, draftsmen, band musicians, riggers and blacksmiths.

Men may be promoted to the highest enlisted ranks of Navy chief petty officer or master sergeant in the Marines.

Berlin Cuts Off Swedish-German Phone Connections

Stockholm (Thursday), May 21 (AP).—Telephone communication between Sweden and Germany was cut off by Berlin last night without explanation.

It was the second recent disruption of telephone calls between the two countries.

The service was cut for nine hours May 9 and 10 and at that time Berlin hinted mysteriously that "good news is appearing in due time."

Commons Told Britain Intends To Invade Foe

because "no price is too high to pay" for Soviet support.

The bombing of Germany, he added, is "interlinked with the whole strategy in all the various theaters of war," and it "proves the falsity of enemy propaganda that we expect someone else to win the war for us."

Former War Secretary Leslie Hore-Belisha, a leader in the criticism of the government, agreed, however, that Britain should not be hounded into opening a Western Front against Germany, warning that it "perhaps would be the biggest undertaking in British military history and worse than not undertaking it would be to undertake it and fail."

Hore-Belisha argued, however, for establishment of a separate ministry of defense, and other members joined in this demand. To this Sir Stafford replied:

"The war cabinet desires to have the advice of a first-class defense minister, and there is no one with wider and longer experience of defense problems than the prime minister."

To charges that Churchill dominated and "hypnotized" others, Sir Stafford replied that the prime minister "as minister of defense submits to control of the cabinet just as other ministers do in their sphere of activity."

Sir Stafford defended members of the government who had been criticized for recent "overoptimistic" speeches and said that the members of the war cabinet were as conscious of the serious situation as any other members of the House of Commons.

Association Asks More Teachers For Shut-ins

Provision for more visiting teachers "so that not one shut-in child" will be without one was urged yesterday by the D. C. Association for Education of Handicapped Shut-in Children.

To gain that end, an increased appropriation in the District's 1943 budget will be requested, said an association announcement.

"At the present time," it said, "there is a waiting list of children who are not being taught due to the insufficient number of teachers assigned to this program. Each shut-in child receiving the services of a teacher gets only two hours of instruction each week."

This compares with 25 hours in the public schools. As the city's 1943 supply bill passed the House, only one additional teacher was granted.

The resignation of Mrs. Odette O'Hara as president was announced. Mrs. William H. Harland will serve as acting president until the annual election of officers.

Department of Justice Investigation Clears Senator Walsh, Barkley Says

Beekman Admits FBI Questioning

Outlining the case slowly and deliberately, Mr. Barkley said the New York Post had charged in its May 1, 1942, issue that a member of the Senate frequently was seen in a "house of degradation" in Brooklyn. Gustave Beekman, alleged operator of the house, was convicted in Brooklyn for an offense Barkley said was "too loathsome to mention in the Senate or in any group of ladies and gentlemen."

The New York Post story said, Mr. Barkley went on, that a member of the Senate had been observed in the place talking to an alien suspected of being a "spy in behalf of the Nazis." A few days later, he said, the New York Post named Mr. Walsh as the Senator involved.

Mr. Barkley said a purported affidavit signed by Beekman was used as the basis of the New York Post's story. The Democratic leader said Beekman subsequently made statements to Department of Justice agents that Walsh was not the man who came to his house and identified the picture of another as being the man who did visit the place.

(The New York Post published today a further affidavit from Beekman saying that on May 15 and 16 he was questioned by the FBI at length and that the FBI "wanted me to identify someone else as Mr. Walsh.")

The affidavit continued in part: "He showed me a picture of a man called 'Doc.' They wanted me to agree that this 'Doc' was the man and let it go at that. They questioned me for about six or seven hours."

"They had a stenographer present when I was questioned. It was finally agreed to put down in writing that 'Doc' was the man I called Mr. Walsh. They (the FBI) insisted upon it. What else was I to do but agree to it and sign such a statement? But I know that the 'Doc' they wanted me to identify as Mr. Walsh and the Mr. Walsh who visited my home are two different people."

"The FBI asked me to sign the statement. Even though I knew it was untrue, I signed it. There was nothing else I could do."

While Mr. Barkley said he was not prepared to commit himself on a future course in the matter, his statement brought immediate demands from Senators Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana; Clark (Democrat) of Missouri and Nye (Republican) of North Dakota that the Senate bring before it those responsible for what Mr. Clark called a "filthy conspiracy to smear a member of this body."

Mr. Wheeler asserted that the Senate ought not to let the matter drop.

Mr. Clark said Morris Ernst, attorney for the New York Post, ought to "come before the bar of the Senate and respond to questions about how deeply he is involved in this conspiracy."

Story Reported Brought Here First

Disclaiming personal knowledge of the matter, Mr. Clark said he had been informed "by a very reputable newspaperman, whose information is usually correct, that Mr. Ernst brought the story to Washington and went to the White House with it in an attempt to interest the highest authority in Washington in an effort to smear the Senator from Massachusetts."

"To the credit of the President and his advisers," Mr. Clark went on, "Mr. Ernst's suggestions were entirely rejected."

Thackery's statement also said: "The New York Post does not now nor has it ever believed in secret trials or the use of the Department of Justice as a private detective agency even in behalf of the Senators."

"The Post will have more to say later about the unfounded and amazing charges of conspiracy made by Senator Clark of Missouri, who must have known he was making them under the protection of the official immunity granted to him by virtue of the fact that he made those statements on the floor of the Senate where he could not be held legally accountable for them. . . ."

Ernst Relieved

Dorothy S. Backer, publisher of the New York Post, said that Thackery's statement also expressed her view as publisher.

Ernst said that his law firm had "no statement to make."

Mr. Clark said the Senate ought to summon Walter Winchell, "the radio commentator who disgraces the uniform of the United States Navy by appearing in his Navy uniform to try to smear members of Congress." He said Winchell, "the radio commentator who disgraces the uniform of the United States Navy by appearing in his Navy uniform to try to smear members of Congress."

Mr. Barkley's report, Mr. Clark continued, had made it "perfectly obvious that there has been subordination of perjury" in the Beekman trial, "to which the trial judge himself, in view of the statement from the trial judge quoted in the New York paper, must have been a party."

Wheeler said that a New York Post story quoted Judge Samuel Leibowitz as telling Beekman, after his conviction, that if Beekman uncovered the whole alleged spy ring, the court would give him extreme leniency, otherwise the judge would give him the maximum of 30 years.

"If this man does not make a statement telling what Judge Leibowitz and the New York Post wants, he will be given 30 years," Mr. Wheeler declared.

Meet Some Good Sports

The Coats — $15.00

Best way to shake all cares—stake a claim around the North Pole. Second best—slide into one of these free-and-easy Sportsters, and start enjoying life right here at home. There's something about their vigorous broad shoulders, their comfortable drape, that puts new bounce in your step. Not only for week-ends, either. This year, your sports outfit goes to town for business wear—if you play it safe with the right fabrics, correct patterns. Like these Bond Bowater Stripes, Donegal Tweeds, Creamy Camel-tones. Who said $20? Bonds price is only $15.00!

The Slacks — $7.50

Laid end-to-end, this stack of slacks would reach from here to Zanzibar. And they've given us less than 3 inches to tell you about 'em. The line-up of patterns only would cover more space than this. You've probably never seen such variety under one roof. In crisp Gabardine, smooth Flannel, brisk Covert. Shucks, we can't do them justice this way. You'll simply have to get your own "eye-full"—to fully appreciate what a bang-up job only $7.50 will do—at Bond's Slacks Bar!

Road to Victory Shortened, Hull Says

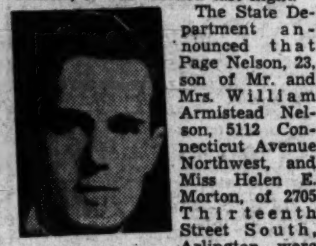

Gunston Girl Gets Her Cue

JEANNE MILES, who will graduate June 2 from the high school department of Gunston Hall, has been chosen for the personnel of the Plymouth Drama Colony this summer. The designation is a coveted honor among drama students throughout the county.

5 From Area Held in Manila By Japanese

One Washingtonian and four former residents of Arlington County are interned by the Japanese in Manila, it was learned last night.

Nelson, a graduate of Woodward Wilson High School and former employee of Riggs National Bank, went to Manila last summer. His mother said she had not heard from him since last November.

"The sure he will come back and my husband and I are not letting ourselves worry any more than possible. We are waiting for the day when he will be exchanged for Japanese now interned here."

Nelson's wife, Mrs. Charles V. Morton, wife of a Navy lieutenant, brother of Miss Morton, said three other members of the Morton family have also been interned. They are Miss Morton's mother, Mrs. Helen H. Morton; two sisters, Miss Alice Morton and Mrs. Lucy Locke-Paddon, all of whom have lived in the Philippines for a number of years. A brother, Lieut. Harry S. Morton, U. S. Navy, was stationed in the Philippines before the occupation by the Japanese, Mrs. Morton said.

Sees Signs We May Win Sooner Than Was Deemed Possible

By Thomas F. Reynolds
Copyright by Chicago Sun

An upsurge of optimism began developing in the Capital yesterday, highlighted by a cautious indication from Secretary of State Cordell Hull that increase of United Nations striking power may bring victory sooner than hitherto believed possible.

The safe arrival of "tens of thousands" of perfectly equipped American fighting men in North Ireland, President Roosevelt's hint that more will be sent toward the European front soon, and the details of Brig. Gen. James H. Doolittle's raid on Japan had reacted on Washington like a "shot-in-the-arm."

Mr. Roosevelt reviewed the whole war situation in the Pacific and elsewhere during a long conference with the Pacific War Council, and New Zealand Minister Walter Nash reported optimistically that the picture "is not bad." The war council emerged with a new slogan: "Japan for the Japanese." They refused to explain it or to deny that it was phrased by Mr. Roosevelt, and invited newsmen to draw their own individual interpretations.

Interpretations Vary

One belief was that the council had talked of stripping Japan of all its possessions beyond the Japanese Archipelago proper—Korea, Formosa, the mandated islands and China holdings. Another idea was that Mr. Roosevelt had coined a phrase to lead observers and "loose talkers" away from the actual business discussed by the representatives of the seven Pacific powers who participated in the conference.

But neither council members nor Secretary Hull disguised the fact they are increasingly impressed by America's growing striking power. Hull was asked whether events of the last few months had led him to believe that victory might be won sooner than previously had seemed possible. He replied that American power and facilities were developing at an increasing rate, first in an offensive-defensive phase and then in an outright offensive phase. These facilities are increasing steadily, he said, adding that it should be possible for individuals to make their own calculations as to the effect this growing power will have on the duration of the war.

Both Hull and the Pacific Council refused to be alarmed at dispatches from Chungking, indicating that American aid in men and materials is necessary on a large scale to stop a Japanese attempt to knock China out of the war this summer.

Sure Chinese Will Stand

If China continues the war exertions of the last five years and maintains its spirit against aggression, Hull said, continuation of successful Chinese resistance can be fairly well forecast.

Dr. T. V. Soong, Chinese foreign minister who sits at the Pacific council table, said that the Chungking reports were not discussed at yesterday's meeting. But he said the problems of China's defense are the subject of continuing review and planning by the combined chiefs of staff here.

Meanwhile, Chairman Connally of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said that American negotiations with colonial officials at Martinique, without regard to Vichy, have now succeeded in immobilizing some 140,000 tons of merchant shipping as well as the three major war vessels anchored in the French West Indies.

Hull said, however, that removal of fuel oil was only the first step toward complete demobilization of the 22,000-ton aircraft carrier Bearn and the 5000 cruiser Emile Bertin at Martinique and the training cruiser, Jeanne d'Arc at Gaudoupe. He said that American officials at Fort De France are continuing conversations with the French High Commission, Admiral Georges Robert, for further demobilization, as well as for economic understandings.

Roosevelt Must Have Dictatorial Economic Powers to Win War, Hoover Says

By the Associated Press

New York, May 20.—Herbert Hoover said tonight that if the United States is to win the war President Roosevelt "must have dictatorial economic powers" because he said "plain Fascist economics" is necessary to triumph in total war.

"There must be no hesitation in giving them to him and upholding him in them," the former President said. "Moreover, we must expect a steady decrease in economic freedom as the war goes on."

"We must start our thinking with a disagreeable, cold, hard fact. That is, the economic measures necessary to win total war are just plain Fascist economics."

Speaking on "The Limitation on Freedom in War," Hoover told the National Industrial Conference Board, Inc., a research organization, that "from a philosophical viewpoint" he would like to see "the sixth columnists given a little more liberty."

He defined sixth columnists as "ones who discuss the war or speculate or even criticize in private conversations."

Bans Personal Abuse

At the same time, he said "moral limitations on the liberty to smear should be increased drastically as a war measure."

"No public servant can be free of criticism if democracy is to continue to live. But the first rule of criticism is that it must not take the form of personal detraction and abuse."

"We Americans have pioneered in the sadistic and higher art of abuse—that is, smearing. The great officers who lead our people in war must have respect."

But neither Congress nor the public, he said, should be criticized for exposing mistakes and wrongdoing in conduct of the war on the ground that such exposure lowers morale.

Offers Three Goals

Hoover said economic freedom must suffer most by the war but stressed the need to keep personal liberties alive.

Asserting the three major tasks before this country are winning the war and after the war securing "recovery of suspended liberties" and "lasting peace," he added to these ends three suggestions of his own:

1. A "more definite" war council embracing in its membership the civilian heads of the great war agencies.

2. To "think out" how postwar economic reconstruction, preparing for it by objective research and public debate.

3. Preparedness for peace through "setting up of moral, intellectual, economic and political forces over the whole world which will produce and hold peace."

In his advocacy of more liberty for persons he described as "sixth columnists," Hoover said:

"The American people have always been a debating society. They get immense satisfaction out of gossip. They always have views. They are profoundly anxious over the fate of their loved ones and the welfare of their country. All of this cannot be stamped out of them by a hobbled heel. Those who would like to reduce us to a collection of parrots do not know the meaning of America."

President Roosevelt in a press conference March 24 said there was a sixth column which wittingly or unwittingly spreads the poison of fifth columnists in the press, in idle conversation and at cocktail parties and tea fights.)

To win total war, Hoover said, "President Roosevelt must have dictatorial economic powers. There must be no hesitation in giving them to him and upholding him in them. Moreover, we must expect a steady decrease in economic freedom as the war goes on."

"We must start our thinking with a cold, hard fact. That is, the economic measures to win total war are just plain Fascist economics."

"But there are two vast differences in the application of this sort of economic system at the hands of democracies or by dictators. First, in democracies we strive to keep free speech, free press, free worship, trial by jury and other personal liberties alive."

"And second, we want to so design our actions that these fascist economic measures are not frozen into American life, but shall thaw out after the war."

New Surtax Rate From 12 To 81 Per Cent Is Proposed

Goals on individuals. Earlier it was proposed that the Treasury 500 million dollars on corporate taxes, reduced to tax State and local securities, estimated to yield 200 million dollars, and lost another 80 million dollars by failing to modify depletion allowances. All told, it had a revenue shortage of about $1,000,000,000 to make up if it hopes to reach overall Administration tax recommendations of $8,000,000,000.

Some members of the committee felt the only means of attaining that figure is by turning to a sales tax, to which the Administration is opposed.

Lower Brackets Hit Hard

The tax increases hit sharply on the lower brackets, because, as one member expressed it, "That's where the money lies." The recent decision to lower exemptions, to divert purchasing power from scarce commodities into taxes, as an inflation guard, will multiply many times over taxes paid by some very low-bracket earners.

For example, a childless married couple with $1700 income who now pays $13 will have to pay $80, or more than six times as much. An $800 single person's $40 tax bill would be more than 16 times his present $3 tax. Around $3000 for single persons and $4000 for married couples, taxes would be about doubled, and after that the rate of increase would slack off.

Earlier yesterday, the committee approved a series of relatively minor tax changes. The rate on mutual investment companies was raised from 31 per cent to 40 per cent, in line with recent corporate tax increases. The tax on personal holding companies was increased from 7½ per cent on the first $2000 to 75 per cent. On income of personal holding companies over $2000 the rate was raised from 82½ per cent to 85 per cent. The tax on nonresident foreign corporations and on nonresident alien individuals was increased from 27½ per cent to 36 per cent.

Glamour Ration To Be Next, WPB Studying Cosmetics

By the Associated Press

Glamour control is next. The War Production Board announced yesterday it was studying cosmetics and toiletries and at some future date would order fewer shades of lipstick, rouge and face powder.

There will be plenty of all the cosmetics that "are essential," a spokesman hastened to add. "The definition of essential, he said, is 'having eye appeal.'"

However, the board feels that face powder is less essential than the smokeless variety, and plans to curb the use of essential materials like glycerine, alcohol, waxes and colors. Cosmetics lines now offered at the drug store counter will be shorn of overlapping products and unnecessary sizes, either by voluntary action of manufacturers or by Government control.

The use of critical materials in lipstick holders, compacts, and cosmetic packages will be curtailed, as indicated in a previous WPB announcement advising women to save such replaceable items against a future shortage.

Virginia Erecting 1500 Road Signs On Speed Limit

Richmond, Va., May 20 (P)—Ignorance is no excuse under the law, but the State Highway Department is working to eliminate any excuse for ignorance—when it comes to Virginia's 40-mile, wartime speed limit.

Some 1500 signs, 20 by 30 inches, will be erected along the State's 9400 miles of primary roads to remind motorists of that 40-mile top speed. In addition, 217 big speed signboards, 5 feet by 5 feet 9 inches, which heretofore have listed the speed limit by types of vehicles, are being repainted and will show in 3-foot-high letters: SPEED LIMIT 40 MILES PER HOUR.

The smaller signs will be set at intervals of 10 miles on either side of highways where traffic counts have shown 1000 or more vehicles per day. On other routes, where the traffic counts are less, the signs will have a 20-mile spacing.

Running Fight Ship Loses Gulf Battle To 3 Subs

Tampa, Fla., May 20.—A running gun battle between a large American merchant vessel and "at least three" Axis submarines in the Caribbean which resulted in the sinking of the ship was revealed today.

The entire crew of 32 was saved, 41 of the survivors landing here and the others at an undisclosed island port. The arrivals here marked the nineteenth time this month survivors of torpedoed ships had been landed at Florida ports.

The survivors here said they were stalked for eight hours by the submarines before the ship was given up. The men drifted 64 hours in lifeboats before being rescued.

Capt. Ernest W. Farrow, Staten Island, N. Y., said he was certain "at least three, and maybe four" submarines had launched the attack simultaneously. He said one torpedo struck the ship at about 2 a. m., April 29. Seconds later, as the vessel wheeled about almost at right angles, shell and machine gun fire from the deck guns of two other submarines hit the ship from opposite directions, he said.

A nine-man American naval gun crew aboard the ship moved into position and returned fire. Second Officer Leis Olson of Providence, R. I., related. He said the submarine immediately stopped the shelling and sought refuge in the darkness.

For the rest of the night, the ship fled at top speed, playing hide-and-seek with her attackers, survivors said. Farrow said the vessel was hit by a second torpedo about 5 a. m., and by a third at 10 a. m.

Radio Operator Thomas McDermott, Troy, N. Y., who stuck to his post sending "S O S" distress calls until his antenna was shot away, managed to get a message through to a Navy listening post which sent a sub-chaser to the rescue. The attacked ship sank 18 minutes after the lifeboats were launched.

Stimson Invokes New Law Against Camp Followers

The May Act, forbidding prostitution in the vicinity of Army camps and naval stations, was invoked for the first time yesterday when Secretary of War Stimson designated 27 middle and east Tennessee counties around Camp Forrest as an area in which it would be enforced.

The act, passed last year, makes prostitution a misdemeanor under Federal law, punishable by a $1,000 fine, one year imprisonment, or both, in any area in which the law is invoked.

Members of the armed forces are subject to court martial for violations, and civilians can be tried in the Federal courts.

Among the Tennessee counties in which the act was invoked by Stimson was Davidson, in which the State capital, Nashville, is located. Together, they constitute a sizeable portion of the State, stretching from the Alabama to the Kentucky State lines.

Filling Stations Report Heavy Trade After Slow Weekend

Greater patronage of neighborhood filling stations by motorists who wish adjustments made on their gasoline ration cards and a sharp pickup in filling station business were noted here yesterday.

Whitney Leary, District OPA head, credited newspaper publicity for the sudden spurt at neighborhood filling stations. Their addresses were published in The Post yesterday.

Seven of these branches are now in operation, exclusive of rationing headquarters at 1740 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, and six more will go into service by Monday, said Leary. The location of a seventh is still undecided, he declared.

To Fabricate X-Cards
In the near future, possibly next week, names of X-card holders in the District will be made public, the rationing head asserted. He added that word is still being awaited from the Office of Price Administration as to whether possessors of B cards will be published.

Meantime, steadily mounting business at filling stations was reported by Harry Wainwright of the Retail Gasoline Dealers Association. A sales slump over the past weekend was attributed to the fact that motorists had filled their tanks before rationing became effective on Friday. Since Monday, however, said Wainwright, each day's business has been better than the previous day's. Dealers now are beginning to worry about sufficiency of their May supplies, which are limited to 50 per cent of normal sales.

Service stations that do a large amount of repair work also are becoming concerned over a sharp falling off in that type of business, according to Wainwright. Unable to account for the drop, several operators have said they will have to begin cutting their forces of mechanics if the trend continues for another week or two, the association executive asserted.

How to Get More Gas
Regulations applicable to motorists seeking supplemental gasoline allowances were announced yesterday by Office of Price Administration.

The applicant must submit an affidavit from his place of employment that he requires extra fuel in connection with his job. He must state why his present ration is inadequate and substantiate his argument. He should also sign a statement that he has written data before making application, said OPA.

Priority will be given persons engaged in war work. OPA has not issued any instructions on how much of the applicant's present ration card must be used up before he can apply for an additional ration. It was explained.

The local boards are authorized to exercise their own judgment in granting supplemental rations whenever they are convinced that the applicant is in need of more gasoline than he can get with his present card.

Leary said it is the District board's policy to receive applications for supplemental allotments only after the applicant has used up one-half of his gasoline allowance.

Leakproof Barges Proposed
On Capitol Hill yesterday a group of Senators was told of a substance that may be utilized to leakproof wooden barges and railroad box cars for transportation of gasoline into the Eastern States, where the shortage is most acute.

A Senate Interstate Commerce subcommittee heard Ernst Holzborn, director of intercoastal transportation, describe a material—the material's name—as a rubber-like compound used successfully to line high octane gasoline tanks of Martin bombers.

He said the committee the Pennsylvania Railroad is experimenting with mering as a box car lining. It is the invention, he said, of R. L. Gray, an engineer for the Glen L. Martin plant in Baltimore.

Capital Clerics, Laymen Attend Milwaukee Parley
Several local and nearby clergymen and laymen are attending the 154th General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, formally convening today in Milwaukee, Wis.

They are Dr. W. L. Darby, president of the Washington City Presbytery; Wilbur J. LaRoe, Jr., prominent layman of Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church and member of Dr. Darby's committee; and the Rev. Philip Goertz, pastor of Garden Memorial Presbyterian Church, Anacostia.

Also the Rev. Wendell S. Fredrick, pastor of the Warner Memorial Church, Kensington, Md.; L. A. Cole, Eckington Church; Hunter Mack, Lewinsville Church; McLean, Va.; and James Sherrier of New York Avenue Church.

The three men expected to be nominated for moderator for the 1942-43 term are the Rev. Dr. Stuart Nye Hutchinson of Pittsburgh, the Rev. Dr. Asa J. Ferry of Wichita, Kans., and the Rev. Dr. Joseph M. Broady of Birmingham, Ala.

Three Veteran Congressmen Beaten in Torrid Pa. Primary

Philadelphia, May 20.—The unbacked by either the Republican or Democratic State committees failed to win nomination.

The Congressional upset hit United States Representatives Charles I. Faddis, outspoken Democratic chairman of a House Subcommittee on Army matters and a frequent critic of the New Deal; Guy L. Moser (Democrat), and Benjamin Jarrett (Republican).

Democrats had a nip-and-tuck race to retain one of the two congressional seats at stake in special elections. Returns from 808 of the State's 812 districts gave for governor: Republican: Martin, 510,982; Davis, 417,251.

Democratic: Ross, 272,496; Smith, 269,068; Harr, 47,264. The Martin and Ross slates won down the line except for one instance. Warren K. Hess, 33-year-old Reading attorney, who had a place on the Guffey slate headed by Judge Smith, shot into the lead for the internal affairs nomination with nearly all the vote counted. Biddle Organizes Sedition Division

By Dillard Stokes
Post Staff Writer

Attorney General Biddle put the Department of Justice on a war basis yesterday, announcing that he had established a new agency to "insure speedy and vigorous execution" of policies instituted since the Pearl Harbor attack.

Solicitor General Charles Fahy is, for the time being, chief of the new unit—the War Division—which will deal with problems ranging from sedition, espionage and sabotage to the control of enemy aliens and the administration of their property.

The division, the Attorney General said, will coordinate its activities closely with the Criminal Division, headed by Assistant Attorney General Wendell Berge, which handles prosecution and grand jury inquiries.

Now sitting are five Federal grand juries, which Biddle said are probing a dozen newspapers for sedition.

Biddle said the War Division comprises three units:

1. The War Policy Unit, directed by Lawrence M. C. Smith, in which policy matters relating to sedition, the Foreign Agents Act and like subjects will be coordinated.

2. The Alien Enemy Control Unit, headed by Edward J. Riney, who has directed this work since the unit was set up last December 15. The unit supervises 1,000,000 Germans, Italians and Japanese who are under the jurisdiction of the United States.

3. The Alien Property Unit, headed by George McNulty, special assistant attorney general, who has been chief of the Criminal Division trial section. The unit will handle the legal end of administering millions of dollars worth of enemy owned property.

Coordinated with the work of the War Division will be the handling of conscientious objectors to military service, which is directed by James Rowe, Jr., assistant to the Attorney General, and the work of the War Frauds Unit, directed by Tom C. Clark.

Attorney General Biddle said the war work already is being taken care of, but that a separate division was being set up to bring speed and effectiveness.

The investigation of Charles E. Coughlin's weekly magazine, Social Justice, which was ordered by Biddle several weeks ago, will be resumed today before the special grand jury on Axis agents. Biddle called the magazine "clearly seditious" and ordered Prosecutors William H. Miller, Lieut. Edward J. Hickey, Jr., U. S. N., and John T. M. Reddan to see that every guilty man was dealt with.

Witnesses today will be Lieut. Bernard T. D'Arcy of the Army Engineer Corps procurement division who was once Eastern executive for Social Justice, and Frances Kelton, New York businesswoman.

Two more of the Attorney General's propaganda squad—Albert E. Aronson and J. Goldsborough—last night neared the end of their prosecution of two men accused of conspiring with five Japanese and the Japanese agent, Ralph Townsend, to violate the Foreign Agents Act.

Justice T. Alan Goldsborough allowed the jurors to hear the recording of a radio speech made by Frederick Vincent Williams, one of the men on trial. Just as it went over the air, Williams' voice filled the courtroom with his exposition of the theme that America had no enemies in Asia. Williams was on the Japanese payroll when he made the speech, but Stewart R. Ward, executive secretary of a San Francisco club, testified that the defendant professed to be a disinterested American.

Court attaches believe it was the first time a photograph record had been played as evidence in the District Court.

Inquest in Death Of Dr. Phillips Set for Today

An inquest into the death of the Very Rev. ZeBarney T. Phillips, dean of the Washington Cathedral and chaplain of the United States Senate, will be held at 10:30 a. m. today, it was learned last night.

Appearing at the inquiry will be Detective Sgt. E. E. Scott of the Detective Bureau's Homicide Squad. The names of others who may have been called could not be learned.

Dr. Phillips died May 10 following a brief illness and his death was attributed by the attending physician to "acute respiratory failure due to unusual reaction from narcotic drug—dilaudid—1-32 grain."

Dilaudid is a comparatively new drug whose reaction is similar to that of morphine. Following Dr. Phillips' death, a post-mortem examination was made and yesterday's announcement of the inquest was the first indication of what course would be taken by the coroner's office.

Import of Mexican Labor Studied

A report calling for importation of farm workers from Mexico to relieve the wartime field labor shortage is being submitted to the War Man Power Commission, Senator Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, said yesterday.

The report was drawn up by several Government agencies. The United States Employment Service was said to have recommended that 6000 Mexican laborers be brought into the United States to meet the farm labor shortage in California and other States. Western sugar beet growers are backing the proposal.

Douglas, Vickery Get Job Of Providing Cargo Ships

To tackle the problem of making the available supply of cargo ships do the biggest possible job of hauling war supplies overseas, Lewis W. Douglas yesterday was appointed deputy war shipping administrator.

At the same time, Rear Admiral Howard L. Vickery was named deputy administrator for new ships.

Douglas left Congress in 1933 to become President Roosevelt's first director of the budget. Later he resigned because of personal disagreement with the President's monetary and spending policies.

Recently he had been chief adviser to Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, war shipping administrator, and particularly concerned with working out transport problems with the British War Transport Ministry.

"He has, however, no administrative responsibility and with this appointment, Mr. Douglas will join with me in not only planning but directing the use of our merchant marine," Land said.

"Mr. Douglas' administrative capacity is well known, and I am convinced that his agreement to become deputy administrator will assure a vigorous and all out effort to use our ships for the one and only purpose of winning the war."

Douglas' duties are to assist in making best possible use of available tonnage. This involves the complicated task of routing vessels and assigning particular ships to carry particular cargoes between specific ports as the need for the supplies may dictate.

Vickery's tasks will deal with the urgent phase of building new ships. Criticism has been directed at the progress of the shipbuilding program. Steel shortages have handicapped it and the rate of launchings has been unfavorably compared with the rate of sinkings. Administration officials recently declared, however, that construction was coming along satisfactorily.

Meanwhile the House Merchant Marine Committee projected an investigation of alleged delay in the Maritime Commission and the War Shipping Administration in carrying out provisions of recent legislation governing the internal movement of cargo destined for overseas.

The legislation directed the agencies to assume jurisdiction over the handling of such freight. It was designed to withdraw control from the British organization set up in this country, to preserve the domestic freight-winding machinery for post-war competition.

Noting that only one agreement had been entered into so far, Chairman Bland (Democrat), of Virginia, said the committee was convinced there was unnecessary delay in getting the program under way.

Farm Bloc Loses Fight on Parity

Russell (Democrat), of Georgia.

The House, with a united farm bloc in the saddle, had refused to permit below-parity sale of any Government owned stocks, except for a few restricted commercial purposes, and use of "deteriorated" grain for feed.

Under the Russell compromise these restrictions were loosened to permit surplus corn and up to 125 million bushels of surplus wheat, to be marketed at 85 per cent of parity.

The farm bloc break, assuring passage of the compromise, came when many cotton and wheat State Senators supported the amendment, despite charges by their corn colleagues that they were "running out." Government-owned cotton supplies were unaffected by the sub-parity agreement, and most wheat representatives were anxious to relieve the present towering wheat surplus by marketing the Government supplies for feed. Corn States argued this would break the market for corn used for feed.

Last Attempt Beaten

First test came on an amendment by Senator Thomas (Democrat) of Oklahoma to forbid release of any Government-owned grain for feed purposes at less than the full parity price for corn. The Thomas amendment was rejected, 55 to 25. After minor modifications in his own amendment by Russell, the compromise was later ratified 62 to 18.

Senator Gillette (Democrat) of Iowa, who led the fight of the corn faction against the plan to sell wheat, launched an eleventh hour effort to kill it, but lost 19 to 46.

A parliamentary move to divide the Russell compromise into parts and vote on each separately failed and Senator Clark (Democrat) of Missouri jumped to his feet with the charge "that the whole principle of parity has been killed here today."

R. A. F. Rains Fire Upon Mannheim

"At present we have the facilities for sending 800 planes on raids, and these can be expanded."

The informant added that most British bombing now is being done by four-engine planes with a minimum bomb load of 4 tons each. Thus, he said, 1000 such planes could carry 4000 tons of explosives—or enough "to blow anything in Germany apart."

The submarine base at St. Nazaire, France, also was strongly attacked last night, but the British said three-fourths of the bombers were sent against Mannheim.

Fourteen planes from the raiding forces failed to return.

By contrast, only about 20 planes attacked a north coast English town. Reconnaissance planes also sought the 10,000-ton cruiser Prince Eugen, the "clay pigeon" of the German fleet, but authoritative sources said they did not know where she had gone.

50 Planes Attacked Cruiser

Disclosing new details of the attack off Norway Sunday night, in which at least two torpedo hits on the Eugen were claimed, authorized quarters said more than 50 planes swarmed down upon the cruiser. Acknowledging the loss of nine of their planes, the British said the cruiser was screened by 40 Messerschmitts.

An armed German motor vessel was left listing and without a sign of life aboard in the North Sea by a mast-high attack by the Second American Eagle Squadron of the R. A. F. this afternoon, the fliers reported.

Flight Lieut. Thomas Wilcox Allen of Spartanburg, N. C., hit the helmsman and put the wheel out of action while other pilots silenced the ship's guns.

County to Halt Prison Labor Use; 'Not Worth While'

Salisbury, Md., May 20 (AP).—Asserting the results did not justify the cost, the Wicomico County commissioners voted to discontinue the county's prison labor program.

The prison population has declined to such an extent that only two prisoners reported for road work last week, while salaries of a foreman and a guard continued.

Other items of expense listed were maintenance of a truck to transport prisoners to and from road and ditch work, boarding prisoners on the job and paying them a nominal sum for their labor.

With six prisoners at work yesterday, the commissioners voted to continue the program through the week and suspend it Monday night, when the work week ends.

Brewster Firm Is Getting Back 3 Plane Plants

Acting on orders from President Roosevelt, Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox announced last night that three plants of the Brewster Aeronautical Corp., taken over by the Navy April 18, would be returned to the firm immediately.

The President's instructions to Knox to relinquish possession of the plants were embodied in an executive order which said Mr. Roosevelt "now finds that the plants will be privately operated in a manner consistent with the war effort."

Knox said executive direction of the corporation has been placed in the hands of a new board of directors and a new president and chief executive, C. A. Dusen. All former officers and directors of the firm, he said, have tendered their resignations.

When the Navy was ordered to take over last month, the White House gave "dissatisfaction with the management" as the sole reason.

Voting Trust Set Up

The three plants involved are at Long Island City, N. Y.; Newark, N. J., and Johnsville, Pa.

Knox said holder of "large blocks" of Brewster stock, constituting 27 per cent of the shares outstanding, have established a voting trust until November 20, 1944. In addition, he said, they have designated Van Dusen, President James G. Blaine of the Marine Midland Trust Co. of New York, and Arthur A. Ballantine, former Undersecretary of the Treasury, as voting trustees.

Knox said former President Ralph Singer, who had served since 1941, "has made a valuable contribution to the operations of the company."

He said members of the new board of directors, in addition to Van Dusen and E. J. Engel, president of the Santa Fe Railroad; William Fulton Krutz, president of the Pennsylvania Co., for insurances on lives and granting annuities; F. D. Schnacke of Smith, Schucke, & Co., Dayton, Ohio; David Van Alstyne of Van Alstyne, Noel & Co., New York; George C. Westervelt of Frederick R. Harris, engineers, New York; and Evan Randolph, president of the Philadelphia National Bank.

Knox said Van Dusen has been engaged "continuously" in aircraft construction since 1914. He served as vice president and general manager of the Glenn L. Martin Co. for several years prior to 1934, and was first vice president in charge of production for Consolidated Aircraft from 1934 until 1941.

Report Denies Influence Wins Posts in Navy

By the Associated Press.

A civilian does not have to be rich or influential to obtain a commission in the Navy, the Senate Naval Affairs Committee declared yesterday in an official publication.

A booklet prepared under the direction of Chairman Walsh (Democrat) of Massachusetts cited a letter from Gen. Robert E. Lee to Jefferson Davis, President of the Confederacy, to support the stand that no commissions should be granted upon a personal basis.

"The commissions which have been sought and granted for service in the Intelligence Unit have been subject to most criticism," the pamphlet declared, "much of which it is believed is based upon suspicion due to the large number of applicants who have sought to bring pressure upon the members of Congress and the Navy Department for commissions in this particular branch of the service."

Isolated Cases Publicized

"Allegations to the effect that only applicants of wealth and fine social or scholastic background and in a position to command influence are given commissions, especially in the Intelligence Unit, are, in the opinion of the committee, unfounded."

"The belief that favoritism exists in certain cases in obtaining commissions and sometimes in obtaining waivers is, in our opinion, due to the publicity that has been given to a few isolated cases."

Then it cited the letter from Gen. Lee to Jefferson Davis:

"If you can fill these positions with proper officers, not the relatives and social friends of the commanders, who, however agreeable their company, are not always the most useful, you might hope to have the finest army in the world."

Encourage Hard-Boiled Attitude

The committee also expressed its determination to encourage personnel officials of the Navy to maintain a "hard-boiled" attitude toward requests for waivers of age, educational or physical requirements by applicants for Naval commissions.

It said members had been informed by recruiting officers that there have been frequent attempts by men to obtain waivers, gain commissions, and "escape duty in combat units of the armed services."

"Waivers apparently are sought mostly by those lacking all the qualifications for commissions in the intelligence, legal and supply branches of the Naval Reserve," the booklet continued. "The department admits that there have been waivers granted, but not as generally as alleged."

Roosevelt Edict OCD Ordered To Protect Utilities

By Christine Sadler
Post Staff Writer

President Roosevelt yesterday directed the Office of Civilian Defense to develop and execute a Facility Security Program that will provide protection against sabotage to the Nation's essential facilities.

The program will supplement the protective programs of the Army, Navy and Federal Power Commission, and will "correlate with them the antisabotage activities of other Government agencies."

"Facilities" to be protected by the "integrated program include communications systems, air commerce, highways, railways, forests, mines, gas and water utilities, public buildings and storage facilities."

Army Has Veto Power

The White House, in releasing the executive order under which the program is to be established, made it clear the Army would have the final say and protection ideas developed by the OCD. Also, it was made clear, the new order does not affect the duties of the Federal Bureau of Investigation regarding sabotage and espionage.

The order directs the OCD to: "Serve as the center for the coordination of plans sponsored or operated by the several Federal departments and agencies."

"Establish standards of security to govern the development of security measures for the Nation's essential facilities."

"Review existing and proposed security plans and measures, and require the adoption of such additional measures as may be deemed necessary."

To Seek Cooperation
"Take steps to secure the cooperation of owners and operators of essential facilities and of State and local governments in developing and carrying out adequate security measures."

It is stressed in the order that primary responsibility for protective measures still rests with the owners and operators of essential facilities, public as well as private.
Dean James M. Landis, director of the OCD, declared last night that the program not only would be subject to approval by the Secretary of War, but that whenever the Army or Navy "extends protection to any essential facilities, the civilian program will be modified accordingly."

He said no large force of Federal employees would be created to carry out the order but that the OCD would work "with and through established agencies."

Ford Co. Asks For Entirely New Union Contract

Detroit, May 20 (AP)—The Ford Motor Co. served notice on the United Automobile Workers (C. I. O.) today that it wished to write a complete new contract with the union to supplant the present agreement which was signed last June 20.

U. A. W.-C. I. O. officials already have notified the company they would seek a number of amendments to the contract, including a provision for a general $1-a-day pay raise.

Harry H. Bennett, Ford personnel director, said that "in view of the numerous respects in which the contract must be changed," the company "considers it more expedient to negotiate a new contract than to attempt to amend the present contract."

U. A. W.-C. I. O. officials replied that rewriting of the contract is "customary" in annual negotiations with Chrysler Corporation and General Motors Corporation.

Leaflets Assure French Colonies Remain Theirs

Bern, Switzerland, May 20 (AP)—British fliers dropped leaflets over France four days ago telling the populace that President Roosevelt had pledged the return of French colonies after the war, it was reported here today.

Maj. Gen. Campbell Made Ordnance Chief Succeeding Wesson

President Roosevelt yesterday nominated 62 Army officers for temporary appointment as major general or brigadier, including 13 ranking officers whose homes are in Washington.

Marine Corps headquarters at the same time announced the selection of 310 captains for temporary promotion to major. Included in the list were Capt. James Roosevelt, eldest son of the President, and 33 officers from Washington or near-by Maryland and Virginia.

The Army list was headed by the appointment of Maj. Gen. Levin H. Campbell to be Chief of Ordnance. He will succeed Maj. Gen. Charles M. Wesson, whose term expires June 2, and will serve in lieu of Maj. Gen. James H. Burns, previously nominated for the post.

Burns Kept in Key Post
General Burns, executive of the Munitions Assignment Board, is being continued in this key post at the request of Harry Hopkins, the board's chairman. Burns, it was said, is urgently needed there to maintain liaison between the board and the War Department.

Among the 46 colonels advanced to brigadier general is Guy I. Rowe, Quartermaster Corps, of Washington, a hero of the battle of the Marne in the last war. Rowe commanded the battalion of the Thirty-eighth Infantry which bore the brunt of the German attack in that crucial battle, and by stopping two enemy divisions gave the regiment its name as the "Rock of the Marne."

Other new brigadiers include John T. Kennedy, a Medal of Honor holder; Stonewall Jackson, namesake but no relation to the Confederate leader, who served at Georgetown University with its R. O. T. C. unit several years ago; John E. Christmas, one of the Army's leading tank designers; and Ward H. Maris, former chief of the Army public relations branch.

Olds Is Promoted
The list of 15 new major generals includes the name of Brig. Gen. Robert Olds, one of the Army's best known fliers and a heavy bomber expert.

Among the Marine captains advanced to major are Frank C. Tharin and Herbert C. Reuler, members of that little band of airmen who fought off repeated Japanese attacks on Wake Island through 14 days of continuous action. Tharin, whose home is at 2711 Connecticut Avenue here, and another Marine pilot, sunk a Japanese light cruiser with 100-pound bombs. He is now a prisoner of war, as is Reuler and nine others on the promotion list.

The Washingtonians on the Marine list for promotion to major are:

Walter Amuth, Jr., 3201 Warder Street Northwest; George A. Brace, 1900 F Street Northwest; William J. Burrows, 4616 Chesapeake Street Northwest; Justice M. Chambers, 921 Nineteenth Street Northwest; William R. Collins, 5300 Port-of-Spain Street Northwest; Robert L. Dennis, Jr., 2122 California Street Northwest; Ross M. Ryan, 3100 W. 26th, 3000 R Street Northwest; Samuel P. Sailer, 1785 Lanier Place.

Marine officers from Maryland advanced to captain were: Lewis J. Fields, Salisbury; Harry O. Smith, Jr., Cherry Chase; Hamilton D. South, Jr., Annapolis; Julian F. Walters, Rockville.

Virginians on the list of new Marine majors included Curtis Burton, Jr., Hopewell; John W. Easley, Blair; Frederick F. Henderson, Harrisonburg; Saxon W. Holt, Jr., Newport News; Samuel D. Puller, Richmond; Thomas F. Riley, Harrisonburg; Winlow R. Randolph, Jr., Ballhaven; George C. Smith, Jr., Hopewell; Richard E. Saunders, Hampton; George R. E. Shell, Hampton; Wright G. Taylor, Churchlands; William B. Via, Roanoke.

The Army men from Washington advanced to major general are: Albert E. Brown, William M. Grimes, Joseph D. Patch, Frank C. Mahin, J. Lawton Collins, and Olds.

Other brigadiers promoted to major general were: Henry L. C. Jones, William H. H. Morris, Jr., Durward S. Wilson, Rapp Brush, John E. Sloan, William H. Gill, Harry L. Twaddle, Homer R. Oldfield and Harold R. Bull.

Washingtonians on the list of new brigadiers were: Leland S. Hobbs, Thomas D. Finley, James F. Brittingham, George W. Griner, Jr.,

Bomb Diverts Lava Flow

Landis Blasts LaGuardia In Helmet Deal

In very polite and Harvard language, Dean James M. Landis, Director of the Office of Civilian Defense, last night graded the "Mayor of New York" as little better than a Fifth Columnist and accused him of "irresponsibility of utterance."

Without mentioning the words "Fiorella LaGuardia," Director Landis issued a statement that the OCD is not responsible for delay in the delivery of 22,000 steel helmets to New York—as charged by Mayor LaGuardia last Sunday in a radio broadcast and again on Monday before a meeting of New York fire chiefs.

"Since irresponsibility of utterance in war time is second only to giving information to the enemy, it is deemed necessary to set forth the facts relating to this transaction," Director Landis declared.

The OCD explanation is that rather than delaying helmet delivery it has lent "its aid to the City of New York to try and effectuate an advance purchase"

Difficulties between the McCord Radiator Co., with which the helmet order was placed and the "City of New York" are responsible for the delay, it is declared. The OCD "has no interest" in these difficulties, but they—and "not the action of either the OCD nor any other Federal department—are responsible for the fact that the helmets are 'sitting in Akron rather than New York,'" the statement says.

Ever since leaving his job as director of the OCD, Mayor LaGuardia has taken verbal shots at his successor and the OCD in general. The Landis statement, last night, however, was the first "talking back" the present director has permitted himself.

All Civilians
To Get Free Masks

New York, May 20 (AP)—Free gas masks will be distributed to all civilians beginning the last of this month, under a program for production of 2,500,000 masks a month. Civilian Defense Director James M. Landis declared on his arrival today from Washington.

Landis said the initial output of masks would go to groups most likely to need them first, such as policemen, firemen and air raid wardens.

Another 'Sleeper' Comes Downtown From Suburbs

Little Bringing One in Under Third Title;

ANTON WALBROOK

"ONE OF THE PRIZE 'SLEEPERS' OF ALL TIME," is the way Mrs. Louise Noonan Miller and Abe Tolkins are describing the picture scheduled to follow the current "Carnival in Flanders" on the screen at the Little Theater. It is an item which they feel should be known by the title of "Warsaw Concerto," so that is what they are calling it. Furthermore, except for their abhorrence of mutilating fact, they would like to proclaim that it is being shown at their discriminating bijou filmhouse for the first time in Washington. And therefrom dangles one of Hollywood's more fantastic tales.

The gelatin known as "Warsaw Concerto" was released a year ago, or thereabouts, in England, where it was made, under the name of "Dangerous Moonlight." That is the kind that was shining over Warsaw when the Nazi bombing began and a great pianist met a young American girl. The picture was heralded by the Britons as one with great poignancy and climactic air fights that "smelled like the real thing."

So "Dangerous Moonlight," its fine story qualities, exquisite music and strong character portrayals completely overlooked, was snatched for America by a Hollywood company, specializing in "Westerns," as something that ought to "mop up" under the title of "Suicide Squadron." The mere circumstance that it has no traffic with suicide and precious little with squadrons, had nothing to do with it. As "Suicide Squadron," the film was recognized by Washington's neighborhood audiences as something considerably superior to its name.

Having in mind their experience with "Night Train," Mrs. Miller and Mr. Tolkins are bringing it to Ninth Street in the confident expectation that history will repeat itself. "Night Train," too, you will remember, was overlooked by the downtown, first-run houses and released first to the neighborhoods. It ran nine weeks at the Little, once it got into the midcity area!

The star of "Warsaw Concerto," by a happy coincidence, is Anton Walbrook. Mr. Walbrook is an actor of parts. In addition to all the other splendid portrayals he has brought to the screen, he is presently sharing honors with Laurence Olivier, Leslie Howard, Raymond Massey, and Eric Portman in "The Invaders," renewing its downtown run tomorrow at the Metropolitan, after a conspicuously successful week at the Earle. It is Mr. Walbrook who plays the leader of the Hutterites and delivers the ringing denunciation of Nazi Lieutenant Hirth's salutation of "brother." Sally Gray is the girl in "Warsaw Concerto" and Derrick De Marney among the foremost in the supporting cast.

Not Too Late to Change Their Minds

If present conditions continue to prevail, the National Theater is going to be pretty sorry that it has permitted the impression to get abroad that its season will end a week from Saturday night with the final performance of the fortnight's run of "Arsenic and Old Lace." On the basis of present indications, it could go on for a few weeks longer. There is, to be sure, a complicating factor in the wartime prohibition of long-range weather forecasts. Nobody knows, of course, how hot it's going to get how soon. But with things as they are, and "Arsenic and Old Lace" almost an assured sellout for its full two weeks, the season ought to be able to carry itself along for a while on its own momentum. It is not impossible that something of the sort will come about. So far, the Joseph Kesselring comedy of delightful insanity and gently charming murder in wholesale lots has played to standing-room houses.

Tonight's moonlight cruise of the Wilson Line's streamliner Mount Vernon is being sponsored by the Civilian Personnel Division of the United States Signal Corps. In season and out, Manager-Prestdigitator Harry Baker always is pulling rabbits out of his hat.

The United States Treasury Department's "Ship Ahoy Minute Girls" will arrive in Washington Saturday to make personal appearances and sell War Bonds and Stamps, autograph stamp albums and otherwise further their joint effort to sell $3,500,000 worth of the securities—enough to pay for a heavy-hitting destroyer. They are Jetty Parker, blonde champion drum-major, and her blonde associate, Dorothy Schoemer, film player and dancer. Both are fresh out of the cast of "Ship Ahoy," the M-G-M musical starrer for Eleanor Powell and Red Skelton, opening at Loew's Capitol a week from today.

The Blackfriars now are in the final week of rehearsal of "Out of the Frying Pan," a wacky farce, to be presented in St. Paul's Auditorium, 1421 V Street, on May 26, 27 and 28, as their final production of the season.

John Boles In Top Form On Pix Screen

After a long absence from the screen John Boles has returned, bringing with him a voice that seems to have improved and richened during his extended personal appearance tours throughout the country.

Unfortunately the vehicle that heralds his return is a clumsy, clichéd father-and-son story that moves slowly to a rather obvious climax.

As Jess Carter in "Road to Happiness," Boles plays an opera singer who returns from studying abroad to find his wife has divorced him and taken custody of their son. Despite the advantages of wealth that the boy's mother can give him, Jess reclaims his son and takes him to live with him in a theatrical boarding house. From there on, the picture deals with Carter's inability to find a job and his struggle to keep from giving up his son. But of course the inevitable happens and when Carter gets a chance to fill in on a radio program he is heard by the director of the opera and the picture ends on a happy note, with father and son together again.

Boles at His Best

Boles plays with sincerity and enthusiasm and is heard in three songs which show off his voice to advantage. Mona Barrie is seen as the shrewish wife, which she plays with her usual competence, and Billy Lee, child veteran of the screen, is seen as Danny, the son.

The second feature on the bill is "All-American Coed," a hastily thrown together picture which features Frances Langford and Johnny Downs. The story, which serves only as a background for a number of song and dance routines, has something to do with a boy who, disguised as a girl, smuggles his way into a girls' college to avenge a slur cast upon his fraternity. By helping the girls produce their annual show he brings peace between the two schools and wins the girl besides.

The songs are pleasant enough and the young players prance through their paces with "vim, vigor and vitality." Produced by Monogram, this is definitely a minor effort which should appeal only to the "younger generation"—very younger! ERNEST L. SCHIER.

That gorgeous Technicolor wilderness with which Alexander Korda has illustrated Rudyard Kipling's "Jungle Book" this morning will spread itself across the screen at Loew's Columbia Theater for a continuation of the F Street popularity it began at the Palace.

With Sabu as star, this adventurous subject reaches high peaks of excitement—in the manner of the Tarzan pictures, plus magnificent natural color photography—both among the humans and among the wild beasts, of which at least one of every variety is in the "cast." But aside from that, "Jungle Book" has something of importance to say concerning the relationships of human beings and the pernicious qualities of avarice, jealousy and others of the more common human failings.

The action abounds in conflict, is highly imaginative and culminates in a jungle fire that is a marvel of realism. Not bad for adults, but perfection itself for juvenile audiences.

Sign Cavanagh For 'Squadron'

Paul Cavanagh, noted character actor, has become Diana Barrymore's screen father. He was signed by Producer Walter Wanger to play the role of the young Barrymore's father in the film "The Sign of the Cross," the Universal film in which Diana is making her debut. The character Cavanagh portrays is an important one in the plot, but he himself appears in a single dramatic scene in which he is carried, dying, from a London hospital that has been razed by German air attack.

Cavanagh was a big grin when he met Diana and asked her, "Do you suppose I had better check with your father, John, on how to play the role?"

New York, May 20. Marc Connelly will write a movie for Maj. Frank Capra's film division of the Army. He first will tour the country to collect material. Connelly went to Washington the other day to report for work. In Capra's office he met Kurt Weill, the composer, and Maxwell Anderson, the playwright. "I heard it was tough to get a room in Washington, but Capra was thoughtful enough to arrange a nice large room for me," Connelly told Weill. "Were you able to get a reservation, Kurt?" "Yes," the composer replied. "I'm in Room 308, at the Carlton." "But that's the room I'm in," said Connelly. "Then I suppose that bag I saw in the corner of the room was yours?" "No, it isn't," Weill added. "That bag is Maxwell Anderson's."

MARC CONNELLY

John Steinbeck is going into the Army Air Corps. He will write a movie for the corps. Lieut. Bernard D'Arcy, who was Coughlin's Eastern distributor, has been suspended to appear before the Federal grand jury investigating Nazi propaganda. The Saturday Evening Post may change its title to Post. And a program of added photographs will be adopted. Mrs. Earl Browder had no advance news of her husband's release. She had arranged to make her regular visit to Atlanta on Monday. Robert Minor accidentally was in Atlanta, trying to get in to see Browder, on the day the President's decision was announced. The correspondents released from Italy report that the Fascist slogan has become "Veni, vidi, evasi."

At a ball game here recently Erskine Caldwell told Tony Brown, who produced and directed "Tobacco Road," about the last time he saw a large crowd assembled in a stadium. It was in Russia last year, when Moscow first was being bombed. Apogee, the Russian playwright, invited Caldwell to release the monotony of the raids by accompanying him to the race track. There they engaged on the daily double, which is not unlike our own—except that the bettor must select, in the proper order, the horses which come in first and second. They bet 100 rubles on the daily double, and won. They rushed to the pay-off window and collected only 75 rubles. "How come?" asked the disappointed Caldwell. "Well, he was told, 'that's to discourage gambling.'"

When Bob Trout, C. B. S. correspondent in London, returns to New York he and his 60-foot schooner will enter the Coast Guard service. Clarence Low, the salvage director, wanted to take the two World War shells—weighing 1000 pounds each—which decorate the entrance of the Army and Navy Club. But he was instructed: "It's not necessary, as yet, to melt down our war relics." At the Russian war relief dinner Fred Allen said: "If Hitler were in my place—working as a comic—now, he'd probably begin by saying: 'A funny thing happened to me while I was on my way to Moscow.' . . . Al Smith is heading a committee to obtain recognition of June 22—the first anniversary of the Nazi invasion of Russia—as the official 'Aid-to-Russia Day.'"

Two boys, in civilian clothes, came to the Stage Door Canteen. The first was 12 and the other 14, but they proved their eligibility to enter. Their uniforms were left aboard the torpedoed British liner on which they had been cabin boys. The documents they carried attested to their service, and to the youngsters were welcomed into the canteen. . . . And while their mother colleagues hithered and sang and listened to sophisticated entertainers, the two boys expressed desires for only one thing—a thing they hadn't seen in two years. An orange.

Danny Kaye, who appeared in Chicago's Chez Paree Sunday night to sell $1,250,000 in war bonds, almost had to postpone his trip. Last week he received a ticket from a traffic cop. His best friend, Dodge Manager Leo Durocher, accompanied him to the Brooklyn courtroom where Magistrate Charles E. Ramsgate was presiding. Ramsgate invited Durocher to sit next to him on the bench. When Kaye's case was called the magistrate asked Durocher: "What would you do if you were in my place?" "Lock him up," said Best Friend Durocher. . . . The innocent Kaye was removed to a detention place. After one hour Durocher relented, and the magistrate freed the star.

This is the story from Oslo—of an old Norwegian, carrying his umbrella into a restaurant, where the Nazi diners began to taunt him: "Who do you think you are—Chamberlain?" He started to leave, but the taunts continued: "Chamberlain. Hey, Chamberlain. Aren't you Chamberlain?" . . . The old man stepped on a chair, then onto the table. He opened his umbrella and jumped. "Hess," he said—and walked out.

Palace

Strengthening their claim upon first place among the come-lately top comedies of the cinema, Abbott and Costello this morning begin their inevitable second week on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater as stars of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's musical something called "Rio Rita."

To those who remember the original Ziegfeld musical comedy on the stage, the picture now prevalent at the Palace has no right to the title. The story has been translated into terms of "gag" sequences for the stars, leading up gradually and hilariously to an espionage plot being engineered by foreign agents hidden away in a remote hamlet in Mexico. The boys see to it that nothing occurs to impair their hold upon a laugh-hungry public as the screen's foremost valets—now that the Marx Brothers have faded into obscurity.

To preserve "Rio Rita's" hazy title to its title, and classification as a "musical," the title song and the "Rangers' Song" from the original score have been retained. They are rousing songs by John Carroll and Kathryn Grayson. The Carroll baritone is ideally suited to this sort of thing and Miss Grayson proves herself among the most gifted of the youthful coloraturas by interpolating a surprisingly well-done rendition of the "Shadow Song" from "Dinorah." Such an aria might be deemed to have no place in an Abbott and Costello picture, but it is lovely to listen to as Miss Grayson does it.

Prominent among the comedians in the cast is a handsome police dog that is the centerpiece for many of the most boisterous laughs. It is not entirely his fault. Any dog that had swallowed a radio receiving set and continually gave out with peculiar noises and unexpected speeches probably would be just as funny. And there you have the answer. "Rio Rita" may not be "Rio Rita," but it is a lot of fun.

The diversified short subjects are, of course, being carried over with the feature, the newsreel alone being renewed.

Soviet Trade Union Recognition Urged

WPB Checks Up 3000 Probe Building Orders

Three thousand Government examiners have been assigned to check on violations of the construction stop-order in all parts of the country, the War Production Board announced yesterday.

The examiners, borrowed by WPB from the Home Owners Loan Corp., will check building permits in every principal city and gather information from building supply companies, labor unions and any other available sources of information, WPB said.

The survey of persons engaged in construction activity should reveal whether there are violations of the provisions of the construction order and also prevent the diversion of scarce materials for non-essential uses, an official said.

Few Violations

However, WPB spokesmen said, only a handful of violations had been reported so far and no punitive action had been taken except in a few cases where warning letters were sent.

The War Production Board is expected soon to limit the stocks of goods which may be held by retailers and wholesalers.

Such a plan is definitely being considered by the board, informed persons said yesterday, in order to assure an equitable supply of consumer goods, despite wartime production curtailments, for all merchants and their customers.

Sweeping Action

The action would cover a consumer field as sweeping as the universal price ceiling which went into effect on all retail sales Monday; that is, virtually everything that Americans wear, use or eat.

Even broader implications were seen by some observers who believed that some such program would be a prerequisite to any widespread rationing of consumer goods if need for such action should arise.

The contemplated edict would forbid storekeepers and wholesalers from building up inventories of merchandise greater than they held in some stipulated past period.

Fahy Explains Antitrust Suit Deferments

Deferring action on antitrust cases that might otherwise impede the maximum war efforts of the corporations and individuals involved, does not mean exoneration, Charles Fahy, Solicitor General of the United States, pointed out last night at a meeting of the Bar Association of the District of Columbia at the Mayflower Hotel.

He emphasized that lack of prosecution for the moment does not mean that anyone will be permitted to escape violations of law. The arrangements entered into by the Attorney General and the Secretaries of War and Navy, he said, for postponing antitrust proceedings that interfere with the war effort does not contemplate such a policy. The speaker pointed out that such requests for deferment must come from the Secretary of War or the Secretary of the Navy. In each case, however, the Attorney General makes the decision; and only the President may reverse it.

At the business session, a motion by Arthur Hilland that the by-laws be amended preventing the board of directors from inducting candidates for judgeships was tabled. Instead, a motion by E. Barrett Prettyman to appoint a committee of five past presidents to report at the June meeting on a dignified procedure for endorsing judgeships for the Municipal Court, was adopted.

A bill, "How to Prepare a Negligence Case" was enacted by Edmund I. Jones, Ross O'Donohue and Charles E. Smoot.

Announcement was made that 37 nations are now members of the Inter-American Bar Association.

Capt. William Scott Dies in California

Norco, Calif., May 20 (AP)—Capt. William Pitt Scott, 60, retired, died at the Norco Naval Hospital yesterday. He lacked six months of spending a quarter of a century on sea duty.

A graduate of Annapolis in 1895, he was honored with conspicuous service in the Spanish-American War. He retired June 30, 1920.

Steel Workers Seek World Labor Body; Murray Agreeable

By Paul Tobenkin

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 20.—The United Steel Workers of America, acting with the complete support of Philip Murray, president of the C. I. O., took preliminary steps today looking toward recognition of Russian trade unions and possible eventual formation of a world labor body consisting of the labor movements of all of the United Nations.

The action marked the first time since the Russian revolution in 1917 that any significant segment of the labor movement has shown any willingness to deal with Russian trade unions. The American Federation of Labor always blocked admission of Russia into the International Federation of Trade Unions on the grounds that no totalitarian country could have free trade unions.

The question of collaboration of the trade unions of the United Nations was brought to a head by the recent arrival in the United States of Sir Walter Citrine, secretary of the British Trade Union Congress, largely for the purpose of promoting this international labor solidarity.

Murray indicated that thus far the C. I. O. is prepared only to explore possibilities and would not commit itself to any definite line. Recently, however, Matthew Woll, an A. F. of L. vice president and one of the federation's leaders, indicated that despite military collaboration between Russia and America, there was still no reason for labor cooperation.

Murray, in discussing a resolution urging C. I. O. and A. F. of L. cooperation, touched upon the Russian situation, which was later taken up by resolution.

It should consider it a source of pride to join with other free trade union movements in preparing a joint program on the economic front with the nations united with America on the political and war fronts," Murray said.

"I hope to move forward shoulder to shoulder with the unions of all the United Nations," Murray announced that he had called a meeting of the C. I. O.'s international executive board for Wednesday, June 3, in Washington to discuss issues arising from the war.

Seattle Pastor Accepts Call to National City

The Rev. Dr. J. Warren Hastings, pastor of the University Christian Church of Seattle, Wash., has accepted a call to the pulpit of National City Christian Church, Thomas Circle, N. W., in Washington, D. C., it was learned last night.

He will take over his duties in the near future.

Dr. Hastings, whose Seattle church is among the largest in the Disciples of Christ brotherhood, will succeed the Rev. Dr. Raphael Harwood Miller, who resigned last November 2 to become editor of The Christian Evangelist, a weekly publication of the Disciples of Christ.

Native of Baltimore, Md., Dr. Hastings served in the Navy in World War I. He holds degrees from Lynchburg (Va.) College, Yale University Divinity School and the University of Edinburgh, Scotland. He served pulpits in Virginia and Georgia before going to Seattle.

The one million dollar National City Christian edifice to which Dr. Hastings will come as new pastor was built in 1930 by subscriptions of Disciples of Christ members from all over America. John Russell Pope was its architect. It was dedicated October, 1930, during the World Disciples' convention here.

Cab Company Head Guilty Of Tax Evasion

Baltimore, May 20 (AP)—A United States District Court jury today convicted Herbert Glassman, president of the Sun Cab Co., and Joseph I. Zucker, accountant and a university instructor in accountancy, of tax evasion charges. Both are Washingtonians.

Glassman was convicted on a five-count indictment accusing him of evading payment of nearly $50,000 in Federal income taxes between 1934 and 1938 and Zucker was convicted of aiding and abetting the cab company head.

Although the jury found the two defendants guilty of evasion in connection with income from some sources and innocent of evading taxes on income from other sources, Judge W. Calvin Chesnut ruled the jury's finding equivalent to a verdict of guilty on every count against each defendant. There was no objection by defense counsel to this ruling.

Counsel for the two men asked Judge Chesnut to defer sentence for one week to permit them time to "straighten out their affairs." The request was granted. Glassman was released on $20,000 bail and Zucker in $2500 bail pending imposition of sentence.

The jury deliberated two hours. It found that taxes on income from rebates on gasoline sold to taxicab drivers had been evaded by Glassman and that Zucker had aided and abetted. Glassman was found guilty of evading taxes on income from rebates on the purchase of new automobiles but the jurors found Zucker took no part in this evasion.

Both men were convicted in connection with evasion of taxes on income from insurance commissions; Glassman was convicted of evading tax in income from sale of used cars and Zucker was cleared in this connection, and Glassman was found guilty of evading tax in income received through pay roll padding. Zucker was found innocent of aiding him in this phase.

Both men were found innocent of evading tax on income allegedly received through life insurance premiums.

The trial took eight days. Four indictments charging tax evasion against Edward C. Ostrow, treasurer of the Sun Cab Co., the Sun Cab Co., and the District Underwriters, Inc., are still pending.

President Roosevelt yesterday asked Congress to increase by 67 per cent the Civilian Conservation Corps' 1943 budget estimates he submitted last May 4.

In the face of strong sentiment in both houses for elimination of the agency that in the height of the depression gave employment to hundreds of thousands of youths, the President asked Congress to add $31,717,000 to CCC funds starting July 1.

$6 Million in All Asked

The President's new request moved the agency's 1943 estimates up to a total of $89,818,000. On May 4, Mr. Roosevelt told Congress the agency would need $41,101,000 for the next fiscal year. He asked at the same time that $49,729,000 be appropriated for war-industry training of 400,000 men and women under the National Youth Administration, which also has been tagged for elimination in an economy drive led by Senator McKellar (Democrat, Tennessee), and other members of Congress.

In submitting the new estimates, the President proposed upward revision of his May 4 schedule for reduction of the number of CCC camps. There were approximately 600 camps in existence on that date. Mr. Roosevelt proposed to reduce the number to 300 in July, 250 in August, 200 in September and 150 throughout the remainder of the fiscal year. The President now proposes, he said, to maintain the CCC on a 350-camp basis for the full fiscal year.

Objection Reported

Objection had been raised in some quarters. It was reported, that the President's original CCC camp schedule would involve a disproportionate drop in the number of camps. The original camp schedule called for an average of 175 camps for the year. It was pointed out. With an additional appropriation of about 67 per cent of his original estimates, the President's new schedule could obtain an additional 175 camps.

In his May 4 estimates, Mr. Roosevelt proposed to confine CCC activities to "wartime" preservation of forests and other natural resources. By increasing the number of camps contemplated, the President said yesterday, the CCC will be able to continue its work on military reservations.

Veterans' Staff To Start Moving To N. Y. Saturday

Transfer of the finance and insurance sections of the Veterans' Administration to New York City, which will remove 1000 employees from the crowded Washington, will begin Saturday. The Public Buildings Administration of the Federal Works Agency announced yesterday. The major portion of the agency will remain in Washington.

"The work of the Veterans' Administration has increased many fold since the war," Commissioner of Public Buildings W. E. Reynolds said. "The removal of the two divisions will provide space for the expanded program."

The Veterans' Administration plans to take only 1000 employees to New York and then recruit, locally, one or two thousand additional employees that are expected to be necessary to carry on the functions of the two sections.

Motor trucks will transport the equipment and the household furnishings of the affected employees. The moving will be done in four sections as follows: May 23, 24 employees; May 30, 500; June 6, 100, and June 13, 100.

today. The Chinese looked to the rain as an ally which might fill the roads with landslides, wash out the bridges, leaving Japanese camps with malaria and hold up for movement. The Japanese, however, through the mountainous, sparsely populated southwestern zone.

Allied Planes More Active

(The All-India Radio, heard in London, said the Allied air offensive in Burma was growing in severity. British troops were maintaining gallant rearward action, it added. Chinese forces in Burma were inflicting heavy losses in continuous contact with the enemy.)

The American Volunteer Group said in a communique today that its planes had shot down or destroyed on the ground 56 Japanese planes in April and blown up 37 motor trucks.

Military observers in Chungking attached importance to the attempt of the Japanese to strike toward Changsha again because capture of the city would extend their control over the Canton-Hankow Railway, both ends of which are in their hands, and make possible an eastward drive into Kiangsi for a pincer movement against the large Chinese force now being attacked in Chekiang Province.

Japs Step Up Air Action

The Japanese stepped up air operations today, sending 24 planes to bomb Kweilin, capital of Wangsi Province, about 300 miles south-west of Changsha and an equal distance northeast of the French Indo-China border, the Central News Agency reported.

Other planes bombed and strafed widely ahead of the Japanese spearhead in Chekiang and Kiangsi, adjoining province to the west, where airfields and communications at Yushan, Chuchow and other points were attacked.

More than a dozen bombers aided the enemy in Chekiang to drive southward along five routes from Chuki, Fengkiao and other captured towns southwest of Hangchow toward Kinshu, main Chinese stronghold in the province, an Army communique said. Casualties were heavy on both sides in bitter fighting.

Maryland-D.C. A. F. L. Boosts Locals' Taxes

By the Associated Press

Hagerstown, Md., May 20.—Robert J. Buxbaum of Baltimore, taking office as president of the Maryland and District of Columbia Federation of Labor, told delegates to the thirty-seventh annual convention today that "you are the labor movement" and "I'll never let you down."

The convention adjourned this afternoon after electing 10 officers and voting to double the per capita taxes paid by the federation's 250,000 members in 200 unions to expand the organization's activities. The increase is effective July 1.

Buxbaum, a member of the plumbers local No. 48, Baltimore, and a federation organizer for two years, said the federation had attempted to "create some unity in labor" and added he "never saw such unity as was displayed at this convention."

He was elected by acclamation to succeed Joseph P. McCurdy of Baltimore, retiring from the presidency after 10 years in office to assume the presidency of the United Garment Workers of America.

"If I am able to accomplish half the things Joe McCurdy has done, I will believe in my heart that I have done a big job," Buxbaum told the 342 delegates.

6 Vice Presidents Named

The six vice presidents elected were: E. W. Butler, Teamsters' Union, Hagerstown; John Locher, Iron Workers Union, Washington; Paul W. England, Machinists Union, Cumberland; Charles B. McCloskey, Bakers Union, Washington; Carl Sholtz, Electrical Workers Union, Baltimore; and J. Kingston Howard, Motion Picture Operators Union, Baltimore.

Locher, England and Howard are incumbents.

Frank J. Coleman of Washington was reelected secretary and named delegate to the American Federation of Labor's convention. Robert Lester of Washington was reelected treasurer.

Vincent J. McHenry of Baltimore was named organizer, succeeding Buxbaum.

In other final actions, the delegates voted to change the date of the annual meeting from the third to the fourth Monday in May and adopted a resolution urging establishment of an education committee within the federation.

New Scale of Taxes

In voting to double the per capita tax paid by the organization's 200 local unions, the delegates adopted a resolution which declared the present taxes were "not sufficient to carry on properly the work of this federation in the manner that will render the most efficient service to its affiliated organizations."

Increases adopted were: From $2.50 to $5 per quarter for locals with up to 100 members.

From $3.50 to $7 per quarter for those with up to 200 members.

From $4 to $8 per quarter for those with up to 300 members.

From $5 to $10 per quarter for those with more than 300 members.

Capt. R. B. Fisher Of Marines Killed While Cleaning Gun

Capt. Robert B. Fisher, 45, U. S. Marine Corps Reserve, was accidentally killed Tuesday at 9:58 a. m. when his .45-caliber service automatic pistol was discharged as he cleaned the weapon in his living quarters on the first floor of Building 58, Navy Yard.

The bullet from the revolver entered his head under the left eye. He was pronounced dead by a service physician and a certificate of accidental death later was issued by the District coroner's office.

2 Defendants Collapse in N. Y. Slaying Trial; Third Provokes Laughs by His Story of Plot

By the Associated Press

New York, May 20.—Madeline Webb flung up her hands and cried out:

"I can't stand it, I can't stand it!" She had just seen Ell Shonbrun, her frail-looking sweetheart, collapse for the second time today in the courtroom where they both are on trial along with another man, John D. Cullen, in the robbery-slaying of Mrs. Susan Flora Reich.

Judge Jonah Goldstein called a second recess to permit Shonbrun to rest.

As Miss Webb followed Shonbrun out of the courtroom, her knees buckled and a woman attendant put an arm around her to keep her from falling. Staggering across the threshold to the anteroom where Shonbrun was waiting, she screamed, "Sweetheart, oh, my darling," in a shrill voice that carried throughout the courtroom.

Crammed With Melodrama

The eighth day of the trial was crammed with hysterical melodrama as the State's chief witness, Murray Hirschl, told and retold his story of how and why Mrs. Reich died, putting all the blame on the three defendants.

Hirschl, who is Shonbrun's uncle, is himself under indictment and due to be tried separately for Mrs. Reich's murder. He has admitted he turned state's evidence "to save myself," and he also has admitted to being a "thief" and a "liar."

Shonbrun, in one more of the day's many unscheduled speeches, moaned, "Oh, my poor mother!" Hirschl's testimony sometimes moved the courtroom spectators to laughter.

Suggested Honest Work

The witness had been relating conversations among the three defendants on the day preceding the murder. Detailed plans for the robbery of Mrs. Reich were made by Shonbrun at this time, Hirschl said.

"Did you say anything to discourage him?" Defense Counsel Jacques Bukenant asked.

"Well, I might have said, 'if you need money you ought to go to work,'" Hirschl replied, causing a wave of laughter.

Bukenant questioned the witness about the purchase of adhesive tape, wire and scissors—the tools with which the State claims the murder was accomplished. (Mrs. Reich's body was found bound with wire, gagged with adhesive tape, at the Hotel Sutton on March 4.)

The trial will be resumed tomorrow with Hirschl still on the stand.

Paying Off Debts

Recently President Roosevelt urged debt retirement as a feature of his anti-inflation program. This is easier said than done in view of present and prospective taxes. The advice can be applicable only to individuals and business firms fortunate enough to have a surplus left over after meeting their current obligations. A good deal of the surplus income that constitutes a potentially inflationary menace is now going into the hands of wage earners who are not overburdened with debt and not harassed by taxes. The individuals and businesses needing relief are the ones confronted by steadily rising taxes that cut into reserves required to pay off debts incurred during the depression period. A letter from a correspondent published today makes out a very strong case for relief of this class of debtors. While in our opinion our correspondent is asking for overliberal allowances, the principle for which he pleads is unquestionably sound.

It should be kept in mind that in urging relief for debtors there is no intention of "coddling" them, or encouraging inefficiency. But as former Governor Hobby of Texas pointed out to the Ways and Means Committee, many businessmen have gone into debt, believing with good reason that they would be able to repay creditors out of earnings within a given period of years. Their calculations have been completely upset, not through inefficiency or overoptimism, but because of huge war appropriations that have forced unforeseeably great increases in income tax rates. In such conditions it is only fair to the honest debtor to take cognizance of his difficulties. Furthermore, reasonable relief for debtors will mean fewer bankruptcies and, in the long run, more rather than less revenue for the Government.

Get There First!

The other night the German radio informed its customers that General Doolittle and his companions carried out their unexpected air raids on Tokyo and other Japanese cities "from the air base on Shangri-la." This squares accounts with the American newspaper which, on the basis of a postal cancellation, recently announced the safe arrival of American forces on the exotic soil of Sans Origine. Whoever it was (and it is said to have been nobody less than the Commander in Chief himself) that decided on the creation of the American air base at Shangri-la, it was an admirable piece of judgment. The big mystery, of course, is why the Japs with all their long and meticulous planning did not anticipate us and seize this vital base themselves in the opening days of the war.

All this, however, should serve to remind our general staff and other military experts how many other areas of vast strategic value have not been occupied by either side in this total and global war. What, for example, is our policy and purpose concerning the Isles of Cockaigne? Should this historic archipelago be seized by the enemy it would be a terrible and possibly fatal disaster. At the very least it would necessitate the complete revision of our whole war plan and our military organization. Conversely, these islands, if we occupy them first, will afford the best possible base for the launching of the much-discussed "second front" offensive.

And why, despite reports that it is virtually undefended, have neither British forces or our own ever attacked the seacoast of Bohemia, either from the water or from the air? Are we negotiating with the local authorities of the Island of Lilliput for the neutralization of shipping and the establishment of American forces of occupation to protect our vital interests in those waters? Or are we still trying to play the old game of appeasement? And, turning to the other theaters, is it certain that the next big Jap push will be against India or Australia and not against the provinces of Erewhon with their vast unexploited natural resources? And what about Houyhnhnmia, where the subtle and vicious Axis propaganda is said to have made great headway among the Yahoo tribesmen? Will it be the old, sad story of gittin' thar secondest with the leastest?

Meaney Case

We hope the Senate Judiciary Committee will heed the appeal of Governor Edison of New Jersey to withhold confirmation of Thomas F. Meaney as judge of the United States District Court. Mr. Meaney was the President's nominee. But Mr. Meaney is the President's nominee because Mr. Meaney is the candidate of Frank Hague, New Jersey's notorious boss. Thus the President has allied himself with the evil forces in New Jersey which Governor Edison is seeking to overthrow with courage and pertinacity. He should be on the other—Governor Edison's—side. For he must know that clean government will be impossible in New Jersey till the Hague machine has been destroyed.

It is said that the President found it necessary to appoint Hague's man in order to insure reelection of Senator Smathers, a consistent New Dealer. The excuse does not hold water. Mr. Meaney was one of four of Senator Smathers' recommendations, but the President ignored the other three, and nominated Hague's man. The nomination is clearly a mark of deference to Mayor Hague. In normal times the appointment would be bad enough, though, alas, it is of a piece with others in this Administration that have muddled the administration of justice. Today the action is reprehensible on other grounds as well. Politics, according to the President, have been adjourned for the duration. Here is an example of the President eating his own words with blatant partisanship. Moreover, we are fighting an enemy which is a kind of global Hagueism, for Mayor Hague is the enemy of the liberties in defense of which we have taken up the sword. He is the prize exhibit of what Bryce called the blot on our democracy, namely, our city machines. The Senate committee would be acting as keeper of the President's conscience by refusing to accept the nomination which has come from the President's pen.

Make Way For Subsidies

After rationing and price fixing—subsidies. The transition seems inevitable in the winding up of our free economy for the duration. But how far we should go in subsidizing persons who are put in difficulties by the new official edicts is a problem bristling with difficulties.

Rationing and price freezing are apt to be discussed largely from the viewpoint of their effect upon consumers. But it is the businessmen who are the chief sufferers from official edicts both for limiting the amount of certain goods that may be sold and for freezing sales prices. For example, the disappearance of oil tankers has necessitated resort to much more costly methods of transporting petroleum products. The industry, which is operating under ceiling prices fixed by OPA, complains that it is impossible to cover these increased costs without raising prices. So, to meet part at least of the operating deficits of the oil companies, the Government is said to be considering either subsidizing rail shipments of oil or else subsidizing the oil industry directly as an alternative to raising price ceiling levels.

Food manufacturers likewise complain that they are being squeezed between mounting costs of labor, agricultural products, and taxes, on the one hand, and fixed ceiling prices for processed foods, on the other hand. They ask, therefore, for postponement of the effective date of the ceiling order applicable to their products. Failing that, they may seek subsidies. The cases cited are merely random examples of maladjustments that are certain to be numerous under general price-freezing regulations.

Already a lot of money has been made available for subsidy and related purposes. The RFC's Defense Supplies Corporation has just set aside 150 million dollars for the purchase of new and used tires and tubes held by owners of automobiles. This announcement follows hard on the heels of legislation authorizing the RFC to buy or lend money on rationed commodities. Some 75 million dollars has been allotted to finance "frozen stocks" of new passenger tires and tubes held by manufacturers, jobbers and dealers.

These offers of aid are designed partly to relieve cases of special hardships and partly to assure conservation of materials sorely needed for prosecution of our war efforts. But they are only a foretaste of the demands for aid that will be forthcoming when the full effects of rationing and price-freezing orders become apparent. To this end the Senate Banking Committee has recommended an increase of five billion dollars in the RFC's borrowing power.

Unfortunately, each time the Government intervenes to alleviate cases of hardship by subsidies, loans, or other means, troublesome precedents are established of which other groups will be quick to take advantage. The moral appears to be that safety lies in maintaining an official hard-boiled attitude toward appeals for aid, except in instances of special hardship when refusal of assistance could be against the public interest.

For even our seemingly inexhaustible Treasury cannot make up by subsidies for the losses resulting from abandonment of a free economy. The most we can hope for is that the Government will act promptly to control production costs of labor and raw materials, and thus reduce business mortality from price fixing to the lowest possible terms. As Senator O'Mahoney, a member of the Banking Committee, aptly says: "It would be vastly preferable, more understandable and less likely to lead to unforeseen complications to adopt an all-over price-freezing policy affecting costs as well as selling prices."

Racketeering

President Green has put the A. F. of L. on record as opposed to enactment of the Hobbs bill which would amend the Federal antiracketeering law with a view to bringing labor unions within its scope. According to Mr. Green, the measure is "antilabor." Besides, he says, "there is no necessity for it." It would be interesting to know by what process of reasoning he arrives at such untenable conclusions. For there is nothing in the text of the bill aimed at honest law-abiding unionism. All it does is to make obstruction of interstate commerce by robbery or extortion a felony punishable by severe fines and imprisonment. Unless Mr. Green wishes to protect thugs who have operated inside the A. F. of L. from meeting their just deserts, he should not object to the Hobbs bill. Indeed, he ought to be urging passage of legislation to apprehend highwaymen and extortioners who have done such damage to the cause of reputable unionism.

Certainly there is no doubt about the necessity of legislation closing the gaps in the antiracketeering law. Those gaps were shown when the Supreme Court handed down an extraordinary decision last March holding that payments extorted by force and violence from out-of-town truckers by members of a teamsters' union were not covered by existing legislation. The court based its decision on a highly strained interpretation of a provision of the law which exempts "payments of wages by a bona fide employer to a bona fide employee." Just how a majority of the court arrived at the conclusion that payments to repudiated union representatives, obtained by beating or threats of beating, constituted bona fide wage payments is an unsolved mystery. That, however, is beside the point. The court has handed down a verdict that gives the green light to labor racketeers of the most vicious stripe. Thus the Federal antiracketeering act has become a dead letter so far as they are concerned. The purpose of the Hobbs bill is simply to make prohibitions against racketeering so explicit as to leave no room for sabotage of the law by judicial misinterpretation of its meaning.

Milestone In Radio

Speakers at the dedication of the Columbia Broadcasting System's "Network of the Americas" very properly hailed the occasion as a milestone in inter-American communications. This is true in a technical as well as a cultural sense. C. B. S. programs, broadcast from New York, will continue to be sent by short wave to Latin America. But 76 affiliated stations there will pick up the programs and rebroadcast them on long-wave frequencies. This, of course, will make possible a much wider Latin-American audience than heretofore. For the proportion of Latin-American radio sets which are equipped for adequate short-wave reception remains relatively small.

Obviously, as Mr. Rockefeller, the coordinator of Inter-American Affairs, remarked, we now possess an important new means of enlarging the circulation of truth. And the network of the Americas should, indeed, help to reveal the palpable untruths and distortions specially broadcast by the Axis for Latin-American consumption. But it is also intended that the C. B. S. programs shall help build up a community of common ideas and common moral objectives, of shared tastes and traditions. This, after all, is the major end in mind.

Such a goal can be achieved only when an interchange of broadcasts on an equal basis is established, when there is also a network of the Americas originating to the south of us. In time, no doubt, there will be such a network. Meanwhile, however, the C. B. S. programs will serve a worthy cause, if they promote a better understanding among our southern neighbors of what this country really stands for.

LULLABY FOR THE LOST CHILDREN
Sleep, O forsaken . . . Mute and pelted night
Sleep, O forsaken . . . Darkly hidden, sleep.
In dream your cheek be on the breasts of birds, be feathered wings laid close, no flight, no flight.

Come soundless dream and sheltering, deep,
Heal eyes that stare by day—no words, no words to tell—on loneliness; heal eyes that burn on fiery running seas of war and stretch upon enormous alien skies.

May love return before you waken, clothing you close as dark, no more, no more to fear. Till then, break joy on dreamy eyes, beneath dark boughs of night unshaken
by any wind, sleep, O forsaken . . .

Letters To The Editor

Debts And Taxes

As your editorials seem to carry great weight with the thinking people generally, I am taking the liberty of making a suggestion for editorial comment. If it meets with your approval, it will be very highly appreciated, and I believe will accomplish great good.

First, referring to the last radio address by President Roosevelt, he laid particular stress on advising people generally to get out of debt, specifically mentioning mortgages. Under our present tax laws even a business of moderate size can figure on paying at least 50 per cent of its profits on national income tax, aside from State and city taxes. This hardly leaves enough for normal expansion for any growing business. Then how is it going to be possible for businesses of moderate size that became overwhelmed in debt during the great depression to carry out the President's desire and do what every honest man wishes, a limit on the fixed tax deductible from income tax the same as is now accorded to donations to charity, up to 15 per cent? To prevent very large corporations from taking too much advantage of this by very large wholesale financing, a limit on the fixed tax deductible from income tax the same as is now accorded to donations to charity, up to 15 per cent? To prevent very large corporations from taking too much advantage of this by very large wholesale financing, a limit on the fixed tax deductible from income tax the same as is now accorded to donations to charity, up to 15 per cent?

This move would certainly be welcomed with open arms by creditors and would certainly have a very strong appeal to honest debtors who would prefer this method out of debt, rather than the road via bankruptcy. As it applies to mortgages, it would certainly have a stabilizing effect all over the United States.

Permanent Gasoline Rationing System

This letter is written by two school teachers who helped to ration gas last week and is based upon conversations with some hundred or so registrars from at least four different Washington schools. We wish to point out some weak spots in the gasoline rationing system which should be eliminated before a permanent system is adopted July 1.

We have four general suggestions: 1. The Rationing Board needs administrators with the foresight to visualize individual problems before they arise, and the patience to think these problems through, so that concrete, specific, practical rules may be formulated beforehand. These rules should be stated briefly and clearly, given to the registrars in sufficient time to be studied before the registration, and publicized widely by the press.

2. You cannot get uniformity and justice by telling the registrars (as we were told) "not to question any statements given by the applicants" nor by leaving so much to the individual judgments of several thousand registrars. Questions of mileage to work could be checked by a map committee in each building. Mileage during work hours could be checked by a statement from the applicant's superior and attached to the application blank. Inaccessibility to public transportation could be checked, if necessary, by an expert on local transportation facilities.

3. In each registration center a board of appeals was set up to pass upon questions too difficult for the individual registrars. Each board of appeals should be sure that all of its members apply the same policies. Means should also be assured for informing the registrars of decisions and for unifying the decisions in all the registration centers. (For example: Some schools granted mileage to college students and to defense workers; some gave X cards

All communications must carry the writer's name and address, though pen names are permitted at the editor's discretion. In fairness to other correspondents, letters should be held to 300 words. Letters are subject to condensation.

Transit Information

The thousands of residents of Washington and nearby communities who are now forced to rely on public means of transportation for their business or pleasure are thrown into utter confusion when faced with the complicated schedules and routes which the buses and trolleys follow in this city. Few blame the already overtaxed drivers for their curt replies in answer to simple questions, but their responses do little to clarify the transportation system of the city. The result is that many citizens continue to use their cars or to ride buses and trolleys which are far from convenient.

In the interests of the community, The Post could perform a valuable service if each day they published a map showing the routes and schedules of one line in the city, in nearby Virginia and Maryland. A transportation supplement would prove equally as serviceable. What are the starting points and terminals of the lines? When do express buses run? How does the system of transfers work? At what points do different lines cross so that passengers can ride to cross-country destinations in Maryland and Virginia?

This Post provides many useful services for the community, but at the present time none would be more gratefully appreciated than the publishing of bus and trolley routes and schedules with maps.

ROSALIND SALANT.

As Regards Taxes

We hear much lately about taking the surplus earnings of the low-salaried wage earners and converting them into defense production. Now, what we low-salaried Government employees are asking ourselves is where's the surplus? because we would like to find it.

The average low-salaried employee has no surplus, but a large collection of debts. Instead of living on his salary, he finds, at the end of the year, that he is many hundreds of dollars in debt, with obligations which he contracted before the war started and which he hoped to meet with his future earnings. Many of the obligations are of a very necessary character, such as doctor and dentist bills, installment payments on radios, automobiles, homes, household appliances, insurance policies, etc. Now he finds that his future earnings are to be taken up as a kick-back on his salary. He is in a quandary as to the right course to pursue. Is he to fulfill his obligations to his creditors and thus fail to pay his share of the war debt, or is he to convert his promised so-called "surplus" into war stock and thus default his commercial obligations? He cannot in justice do both.

We all know the tendency is to unload the entire burden of taxation to defray the expenses of the war on the little fellow in the lower brackets, because such a course meets with the least resistance and the bill is easily passed, but still, when all is said and done, the little fellow has a vote, too.

Harmful News

The American people do not want to feel that their Government is suppressing news which should be made public, but it does seem to me—and I find there are many who feel as I do—that our news men, in their efforts to give us "hot news," have been creating in the minds of the public a feeling of uncertainty about just what the Government is trying to do.

News about rationing has been confused and contradictory. We who are affected by these measures are willing and ready to do whatever is necessary, but surely it would be wiser not to issue any publicity until it can be accurate and final. The effect of the confused situation regarding the rationing of gas must be apparent to all.

Now, if ever, we need to feel that decisions made by our leaders are just and final, arrived at after careful deliberation. We do not want to be told contradictory stories by newspapers all over the country—purporting to be official statements, later to be contradicted. The feeling of uncertainty so created is playing directly into Axis hands.

News of petty jealousies, bickering and dissension emanating from our Capital does not make for unity in our Nation.

We need wise, just, unselfish leaders. If we do not have them, then we must find them.

Our Economic Mind

Due to easy installment payments and small loan companies, many Americans have become woefully in their economic thinking. The records of the sale of war bonds so far, proves that enforced savings will be necessary. More than 130,000 car owners registered for gas, but only 24,200 people bought bonds in the month of April. A lousy showing.

We have not seen the worst yet and will have to learn to take it without too much whining.

The Post Impressionist

Roman Holiday

"Amidst the monuments of the ancient power and the signs of the renewed empire I welcome you to the soil of Rome."

Standing on either side of the governor were standard-bearers dressed in the scarlet and gold costume first designed by Michael Angelo. Behind him was a life-size statue symbolic of Rome's founding, the she wolf with the mythical babes, Romulus and Remus. Torches illumined the crenellated towers of the city's encircling wall executing a 52-gun salute, artillery on top of the Aventine Hill boomed at minute intervals.

As the nobly born Italian finished his speech 13 open Victoria carriages, red-wheeled, with the royal monogram very small against the black door panels, moved off with stately measure down Avenue Africa. Each was drawn by six beautiful white horses whose nervous prancing kept taught the reins in the hands of scarlet-clad coachmen who carefully guided the spirited animals between double rows of soldiers, behind which were gathered curious but orderly crowds.

Victor Emmanuel III, King of Italy, sitting in a slightly hunched position as he grasped his too-large sword for support, was in the first carriage, and on his right hand sat the honored guest whom imperial Rome was welcoming with the majesty and dignity born of 3000 years of history—Reichsfuhrer Adolf Hitler. It was the 1d of May, 1938. The sun had just set and night was fast falling about the city.

The procession passed the Circus Maximus, where 20 centuries ago Augustus Caesar looked down from his palace on the Palatine to watch imperial carnivals and chariot races. Glowing luminously in the center of the ancient arena five large artificial fountains equipped with neon lights added a kind of mundane glory to the prestige of antiquity.

The great granite obelisk of Axum, a towering pillar of stone sacred to the tradition of the empire, marked the entrance to the Street of Triumph. Spanning its middle by the crumbling arches of a still standing section of the old Roman aqueduct, it contained the main reviewing stands. Here, beneath the flags of Rome and Italy, the swastika and black eagle of the Nazi Reich, and the black banner of fascism quietly waving in the flickering light of giant candelabra, the carriage, riding smoothly upon a specially prepared roadway of fine brown sand, moved in elegant file toward the entrance to the Colosseum—grand symbol of imperial Rome, but almost puny beneath the imposing bulk of the Colosseum.

This historic pile, best known and most revered veteran of Rome's turbulent centuries of history—winner of gladiatorial combats, aquatic sports, Christian martyrs, miracle plays and even bull fights—didn't fall the Fuhrer or its reputation for dazzling spectacle. A fiery red vapor issuing from thousands of sputtering railroad flares billowed from its top and sides, illuminating against the night sky the lines of the colossal architecture. Like a beacon it marked the entrance to the Way of Empire, the modern avenue which leads through the forums of ancient Rome.

Lying at the foot of the Palatine and the Campidoglio hills, the Roman valley once the center of Roman life, containing the market places where patricians and plebeians fought, generals held their triumphs, Cicero spoke, Caesar ruled, Horace meditated—the heart of a mighty empire until it fell before the onslaught of barbaric invaders—now provided passageway for the distinguished guest of the second empire, Herr Hitler.

Expertly illuminated, lights blazed from the vacant windows and doorways. Aided by giant reflectors on the outside, the long dormant beauty of the marble and granite structures seemed awakened, almost a living witness to their ancient magnificence.

Threading their way between great flaming tripods and 100-foot standards bearing the emblem of Roman legions, the coaches passed into Venice Square. To the left, its white marble lighted by hundreds of torches arranged to outline its great size, was the monument to Victor Emmanuel III, the King of Italy. To the right, the Quirinale Hill, the royal palace, in times past the lodging place of most of Europe's sovereigns. As the sleek, black carriages topped the crest of the hill and rumbled across the cobbled square to disappear through the palace gates, flowers were thrown by the excited, happy people.

Then it was that Adolf Hitler may have smiled. Perhaps the leader of modern Germany was thinking that on his first visit to Rome he had entered the Italian capital by the Ostiense gateway—the very same gateway in the ancient Roman wall by which a roving band of Goths had entered, burned and sacked the city a little over 900 years ago.

Boy's Death Spurs Chevy Chase Citizens to Act on Bus Terminal Hazards

1. LOOKING SOUTHWARD DOWN CONNECTICUT AVENUE from Chevy Chase Circle. To right is the embankment and trees (A) which would be cut down.

2. CLOSE-UP of the Chevy Chase bus terminal. According to police, Frances Hugh Immer, 7, was skipping on the south curb (X) when he was killed May 6

3. SAFETY ISLAND CROSS WALK (broken lines), designated lanes for buses and assignment of a Buckley committee's safety plan. (See map below)

Just two weeks after the death at Chevy Chase Circle of Francis Hugh Immer, 7, under the wheels of a Capital Transit Co. bus, an aroused citizens' group last night took constructive action to prevent a repetition of the tragedy.

A three-man investigating committee of the Chevy Chase Citizens Association proposed 18 reforms. Seven each affect the circle and the block below the circle, while four pertain to safety measures at the bus terminal, where the Immer child was killed.

They call for such precautions as "Stop" signs, crosswalks, closing of Oliver Street to traffic into Connecticut Avenue, a policeman to direct traffic at the terminal, slower speeds by entering and departing buses and guard fences within the terminal proper.

"To consider the problem from the angle of the bus terminal alone would serve to present but half the picture," said the formal report of the committee, headed by Frank Buckley. "Chevy Chase Circle long has presented a serious pedestrian hazard. Erection of the terminal aggravated and increased that hazard ten-fold.

"During the rush hours, automobiles pour around the circle at speeds dangerous to life and limb. Beyond one 'slow' sign which is headed toward the terminal, the circle is devoid of any device or instrumentality to slow down vehicular traffic or afford protection to pedestrians desiring to cross it.

"The fountain at the circle presents a particularly attractive playground for small children. The fact that there have been no fatalities when children cross through traffic at this point can be attributed more to Divine Providence than to any preventive measures adopted either by Maryland or District of Columbia officials.

"When the general situation was presented to traffic officials in the District and the urgent need of lights or other protective devices stressed, the statement was made that 192 other intersections in the District are more urgently in need of such devices."

To make Chevy Chase Circle safer for pedestrians, the committee asks:

1. Installation of a "Stop" sign by Maryland authorities for southbound traffic where Western Avenue and the circle intersect.

2. A white-lined crosswalk at the same point.

3. A "Stop" sign for northbound traffic at the Western Avenue-circle intersection leading toward Blessed Sacrament School (of which the Immer child was a pupil.)

4. Painting of white lines denoting a crossing from the above point to the circle.

5. A sign reading "Speed limit 20 miles per hour" to be placed at the Maryland approach to the circle.

6. A similar sign at the District approach.

7. Installation of a railing and sign below Patterson Street directing school children to cross Connecticut Avenue at McKinley Street.

The second set of recommendations, applicable to streets below the circle, called for:

1. A "Stop" sign in Connecticut Avenue at the Oliver Street intersection.

2. Crossing lines painted on the pavement from Oliver Street to the bus terminal, with a safety island in the middle of the avenue.

3. Designation of Oliver Street as one-way eastbound.

FRANCIS IMMER

4. "Requesting of District officials" to have the appropriate governmental authority trim the frontage of the undeveloped land adjacent to the northern end of the terminal, for a distance of 20 feet from the building line, and request the Chevy Chase Land Co., which is the owner thereof, to remove shrubbery and trees tending to block the view of the terminal from the north.

5. "No parking" signs at the curbs of the above land.

6. Temporary parking for discharging and taking on private passengers at the curbing immediately south of the terminal.

7. Assignment of a policeman at the terminal to direct traffic during school opening and closing hours.

In recognition of "haphazard pedestrian-crossing" at the bus terminal, the investigating committee urged:

1. Slower speeds by buses entering and departing from the station.

2. That the Capital Transit Co. dispatcher work from the front, not the back, of the terminal and that, if necessary, a second man be stationed there for accident prevention work.

3. White lines at the entrance and exit of the terminal to keep buses in designated lanes removed a safe distance from curbs and platforms.

4. Chains or fences at crossings within the terminal to prevent haphazard pedestrian crossing.

Citizens Approve Committee Report

Members of the Chevy Chase Citizens Association last night approved the report of the special committee that investigated traffic conditions in the vicinity of Chevy Chase Circle as the result of the death of Francis Immer, 7, under the wheels of a bus there.

The resolution, requesting a number of safety measures from Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer and the Capital Transit Co., was passed with only one dissenting vote, cast by H. V. Schriber, president of the association.

"There are three phases to the problem," Schriber stated before the vote was taken; "they are in engineering, which is the only one we have discussed here; in education of the public, and in enforcement. We must cooperate in all three." The association also passed on a motion to request additional funds for traffic investigation.

Line More Important Now in Clothes

Designer Predicts Better Styles From War Restrictions

By Jane Driscoll

TO VIRTUALLY every American designer, the current WPB rulings regarding feminine fashions are no limitation, but a challenge—a challenge to create originality, femininity and style with limited materials.

Not the least to take this attitude is former New York Designer Mrs. Leslie Morris who for 15 years designed at a famous Fifth Avenue style house, and has clothed screen and stage personalities, debutantes and society figures. Mrs. Morris is better known as "Leslie" at R. K. O. Radio Studios, with whom she recently signed as head designer, Subtle Lines.

Leslie hopes that the first result of this new order will be the proper emphasis on good line—those good, clean lines which designers and all clothes-conscious women know are the secret of any smart ensemble whether it is a suit or an after "5" dress. "Line," she points out, "does not necessarily involve yards of fabric. Line is subtlety, rather than mass—variations on a simple theme."

With line becoming so important, Leslie thinks these new rulings will mean a more simply dressed, therefore a better dressed—America. Specifically, she thinks that variety within these restrictions will be managed in any of several ways. It may be achieved by tiny tucks, pleats or stitching, all handled in new ways, "used in new places; by the use of color and color contrast; by striking hand-embroideries, crochets and applique ranging from modest decoration on daytime clothes to all-over effects for formal wear. Last, but not least, variety may be had with gay, novel accessories, with particular emphasis on hats.

Bright Accents

In a nut shell, Leslie says the ensemble of the future will be smart with simple lines—perhaps smarter than ever before. It will fit beautifully, because good lines must fit. It also will have a touch of color or a touch of something hand-made—not a reasonable facsimile thereof.

These predictions are already borne out in the clothes shown for summer wear. Surface interest in decorative embroideries is especially popular. Ingenuity as to line and drapery is seen in fastenings which make use of bows, loops and lacing, without benefit of zippers. Drapery and skirt fullness—namely the peg top—which formerly was created with yards of material, is now being accomplished on a minimum of 78 inches skirt away for daytime frocks.

Changed Colors
Enliven Room

If you're tired of your maple living room, why not try a new color scheme? One of the most delightful ones used recently by a New York decorator blended white, sky blue, deep green, gold and deep fuchsia pink in a most delightful way.

The walls were painted white, the ceiling sky blue. The sofa and large chair were covered in an interesting deep green cotton weave. Two smaller arm chairs were covered in a paisley-like early American chintz in gold, with thistle-like flowers in purple-pink and green. The curtains were home made of green and white checked gingham, and hung only to the sill.

Deep green shutters, decorated in Pennsylvania Dutch tulips and figures, hung on the inside of the windows as decoration.

TUNIC SACK SKIRT

No wonder it's a hit, for that new tunic length is just too becoming. Made of Rayon Faille... it's crease resistant, cool and crisp. Navy, beige, light blue, Kelly Green and Maroon. Crushed satin in contrasting colors.

Excellent Marine Chow Calls for 'Surveys'

"All you can eat" is the marine way of food. Chow may mean just grub to some, but to boys like Buck Pvt. Edward S. Greaux, Post Service Battalion, United States Marine Base, Quantico, Va., the

When this sun-tanned Marine called at The Post recently with "Sergeant" Jiggs 4th, official mascot of the Marines, who had been posing for the photographers, I asked Pvt. Greaux what food served at the Marine base he liked best. He answered, "Oh, all our food is very good; in fact, so good that 'survey,' which means a reorder, is constantly being called."

Inquiring what foods are included in the "very good" meals from breakfast to supper, I learned the following:

Breakfast—Two kinds of cereal, cooked (oatmeal) and ready-to-serve, like corn flakes, and bran flakes. Plenty of milk for cereal, topped with sliced bananas if desired. Most boys use sugar on cereal. Oranges are available. There are often flapjacks with sirup, French toast with molasses, bacon and eggs or ham and eggs, toast with jelly or jam, milk and coffee.

Dinner—Roasts, beef most frequently; chops—pork, veal or lamb; beef steaks, cole slaw, carrots, baked or mashed potatoes, spinach, radishes, salad, mixed pickles, raisin rolls, pumpernickel, white and whole-wheat bread, plenty of butter, cake, pie, ice cream on pie or cake, milk, coffee and iced tea.

Supper—Cold cuts, pork and beans, cottage cheese, potatoes, peas, string beans, stewed tomatoes, fish on Fridays, fruit salad, ice cream, milk, coffee or iced tea.

Screened Porch
Also Makes Room

When is a room not a room? When it's a screened-in porch with screens which can be removed entirely, or shuttered closely with bamboo curtains. South Seas style. This presto change effect is a feature of the veranda of the new valley home recently acquired by Lucille Ball and her husband, Desi Arnaz.

Entire southwestern corner of the house is a wide, deep veranda which can be opened wide to the winds or completely shuttered to make a room. It's furnished with grass matting for the floor, sunny bamboo furniture, a touch of color in the print upholstery, with hanging plants and vines on all the walls. Lots of sociable little tables with—at Desi's insistence—man-size ash trays.

In the house wall, a fireplace always set up for any game, from chess to gin rummy. A radio by a big easy chair—and please shoo off those friendly Cocker before sitting down!

Do Not Waste,
That Others
Will Not Want

By Ida Jean Kain

THE average American wastes enough food every day to feed another person—or so the surveys would seem to indicate—and with a good part of our food desperately needed abroad, we're going to have to stop that. And promptly.

Food is wasted in many ways. In restaurants it is often passed up because it has been cooked for so long that all taste, along with much of the vitamin value, has been lost. And in many cases the servings are too large. The slight of too much food takes away the appetite and part is uneaten.

It might be possible to work out a system to serve large and small portions, the large ones for men and the small ones for women. Or a choice might be left open between a large portion and a small one, with a second helping when desired.

There is already a trend toward less cooking, particularly of vegetables. But most vegetables would stand a better chance of being eaten if they were cooked for about half as long. The pressure cookers, in use in a good percentage of the restaurants, are doing a lot to popularize vegetables.

The home cook can save food by gauging the quantity according to the family appetite. For instance, there is often a serving of breakfast cereal left over. This is just thrown away.

Some housewives make a habit of saving little bits and dabs of leftovers because they can't bear to throw anything away. They save the food, but they don't use it—and later on they throw it away with a perfectly clear conscience. No leftover should be kept more than two days. Within that time, your ingenuity should suggest some good way of using it.

Small amounts of leftover meats can be ground up, mixed with rice or bread crumbs, and used as a stuffing for peppers. And you can make a heavenly hash of leftover meat, potatoes, green pepper and practically anything else.

It is certainly wasteful to throw away the liquid in which vegetables are cooked. In that way some of the most important nutrients are discarded. It is just as wasteful to let tomatoes simmer away until vitamin C has gone. This spring serve more tomatoes than grilled ones. Next to citrus fruits, tomatoes are your richest source of vitamin C. And serve raw cabbage frequently, for the same vitamin-try coleslaw with peanuts liberally mixed in. Or try raw cabbage and fresh or canned pineapple. As a salad, this combination can't be beaten—and there you have two foods rich in vitamin C.

As long as other people throughout the world are suffering from a lack of food, it is a crime for us to be wasteful. You may say we can't feed them anyway—but we're going to have to do what we can. There is no doubt that more and more food will be shipped out of this country. To keep this from being a hardship, we have to be saving.

Of Clothing

Hollywood—Have you ever heard remarks passed among your friends similar to this: "When I saw that dress on the model in the store window, I thought it was the most divine outfit I'd ever laid eyes on. Yet on her, and with such a lovely face, it's not the least bit becoming."

It is more than likely that you have. But have you analyzed the reason behind such comment? If you haven't, Orry-Kelly, Warner Brothers designer, has. He feels certain that the posture, the carriage and the walk of a woman either enhance the beauty of her dress or destroy it entirely.

"I could put draped sack-dock-tenseness in two days," says Orry-Kelly, "and I would appear beautiful. That girl is grace personified. When she walks, the line of her body is as straight as though she had an invisible cord running from the center top of her head straight to the floor. Yet there is no tenseness in her movements—they are relaxed and flowing."

The importance of good posture, carriage and smooth walking cannot be too firmly stressed if you want to look lovely in your clothes. Clothes should not detract from you, as a person, but should seem a part of you.

"The old trick of walking with a book balanced on your head," concludes Orry-Kelly, "is a tried and true one. If you can keep that same feeling of having a book on your head when you walk—after you have removed it—you may feel fairly certain that you carry yourself well and walk gracefully."

Now's the Time
To Store Clothes

Just at this time, when protecting clothing against moths is a subject on nearly every woman's mind, it is worth while to point out that rayon dresses and suits are immune to moths and therefore require no protection against this common pest. This is of special interest now, since there is a shortage of Japanese camphor and some of the other commonly used moth deterrent substances.

If you are putting away winter dresses or suits made of 100 per cent rayon or spun rayon, you need simply make sure that they are clean and then store them away without any further precautions. No moth balls are needed. It should be pointed out, however, that a number of women's dress and suit fabrics are made of spun rayon blended with wool. Because of the wool content, it is best to treat these fabrics as though they were all wool and put them away protected by one of the good moth preventives.

Woman Dipsomaniac With Obscene Tongue Has Formed Habit of Bargaining In on Young Couple, When Drunk; How Prevent This, for Children's Sake?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I wonder if you can help me with a problem which, while it has its humorous aspect, nevertheless has serious implications also. A woman who is a former business associate (but not a friend) of my husband's is making herself something of a nuisance. She is a dipsomaniac, who has attached herself to us for some unknown reason. For a time her attentions consisted solely in telephoning our home at inopportune moments and taking up my time with diatribes against mutual acquaintances—while I was carefully noncommittal.

Now she is coming to the house. We have two small children, aged 5 and 8. Our friend's vocabulary varies from the blasphemous to the downright obscene, depending upon the amount of liquor she has consumed. Our youngsters neither understand drunkenness nor comprehend the conversation entirely, but they do look askance at her performance. When she is there I send the children out—a procedure which bewilders them, since they are accustomed to being in and out about their own business when more welcome guests are present. Both my husband and I have told the lady in unequivocal terms the reason for this, but to no avail.

Until today we have always been forewarned of her visits, with the result that we managed either to head them off or to make reasonably sure that we could handle the situation, which meant, among other things, making sure that no other friends would be present. Today, however, she arrived unannounced, with a gentleman whom she had picked up in some bar! Let me say, at this point, that the lady has a good background and, when sober, is perfectly charming and pleasant to have about. Also, despite her performance, she still has friends in many places. I genuinely like her and honestly should not care to hurt her, if such can be avoided.

However, I feel we must call a halt on these visits; yet my husband and I are uncertain how to do it without resorting to sledgehammer tactics. Which, I may add, we shall employ, if driven to it; because I will not have my home turned into a resort for drunks. The lady is given to mentioning names in the various bars she frequents; and moreover, she has a deserved reputation for her vitriolic tongue; so that we might be in for some unpleasantness if we offended her.

But the influence upon the children of drunken associates is obviously undesirable; not to mention the consternation that would be aroused amongst the neighbors if they should overhear the lady's drunken conversation—which is not improbable, with windows open in summertime. I feel a bit silly not to be able to cope with the problem on my own, but I have never been faced by such a situation before, and thus feel the need of disinterested advice. What do you think we should do? Sincerely, B. W. P.

Take Bull by Horns
In Ending Imposition

DEAR B. W. P.: I suggest this method of coping with the situation: At the earliest negotiable date, when the lady is thoroughly sober and not too recently ravaged by a drinking bout, have her come to your home for dinner, to spend a quiet evening with the family—explaining there is a matter of importance to both that you wish to discuss with her in confidence. When the children have been put to bed (perhaps with her assistance, which you might pleasantly invite), settle her comfortably in the choicest seat in the living room, serve a portion of light wine to all (primarily as a precautionary nerve tonic for her) and then get down to the business of the meeting.

After some amiable, inconsequential discourse of the customary after-dinner variety, you simply must take the bull by the horns, by saying to her, in effect: "Lucy, I hope this is not going to be too horribly difficult for all of us, and I wish with all my heart that we didn't have to face it. But we must. It's about the children—and your drinking. As I hope you know—in fact, I'm sure you do know—we're very fond of you, but we're greatly worried

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problem. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Play Clothes Go Feminine

Hollywood, Calif.—Playclothes go feminine this summer. Not to be outdone by the stress on femininity in dresses, coats and hats, playsuits, swimsuits, patio and lounge pajamas accent provocative coloring, less tailored lines.

In Warner Bros.' production, "Across the Pacific," Milly Anderson has designed a softly feminine pajama and robe ensemble for Mary Astor. A full flowing robe of Nile green silk tops full-trousered pajamas of yellow silk. The jacket of the pajamas is appliqued on one shoulder and sleeve with palm leaves in shades of green, brown and yellow.

Famous Sculptor Is Guest of Honor at Party Given by Mr. and Mrs. Hoffman

BUSHY-BEARDED Jo Davidson, who has won acclaim as the outstanding "plastic historian" of our time, took over a sizable share of Washington's social spotlight yesterday afternoon when he was guest of honor at an "after 5:30" party given by Mr. and Mrs. F. Burrall Hoffman.

Jo Davidson

The famous sculptor and his wife arrived here a few days ago and are staying at the Washington Hotel. Tomorrow will find them en route back to New York, and from there they will go to their studio home in Bucks County, Pa. Yesterday's fete in his honor drew a number of social Washingtonians and a scattering of diplomats and out-of-towners to the Hoffman home on Massachusetts Avenue. Guests were invited in, specifically, to meet Jo Davidson. They lingered to admire his most recently finished work, a bas-relief of Mrs. Hoffman; to chat with Mrs. Davidson, the former Florence Lucius, whom the sculptor married last year in Caracas and who is an artist in her own right, and to enjoy the pleasant party generally.

There was no formal unveiling of the bas-relief ("Heavenly forbid!" cried the hostess), but every guest had ample opportunity to view the sculpture, and to comment about it to his heart's content. Surveying Jo Davidson's work was not a new experience for several guests at yesterday's party. Practically everybody in Washington has seen his busts of Robert M. La Follette, Sr., and Charles G. Dawes, which now have places of honor in the Capitol rotunda. A few guests mentioned the famous Davidson bust of Marshal Foch, which was at Versailles at the beginning of the German occupation.

SOMEbody REMEMBERED that upon finishing his sculpture portrait of the President a few years ago, Jo Davidson had said he found Franklin Roosevelt "a distinctly disturbing person because he has no eccentricities." At the same time, he had added, "The President is truly a great man."

Mr. Davidson should know, for among those who have sat for him in the past quarter of a century are the outstanding men of the world. The list reads like an abbreviated "Who's Who" of the universe, and includes such famous persons as General Pershing, Woodrow Wilson, Bernard Shaw, Gandhi, Rabindranath Tagore, Georges Clemenceau, and hundreds of others. His first big-league commission came in 1918 when he went to Europe to make bronze busts of all the allied World War leaders.

Since then, he has essayed the task of doing a number of portraiture series, including those completed in Loyalist Spain, and the busts of all Latin-American Presidents, which he finished not long ago. ALTHOUGH HE is a frequent visitor to Washington and is widely known here, Jo Davidson's appearance in a Capital drawing room invariably creates a sensation. His graying beard, massive head and eyebrows that meet over a bulbous nose attract attention in any crowd. I remember that, at the mammoth reception Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Davies gave in January for the Soviet Ambassador and Mme. Litvinoff, Mr. Davidson came in the door with at least a dozen other guests. Yet, within five minutes time, every eye in the throng was turned toward him, and everybody who didn't know him was asking who he was.

Jovial and loquacious, Mr. Davidson is an ideal "lion" for any party. He talks easily and well on any subject you can mention; and he has quite a flair for sprinkling sententious statements through his conversation. "What I am today I may not be tomorrow," was how he once summed himself up. "But all I know is that, thank God, I am alert at the moment."

He certainly was that yesterday, as guests at the party clustered around him, piled him with questions, and were highly entertained by his peppery and picturesque answers.

Also a center of attention was Lady Mendl, who arrived with her Washington hostess, Mrs. Albert Dewey, and spent most of the time renewing friendships with Capitalites whom she had formerly known, and in some cases, entertained either in Paris or in her beloved Villa Trianon in Versailles.

INCREDIBLE AS-IT-MAY-SEEM DEPT.: A Washington hostess, recently asked by a reporter if she would mind giving out for publication her dinner guest list, came forth—not with the list, but this stark statement:

"I feel that it would be a breach of public trust to give out a guest list of a private dinner . . . in times like this."

And, believe it or not, she was not trying to be funny.

Marcia Moldauer To Be Married

Mrs. Albert Moldauer announces the engagement of her daughter, Marcia Moldauer, to Howard S. Bizar of Jersey City, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bizar. Miss Moldauer attended George Washington University and Mr. Bizar is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin, received his master's degree from New York University and is now a student at the Casey Jones Institute of Aeronautics. The wedding will take place in the early summer.

Mrs. Townsend Honored by Mrs. Carr

Perennially popular Mrs. Lawrence Townsend, in Washington for a brief visit, is finding her party calendar as crowded as would be expected. Arriving here a couple of days ago from Florida, where she and her husband have been spending the winter, Mrs. Townsend is stopping over for a brief visit with Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Carr.

Mrs. Townsend will leave tomorrow by train for Schenck Lake, N. Y., where she will join her husband at their summer home in the Adirondacks. Since Mr. Townsend did not come to Washington with her, or rather did not stop off here, men were ruled out entirely when Mrs. Carr entertained at tea-time yesterday for her house guest.

From 4 to 6 o'clock, however, a large number of Mrs. Townsend's friends, who formerly were among those regularly present at her famous morning musicales at the Mayflower Hotel, called to greet her and Mrs. Carr. Among those who took their turns at pouring tea were Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, Mrs. Edward Keating, Mrs. George Thorpe and Mrs. William Barrett Ridgeley. A profusion of roses in full bloom added a fragrant and seasonal note to Mrs. Carr's lovely garden, which was in full view of the dining room. Inside, however, white iris, with golden centers, decorated the tea table, which was lighted with towering yellow tapers.

One more party will accent Mrs. Townsend's calendar before she leaves. Mrs. George Thorpe will be hostess at tea in honor of the visitor this afternoon. A number of other friends of Mrs. Townsend have asked for the privilege of entertaining in her honor, but she has kept her Capital calendar well under control, having previously arranged with Mrs. Carr that no luncheons or dinners be arranged in her honor.

Doris Becker and Ensign Shaw Feted By Hardesters

Miss Doris Becker and her fiancé, Ensign Allen W. Shaw, were guests of honor last evening when Mr. and Mrs. John Hardester, Jr., entertained at their home in Alexandria.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas R. Smith, also of Alexandria, will be hosts tomorrow afternoon in honor of Miss Becker and Ensign Shaw, and on Saturday Mr. and Mrs. Allen J. Krebs will fete the couple at cocktails, followed by a dinner at their home on Macomb Street.

Miss Constance Knowles of Atlanta, who will be Miss Becker's maid of honor and only attendant at the wedding on May 30, will arrive Saturday to take part in the final round of pre-nuptial parties planned for the bride-elect and her fiancé.

Gen. Phillipson And Wife Expected In Capital Soon

Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Irving J. Phillipson will leave New York shortly for Washington where General Phillipson will take over a new post. He has been in command of the Second Corps Area of the United States Army.

Mrs. Phillipson is being widely feted in New York before her departure for the Capital. Among the parties given in her honor was the luncheon on Tuesday at which Mrs. Rudolph Benet-Bernatschke entertained in the Vienne Roof of the St. Regis. Among the guests at the luncheon were Mrs. Pierre C. Carter, Mrs. Ector O. Munn, Mrs. Willis H. Booth, Mrs. M. Orme Wilson, Mrs. Julius Ochs Adler, Mrs. Harris Fahnestock, Mrs. Joseph E. Ridder, Mrs. Murray Whiting Ferris, Mrs. David Bandler and Mme. Frances Alda.

Parties Planned For Ruth Warren

A number of parties have come and gone, and more are on the way for Miss Ruth Warren, bride-elect of Dr. Charles William Cole. Miss Warren, who is the daughter of David H. Warren of East Orange, N. J., is now in the midst of plans for her wedding June 6 which will take place in the evening at All Souls' Memorial Church, followed by a reception at Martha Washington Seminary.

Miss Margaret Hoyt is planning a bridge party for just the bride-to-be May 27, while the date of June 4 has already been spoken for by Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Brooks, who will entertain at a supper at their home in Bethesda. The dinner after the wedding rehearsal the next evening will be given at Normandy Farms by Miss Marjory Hendricks.

Dr. Warren is the son of Mrs. Charles Sumner Cole and the late Dr. Cole. His fiancée will have three attendants when she walks down the aisle in June. Her maid of honor will be Miss Doris Little, while bridesmaids will be Miss Mary Pearson and Mrs. James Littlepage of Richmond, Va. Miss Little was hostess recently at a elect.

Marriage Announced
Mrs. Nelle W. Sinel of Washington announces the marriage of her daughter, Dolores Jeanne, to Sergt. James V. Carville, U. S. M. C., on Saturday, May 16, at the Rectory of the Church of St. John the Evangelist, Syracuse, N. Y.

Guests 'Sing For Supper' At Hurja Home

At another of their gayly informal "Sing for Your Supper" parties, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Hurja entertained a number of friends last evening in their home on Forty-fourth Street.

Guests of honor were Mrs. Arthur Vandenberg, who recently returned to Washington after spending most of the past season in her Michigan home; and Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Otis Wingo, whose wedding took place here last month. The former Eleanor Bunker, daughter of Rear Admiral and Mrs. Charles W. C. Bunker, and her husband recently returned from their wedding trip.

Starting off as a buffet supper, the party ended up—as parties usually do at the Hurja home—with all the guests who could carry a tune, and all the others too—gathering around the piano to sing while Dr. Kurt Hetzel played.

The guest list, made up largely of mutual friends of the guests of honor, was headed by the Ambassador of Turkey and Mme. Ertegun; the Minister of Finland, Hjalmar Procopé; Senator and Mrs. Vandenberg; Senator and Mrs. Charles McNary, Representative Edith Nourse Rogers, Representative Hutton Rogers, Representative and Mrs. Charles Dewey, the Spanish Agricultural Attache and Senora de Echegaray, and Lieut. P. H. B. Otway-Smithers of the British Embassy.

Mrs. Truxtun Beale Gives Dinner for The de Bachs

Mr. and Mrs. Henry de Bach, who are in Washington for a few days, and are staying at the Fairfax, were guests in whose honor Mrs. Truxtun Beale entertained at dinner last evening.

Mr. de Bach once served as secretary of the Imperial Russian Embassy here before the first World War. In more recent years, he has achieved success as a portrait painter. He and his wife have been making their home in New York since they came to this country from France some time ago.

According to present plans: Mr. and Mrs. de Bach will be here until Sunday, and a number of fetes for them will accent the Washington calendar between now and then.

D. H. Couden and Bride To Live in New York

Nineteen Fifth Avenue, New York, will be the address of Sergt. Donald H. Couden, United States Army, and his bride, the former Miss Margaret Frances Thompson, when they end their brief honeymoon trip.

Mrs. Couden is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene E. Thompson of Chevy Chase. The ceremony was performed in New York City May 16 with the family and a few close friends present.

The bride attended Mount Vernon Seminary and George Washington University. Sergeant Couden joined the Seventh Regiment of New York in 1940 and is now serving with the 207th Coast Artillery.

Rain Fails To Dampen Red Cross Fete

Though a green-striped orange canopy stood in wistful emplots on the rain-drenched grounds of the Morris Cafritz house yesterday, the "garden party" for the benefit of the District Red Cross Motor Corps moved indoors and went on as scheduled yesterday afternoon.

Threatening clouds failed to keep the hundreds of guests at home, for they had come to do their bit for the benefit, ride in the Red Cross ambulances that shuffled back and forth the length of Foxhall Road, meet screen star Dorothy Lamour, hear impersonator Sheila Barrett, and watch the Garfunkel fashion show.

Miss Mabel Boardman and Mrs. Jesse Jones sat in a love seat at one side of the living room to watch the performances, and during the bridal fashion parade, Miss Boardman deftly caught the bouquet thrown by the "bride." Mrs. Jones wore her own "bouquet" of defense stamps, to which she has been adding for some weeks.

A receiving line formed in the early part of the afternoon that included Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, Mrs. Stanley Reed, Mrs. Jones, Mrs. James Forrestal and Miss Boardman. Guests wandered through the spacious house and through the gardens that torrential rains had left unspoiled. The bar became a "cookie bar" where dozens of varieties of cookies were temptingly displayed, and large bowls of punch were set up in both the house and gardens.

Mrs. William Borah wandered across the lawn to admire the flower beds, while Mrs. Laurence F. Arnold picked a full-blown rose and explained to friends around her that she had permission to do so. Red Cross uniforms were there in profusion and their wearers were kept busy explaining which branch of the service they were in and how you could tell it from their shoulder markings.

Senator and Mrs. Robert Reynolds were among the late arrivals as were Miss Neddena Hutton and Miss Ruth Hurley who came in together. Mrs. John Tolan told Mrs. Frank Buck that she was going home to California in a short time to spend the summer months there, and Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin explained to friends, who demanded where she had been recently, that she had just returned from a sojourn in New York.

A few among the hundreds that attended the fete were Brig. Gen. F. R. Keefer, Mrs. Lionel Atwill, who had with her Miss Maria Quezon, the daughter of the Philippine President; Mme. Hurban, Minister, who chatted with Mme. Fotitch, wife of the Yugoslav Minister; Mrs. Atherton Richards of Honolulu; Mrs. H. R. Thurber, Mrs. George May, Mrs. Thomas A. Wadden, and dozens and dozens of others.

Mrs. Grenville Emmet Leaving Next Month

The throes of packing and planning for summer travels is filling the daytime hours for Mrs. Grenville T. Emmet, who plans to leave Washington and its approaching days of heat on June 1.

She will go to New York, but from there on the plans are still vague, although she mentioned the possibility of Newport. In the midst of her trip preparations, however, she found time yesterday to have five friends to join her for luncheon at her home.

Douglases Honored at Dinner

Associate Justice of the Supreme Court William O. Douglas and Mrs. Douglas were guests of honor last evening at a dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Homer Hendricks at their home in Hampden Lane.

Lady Mendl Guest of Honor At Dinner

In compliment to Lady Mendl, who arrived from New York on Tuesday, to visit them for a few days, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dewey entertained at dinner last evening in their Georgetown home. The party was one in a series honoring Lady Mendl, who will leave tomorrow for Williamsburg, Va.

On Lady Mendl's schedule yesterday was the luncheon at which Representative and Mrs. Charles Dewey entertained in their home on Capitol Hill.

Last evening's party, planned as a garden fete, had to be shifted inside because of the weather; but guests, as usual at springtime events in Washington, wandered outdoors during the latter part of the evening.

The guest list included the Belgian Ambassador and Countess van der Straeten-Ponthoz, the Polish Ambassador and Mrs. Ciechanowska, Justice and Mrs. Stanley Reed, Justice Frank Murphy; Representative and Mrs. Charles Dewey, who went on later to the party given by Mr. and Mrs. Emil Hurja; the British Counselor and Mrs. F. R. Hoyer Millar; the British Military Attache, Col. Rex Benson, and Mrs. Benson; Air Commodore H. N. Thornton of the British Embassy and Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Besmont Nesbitt.

Also in the group were Mrs. James Clement Dunn, Maj. Pierpont Morgan Hamilton, Mrs. Kent Legare, Mr. and Mrs. David Finley, Mrs. Arthur Fowler, Percy Blair, Mrs. Richard McCreery, Comdr. William D. Thomas, Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, Hugh D. Auchincloss, Frederick Hibbard, former United States Counselor of our Embassy in Portugal, who will leave shortly for his new post in Monrovia; Mr. and Mrs. F. Burrall Hoffman, Mrs. Leo d'Eranger, Mrs. John Ryan, James Mitchell, Dr. W. Dudley, Miss Nancy Weller and her fiancé, Peter Dewey, and Miss Hilda West and John McMullin, who accompanied Lady Mendl to Washington.

Mrs. Wallace Is Honored

Honoring Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, wife of the Vice President, Mrs. James H. Hughes, wife of the Senator from Delaware, entertained at luncheon yesterday at her home on Harrison Street. Guests were seated at small tables around the verandas and sunporches, and the house was decorated with a profusion of red roses.

Other guests included were Senora de Castillo Najera, wife of the Mexican Ambassador; Mrs. Ralph William Close, wife of the Minister of South Africa; Mme. Zadelis, wife of the Minister of Lithuania; Mme. Bilmanis, wife of the Minister of Latvia; Mrs. Carter Glass, Mrs. Burnett R. Maybank, Mrs. Peter Golet Gerry, Mrs. Claude Pepper, Mrs. John Overton, Miss Pauletta Guffey, Mrs. Conger Pratt, Mrs. Lionel Atwill, Mrs. Charles B. Drake, Mrs. W. J. Hayes, and Mrs. McKenzie Davison.

Also Mrs. Walter Wyatt, Mrs. Edward R. Walton, Mrs. Neilah King, Mrs. Walter Digsum, Mrs. W. G. Layman, Mrs. Frederick Richardson, Mrs. Daniel O. Wolcott, Mrs. Owen Hydrick, Miss Florence Mortimer and Miss Lucy Mortimer.

Maxine Ott Is Engaged

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Lenwood Ott announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter Miss Maxine Ott to Orr Errey Reynolds, son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd W. Reynolds of Chevy Chase, Md. Mr. and Mrs. Ott, who are now residing in Washington, are formerly of Texas.

The bride-elect studied at Wilson Teachers College and is a graduate of Strayer's College. Mr. Reynolds is a graduate of Maryland University, where he was a member of Theta Chi Fraternity. The wedding will take place June 13 at 4 o'clock, at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church.

Crowded Pre-Nuptial Calendar For Miss Gloria Grosvenor

Plans for parties for Miss Gloria Grosvenor and her fiancé, Torfinn Ofteidal, Second Secretary of the Norwegian Embassy, are being made on all sides. The daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor will be a guest of honor a number of times before her wedding, June 1, at 5 p. m., in the garden of her parents' Bethesda home, Wild Acres.

Tomorrow afternoon, "after 5," Miss Marjorie Souby will entertain in honor of the soon-to-be-wed couple at a cocktail party in her apartment at 2101 Connecticut Avenue. Miss Polly Palmer and Miss Suzanne Kappler, will be co-hostesses at a 5 to 7 o'clock event at the Washington Club on Saturday, and that night Miss Laura Belle Wyatt will entertain at an "after 9 o'clock" fete in the Kalmia Road home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wyatt.

Next week the festivities will start out with the bridge-shower at which Mrs. Charles Marsh will be hostess on Monday. Miss Manneville Sullivan will entertain at a dinner at the Shoreham, Friday, May 29, at which the bride party will be guests and the next day Miss Grosvenor will give a buffet supper for the same group after the wedding rehearsal.

Miss Frances Boone will fete the bride-elect and her fiancé at a breakfast at the Toll House Tavern on Sunday, May 31, and that afternoon Miss Janice Hale and Miss Martha Colmetz will give a cocktail party for Miss Grosvenor and Mr. Ofteidal, whose wedding will take place the next day.

Miss Harman To Be Wed

Of interest to Washington is the announcement of Mr. and Mrs. Archer Harman of St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H., and Edgartown, Mass., of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Adele Harman, to Ensign Arnold Welles, U. S. N. R., son of the Undersecretary of State, Sumner Welles, and Mrs. J. J. Kerrigan of New York. Miss Harman was graduated from the Ethel Walker School, Simsbury, Conn., and studied in Munich and at Bennington College in Vermont. A member of the Junior League of New York, she made her debut in 1938. Ensign Welles was graduated from Groton School and Yale University. He is a grandson of the late Benjamin Welles of New York and of the late Horatio N. Slater of Boston.

Cuban Embassy Scene of Party On Anniversary

The Ambassador of Cuba and Senora de Conchoso received yesterday afternoon after 5 o'clock in commemoration of the declaration of the Cuban Republic in 1902. Guests were members of the embassy staff and their wives, and friends from the Cuban contingent in the Capital.

Yesterday marked the fortieth anniversary of Cuba as an organized independent nation. The southern republic's May 20, 1902, does not coincide with the United States' July 4, but rather with September 17, 1787, the date in our history when Congress ratified our Constitution.

Among the guests who dropped in to greet the Ambassador and his senora were the Mayor of Havana and Senora de Menocal, who are making an extended stay in Washington at the Shoreham Hotel.

From the Cuban "colony" here come to remark on their republic's fortieth birthday—after which life is supposed to "begin" for the human species, though republics have never been mentioned in this relation—were Dr. Oscar D. Albertini and Dr. Ramiro Guerra.

Just arrived from Havana were Francisco Pla and Angel Colmenares. Mr. Pla, who is a member of the Cuban Democratic Party, was elected to the House of Representatives at the recent election. Also among those present were the Counselor of the Embassy, Dr. Vincente Valdes Rodriguez and Senora de Rodriguez, who returned this week from their vacation.

Notes of Society

Mme. Martins was the guest in whose honor Mrs. Robert Karsner Stafford entertained at a luncheon at the Ritz-Carlton in New York on Tuesday. Others in the company were Mrs. S. Fullerton Weaver, Mrs. Chester Dale, and Mrs. N. Johnson Van Vleet. Mme. Martins' sculpture exhibition is still open at the Valentine Galleries.

From New Haven, Conn., has come word that Mrs. Samuel Clark, Jr., wife of the Assistant Attorney General, underwent an operation yesterday at the New Haven Hospital. Mr. Clark, who is in New Haven with his wife, reported her condition satisfactory yesterday afternoon.

Mme. Ricardo Alfaro will entertain at tea tomorrow afternoon in honor of Senora de Pastoriza, wife of the former Dominican Minister here.

Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby, newly appointed director of the W. A. C., will be the guest of honor when Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Meyer are at home on Sunday afternoon from 5 to 7 o'clock.

Mrs. Charles S. Baker of Washington is at the St. Regis Hotel in New York for a short stay.

Mrs. Randolph Huntington Miner will entertain at dinner this evening.

Mrs. Donald Jones has invited a few friends in for late tomorrow afternoon.

Some Place in War Effort Is Urged For Girls Between Ages of 14 and 16

MOTHER HAS her first-aid and nutrition classes. Dad dashes out in his air-raid warden's uniform to a meeting. Even teen-age brother does his bit for the war by serving as a messenger. But the young daughter of the house between 14 and 16 years of age can find no place in the war program. So declared Capt. Rhoda Milliken, chief of the Women's Bureau, Metropolitan Police, who was guest speaker at the twenty-ninth annual convention of the D. C. Congress of Parents and Teachers yesterday morning.

MRS. P. C. ELLETT

"Since the middle adolescents or young teen-agers have no way to blow off steam-war emotion," she said, "some special activity must be created as a substitute if these young girls are to be kept out of trouble."

Captain Milliken challenged the members of the P.-T. A. organizations to provide special activities for girls 14 to 16 years of age.

"The P.-T. A. is one organization that holds this responsibility," she asserted, "and should have the information needed to enable it to begin work immediately."

Also, she pointed out that a very definite and decided effort should be made to provide normal recreational opportunities for the thousands of young girls pouring into Washington. "Unless the vast majority of girls in this city are given normal entertainment," said Captain Milliken, "you can expect many tragedies. These girls need more than work in a typist pool to keep them wholesome."

Dr. Charles Schottland, assistant to the chief of the United States Children's Bureau, another speaker on the convention program, discussed the "Day Care of Children."

"The most important thing in caring for children," he said, "is to maintain the services already functioning. If these services break down during the war the children who are expected to pick up the pieces and to carry on in the postwar era won't be able to rebuild."

Stressing the point that he didn't minimize women's war effort outside the home, Dr. Schottland said that unless a woman had definite and special talents to contribute, he felt she could contribute more by remaining in the home.

"Any mother would be doing the most patriotic thing she could possibly do if she remained in her home and cared for it and the children," he said, "unless she has some great talent to contribute to the war effort."

Mrs. P. C. Ellett, president of the D. C. Congress of Parents and Teachers, presided and introduced the speakers. Following the two speeches several resolutions were passed and officers were elected. Mrs. N. H. Stull was reelected second vice president and Mrs. B. W. Costenbader fourth vice president. New officers named include Mrs. Clinton Ward, Mrs. Lucian Jordan, Mrs. Florence H. Rogers, principal of the Sixth School District, and Mrs. Y. D. Mathes, third, fifth, sixth and seventh vice presidents, respectively.

At the same time Mrs. Donald Warren was elected secretary, Mrs. Roderick Moss treasurer, Mrs. Charles B. Sinclair assistant treasurer and Mrs. Hildegard Davenport, historian.

Women to Fete Mrs. Roosevelt

Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt will be the guest of honor at a tea, 3 to 5 o'clock, to be given by the Democratic Women's National Council on Saturday, Hotel 2400.

One hundred young women war workers who have recently come to Washington have been chosen at random as a representative group to be guests of the Council and to meet Mrs. Roosevelt. This is the first of a series of social events the council is planning to entertain young women Government workers.

Mrs. Hammond Is Installed

MRS. JAMES M. HAMMOND

Mrs. James M. Hammond was installed as president of the Woman's Club of Bethesda following her election to that office Tuesday. The retiring president, Mrs. F. P. Farley, turned over the gavel to the new president immediately after the installation.

Other officers named and installed at the same time were: Mrs. F. P. Di Blasi, first vice president; Mrs. Harry J. Pirie, second vice president; Mrs. John Parkinson, recording secretary; Mrs. George T. Condon, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Melvin Riley, treasurer; Mrs. Frank A. Bennett, parliamentarian; Mrs. W. Ernest O'Neil, historian.

Mrs. Frank P. Farley was elected director to the County Federation. Those named to the board of directors include: Mrs. E. Percival Wilson, Mrs. C. Eugene Doyle and Mrs. K. C. Kayhoe.

As a token of appreciation for her two years of leadership Mrs. Farley, the outgoing president, was presented with a crystal console set.

Belle Haven Club Holds Flower Show

The fifth annual flower show of the Garden Section of the Belle Haven Women's Club was held last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carter Page.

The theme of the show was Pan-Americanism and the inter-club class in which a dozen garden clubs competed featured an arrangement for a hall table in red, white and blue. Also, there was a class for a flower arrangement in Pan-American colors.

Mrs. Henry Davenport, president of the Garden Section, was chairman of the show, and the program was arranged by Mrs. James Dawson. Mrs. Frederick Northrop was in charge of staging, and Mrs. Delaney Waring and Mrs. A. S. McLeod arranged for a luncheon to precede the show at the Belle Haven Country Club for the members of the Garden Section and the judges.

Women Shoppers Will Give Gay Fiesta This Saturday

PUT ON your gayest dress and happiest smile! Saturday afternoon is fiesta time for the Washington League of Women Shoppers. The event will feature Latin-American songs, dances and costumes. Senorita Nalda del Prado, bedecked in native costume, will give a variety of Bolivian dances. Valencia and Ariel will sing many South American tunes to accompaniment of guitars. Even strolling flower vendors will be on hand to give the party an authentic south of the border atmosphere.

Five o'clock is the time set for the gala party and the place is Mrs. Michael Straus' home (on the lawn), Linnean Hill, Rock Creek Park. The fiesta is the league's annual benefit affair to raise funds to support its active program in behalf of labor and consumer standards. Tickets may be purchased from any member of the ticket committee which includes Mrs. M. Chandler Redman, chairman; Mrs. Richard Bock, Mrs. Charles Clift, Mrs. Walter Salant, Mrs. William Hoag, Mrs. Nathan Halpern and Mrs. Walter Surrey.

Among the patronesses of the league's fiesta are Mrs. Raymond Clapper, Mrs. Charles Collier, Mrs. Pierre Cot, Mrs. Clifford Durr, Mrs. Robert Horton, Mrs. James Le Cron, Mrs. Howell Moorhead, Mrs. Milo Perkins, Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, Dr. Louise

Stanley and Miss Mary Taylor. Representatives of the Latin-American diplomatic corps will be among the honored guests. Officers of the Washington League are Cynthia Wentworth Manum, president; Mrs. Clifford Durr, vice president; Mrs. Charles Horsky, recording secretary; Mrs. Edward Epstein, executive secretary, and Mrs. Walter Surrey, treasurer.

The Washington League of Women Shoppers recently went on record as endorsing the three-point program to support President Roosevelt's seven-point proposal to Congress. The national organization first adopted the program then recommended it to the various branches throughout the country.

Pledge Party Set Saturday

Beta Chapter of Phi Delta Delta Women's Legal Fraternity will have its annual pledge party on Saturday, 5:30 o'clock, at the Georgetown home of the chairman of arrangements, Mrs. Julia Benton Hopkins. Assisting Mrs. Hopkins on the committee are Mrs. Dorothy G. Samuel, Mrs. Marie R. Murray, Mrs. Nadine Lane Gallagher and Miss Marie Doyle. A buffet supper will be served in the garden.

Maj. Streater, Hero of World War I, Dies

Funeral services for Maj. Wallace Streater, 73, World War veteran and holder of the Purple Heart, who died Tuesday at Mount Alto Hospital after a brief illness, will be held today at 11 a. m. in the Christ Episcopal Church, Thirty-first and O Streets Northwest. The Rev. Peyton R. Williams will officiate. Burial with military honors will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Born in Barbour County, Ala., the son of a Confederate soldier, Maj. Streater came to Washington as a young man and was graduated from Georgetown University Law School in 1884. He later practiced before the District Bar, Court of Claims and Supreme Court.

In the last war he enlisted in the old Washington Light Infantry, National Guard, and when America entered the conflict he was commissioned a major of Infantry and detailed to serve in the Inspector General's Department.

Major Streater left for France in October, 1917, and received two citations, one from General Pershing for "exceptionally meritorious and conspicuous service" before being awarded the Purple Heart.

He left the Army in 1921 and entered the office of the Solicitor of the Internal Revenue as an attorney. He retired three years ago. He lived at 1637 Thirty-first Street Northwest.

Most active in civic affairs, Major Streater was a member of the Georgetown Citizens Association, past master of Washington Centennial Lodge, No. 14, F. A. A. M.; past grand patron of the Order of the Eastern Star of D. C., Mount Vernon Chapter No. 3, R. A. M.; Columbia Commandery No. 2, Knights Templars; Elther Chapter, No. 5, O. E. S.; Sigma Pi Fraternity, George Washington Post, No. 1, American Legion; National Capital Post, No. 127, Veterans of Foreign Wars; Military Order of the World War, National Sojourners, the Heroes of '78, Washington Camp, No. 308, S. L. V.; National Geographic Society, Monday Evening Club, the Army and Navy Club, a director of the Citizens Bank of Takoma Park, and a director of the Masonic and Eastern Star Home, Paris Post, No. 1, the American Legion. He also held membership in the American and the Federal Bar Associations.

He leaves his wife, Julia N. Streater, and a sister, Mrs. Annie J. Steward, of Corsicana, Tex.

Mrs. Roosevelt Is Bothered By Conscience on Rationing

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt revealed yesterday she is having all sorts of trouble trying to get herself and her conscience to work in harmony on the rationing situation.

"I and myself doing things my conscience will not let me do," she declared at her press conference. "Yesterday, for instance, I found myself riding to lunch in a White House car."

"Next time, if it's my own lunch, I either will walk or take a street-car. If it is a lunch I am attending as wife of the President, I will use the official car."

The inner rationing struggle extends also to speech making, the First Lady admitted. She does not think she should be taking up room in planes or Pullmans to make any speech not directly tied in with the war effort, and is inclined to doubt whether any of her speeches "make a pin's difference."

Mechanics of operation on her new schedule will be hard to learn, said the Nation's busiest woman, because she is so accustomed to covering the country. But she is determined to get it worked out in a manner acceptable to her conscience, she declared.

Mrs. Roosevelt declared she "naturally" is opposed to the idea of a joint tax return by husband and wife, but that Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau has told her the plan will bring in more money from high-income sources and that "this is something we all must think about." However, she asked for specific figures and will analyze them before making up her mind definitely about it, she said.

She expressed the opinion that many of the jobs to be undertaken by the women's Army Auxiliary Corps could be done by older women "between 40 and 50" and said she believed some of the younger girls might be able to serve their country better by going into factories. "I hope the WAAC will have all ages in it and not be made up of just young girls," she said.

Sugar Ration Raised for Home Canning and Preserving

By the Associated Press

Sugar allotments for home canning were liberalized last night. Under a new regulation, home canners will be entitled to 1 pound of sugar for every four quarters of canned fruit, and an additional pound of sugar for each member of the family to make jams, jellies, preserves and fruit butters.

Previous regulations restricted each sugar ration cardholder to 5 pounds for home canning. If this amount has already been used in putting up early fruits and berries, it must be computed in any new canning allotment.

The liberalization was made, Price Administrator Leon Henderson said, to conserve fruit which might otherwise be wasted and to supplement commercially canned supplies, thereby reducing the burden on transportation facilities.

The much smaller allotment for jams and preserves was deliberately figured, OPA said, to encourage home canning instead of preserving, because the amount of sugar required is less in canning than in jam-making or preserving. Henderson urged consumers to apply only for the minimum amount needed immediately.

The present regulations place a great deal of responsibility upon individual citizens on whose integrity and good faith I am certain we can depend," he declared.

Applications for home-canning supplies may be made upon special forms obtainable from local ration boards at times and places to be announced later. Applicants must give the names of all consumers on whose behalf applications are filed, the numbers of their ration books, the number of quarts of fruit packed last year, the amount of fruit now in their possession and the number of quarts they intend to can.

4-H Council Feels Gas, Tire Shortage

Curtalement of the program, for the near future at least, of the Montgomery County Senior 4-H Council because of the gasoline and tire shortage, was indicated at a meeting in the high school auditorium at Damascus Tuesday night. The matter was discussed at considerable length and it was decided to refer the problem to Miss Edythe M. Turner, home demonstration agent; Rufus King, assistant county agricultural agent, and the officers of the council. The meeting was followed by a social.

What's Behind Today's News, and What's to be Expected in Tomorrow's Victory Drive

Washington is now determined to go all-out to "win" the war this summer, not necessarily by continental invasion but by stopping the German offensive. Military men subscribe fully to the theory that Germany must win the war in the end. The summer or lose the war, but production beginning to reach staggering totals. This fruit of this production must be put to use where it will do the most good. In a few months—to the European front—where it will require every available man, vessel, and ton of material. Even supplies of the Pacific will be needed. The Pacific will be needed. The Pacific will be needed.

Spanish Showdown?
The most authoritative information indicates an early showdown in Spain between General Franco and Serrano Suñer. The pro-Axis Foreign Minister has lately become much more insistent on closer ties with Germany, but Franco has remained adamant, feeling sure the public would not support such a move. Suñer, of course, has had the support of both Rome and Berlin, and recently he made a mysterious night trip to the French frontier for a conference which still has Franco guessing. The Generalissimo, however, has not been idle. His quiet diplomatic soundings in both London and Washington have borne fruit. Arrangements are already being made for expanded commercial relations between the Allies and Spain. With this ace up his sleeve, Franco is more confident of his ability to resist Axis pressure.

National Notes
The gasoline shortage in the temporarily so acute that it is forcing the rationed areas to turn to the use of kerosene. This data, when added to the already elaborate blueprints of German industrial plants, proved a valuable hint to the bombing program.

Trends Abroad
Because Antonov's in the Kerch offensive pressing the U.S. to a decision... Chinese... have to end and how to China after the war... 50% rise in the price of wheat...

4 BOB: "SA-A-YI! YOU HAVE got something here! Periscope certainly does give the low-down on what's coming up!" (N.B. Looks at GHQ of War Production

DRAFT DEFERMENT is badly confused, though it may soon be cleared up somewhat through definite instructions to Selective Service Boards on what to consider in classifying and reclassifying registrants.

THE MANPOWER COMMISSION has grabbed the ball from Selective Service. Its idea, to protect war industries, is to work out a code for the guidance of draft boards and thus eliminate the wide disparity in decisions.

THE PLAN is to get what would amount to group deferments for men in transportation, shipbuilding, mining, and perhaps other industries, by instructing draft boards to consider the necessity for such workers. This would sidestep the present legal ban on blanket deferments.

FEDERAL AGENCIES may try to slip government workers into some such classification, but they are likely to lose their case.

GOVERNMENT people hear that it is possible to buy anything from scarce copper to machine tools if the right connections are made.

THE WAR TIMETABLE, as seen by Democratic congressmen: Victory by spring of 1944. They see some chance for ending the war by the fall of 1943 but believe the later date will be closer.

AS A TRANSPORTATION SOLUTION, a recommendation that land and sea cargo movements be coordinated under a single head has been placed before the President by his advisers.

THE PRESIDENT has been called upon to decide the battle between the Maritime Commission and the WPB over steel—whether production of munitions will be cut down still more to provide steel for merchant ships.

CELEBRITY PRICES: The first week of price ceilings on wholesale and manufacturers' goods brought a curious development: cloak and suit men doing business with no prices at all. They refused to put markings on fall goods, pending clarification of their position through a supplemental order.

ARMY PRODDING is getting more out of workmen than that of management in some cases. When a military man stationed in a war plant pleads for a group to quit installing and get production rolling, it frequently has more effect than a similar command from the boss.

COMPULSORY SAVINGS are out the window for the time being. Democratic leaders don't want to argue the point until after the November elections and until Morgenthau's voluntary bond sales plan has been put to a test.

5 THE INSPIRED ACCURACY OF PERISCOPE is convincing more and more policy-making executives that they cannot afford to miss these forecasts. So Periscope amplifies its forecasts of Washington developments with an extra page forecasting vital events in the G. H. Q. of War Production. And Periscope is but one of NEWSWEEK's exciting improvements in news-weekly journalism. From cover to cover, you'll find that NEWSWEEK is different... dynamic... alive! That's why more than 500,000 influential American families now turn to NEWSWEEK for authoritative and stimulating knowledge of what's up and what's coming up! A WELL-INFORMED PUBLIC IS AMERICA'S GREATEST SECURITY

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Klutzz

Officials indicated that an attempt would be made to keep the hours uniform among all departments but they admitted that it might become necessary to have some divisions and bureaus within the departments work longer "official" hours.

The official hours, for example, of the War Production Board may be fixed at 48 hours with the exception of the mimeographing section which could be set at 54 "official" hours.

Thousands Have Quilt

The bill would solve the problem of higher living costs for the Federal workers. In his anti-inflation speech, the President pointed out that the cost of living had gone up 15 per cent since the autumn of 1933. The base pay of Federal workers has not been changed since 1929. Personnel officials report thousands of employees have quit Federal jobs for better-paying jobs in industry.

Senator Mead (Democrat) of New York, who is expected to handle the bill in the Senate, said yesterday that a "great many" employees on Capitol Hill had quit recently for better jobs.

The overtime proposal would not touch the basic Federal pay rates. Overtime would be eliminated after the war and the Government would go back to its standard 39-hour week.

Million Already Get Extra Pay

It is not generally realized, but at the moment more than a million Federal workers are paid overtime after 40 hours. It is estimated that there are now two million civilian employees and those that are paid overtime outnumber those who are not. The bill would eliminate this inequity.

The vast majority of employees paid overtime are in the Navy yards and Army arsenals and the Postal Service. However, time and a half is paid to Navy yard and Army arsenal employees, while 200,000 postal employees are paid only straight time.

Stenographers, clerks and other clerical workers at the Washington Navy Yard are paid time and a half. But employees performing the same type of work at the Navy Department must work 48 hours and they are not paid extra for it.

The Navy Department here pays its architects, engineers, and even radio-print operators time and a half after 40 hours. Employees doing the same type of work in other departments have cannot be paid for overtime. Even clerical help working with high-paid professional and technical employees at the Navy Department cannot be paid extra though they are required to work overtime. The Navy pays nearly 3000 of its employees here for overtime. The remaining 13,000 must work overtime at no additional compensation. That is the law passed by Congress.

War and Navy Back Plan

War and Navy Departments pay tens of thousands of their clerical employees in the field time and a half after 40 hours. At the Washington Navy Yard, where the cost of living is among the highest in the Nation, only a relatively few low-paid workers get time and a half. That is the law. Incidentally, both the War and Navy are behind the President's plan. The present system has created bad feeling among employees.

The $3800 limit would benefit the large number of Federal workers who are not now covered by time and a half provisions. A survey made in 1937 by the Civil Service Commission revealed that 94.7 of all Federal employees made below $3800.

However, the $3800 limit is so arranged in the bill to prevent any employee from drawing over that figure, base pay plus overtime. For example, an employee paid $3600 base pay would be entitled to draw only $200 in overtime.

Actually, the Federal worker would be paid slightly less than time and a half. The rate of pay would be computed on the basis of 1-3600th of the annual rate of pay and one hour's pay on the basis of one-eighth of the daily rate.

Examples Given
For example, a $1440 employee who works a 44-hour week would receive $3 overtime pay each week, or $156 a year. On a 48-hour week, the $1440 clerk would get $6 additional per week.

Officials explained that the Administration would continue to support pending legislation which would raise salaries of the custodial employees. A bill has been pending for several months and it is possible that it will be incorporated in the overtime proposal.

Harry B. Mitchell, president of the Civil Service Commission, sent copies of the President's overtime plan to Vice President Wallace and Speaker Rayburn. Also receiving copies were Chairman Robert Hannan of the House Civil Service Committee, who is expected to handle the bill in the House, and Senator Mead.

Church Group Gives Plaque To Col. Tufts

By Robert Tate Allan

Post Church Editor

Colonel William O. Tufts, manager of the local branch of Rand McNally & Co. map-makers, and prominent religious and civic leader, last night was given the Federation of Churches' annual plaque for outstanding layman's service to the community.

The presentation was a highlight of the annual Federation dinner at Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church, Chevy Chase Circle.

The Rev. Dr. Oscar F. Blackwelder, pastor of Reformation Lutheran Church, was selected president. Named as vice president, the Rev. Dr. John W. Rustin, pastor of Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, the Rev. Dr. Peter Marshall, pastor of New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, the Rev. Earl L. Harrison, of Shiloh Baptist Church, and Wilson Compton, District businessman.

J. Lloyd Black, director of the Church Council of Metropolitan Washington, was chosen recording secretary; Norrie M. Little, treasurer; and Mrs. Guy Withers, assistant treasurer.

Pastor Presents Plaque

The plaque was presented to Colonel Tufts by the Rev. Dr. Fred S. Buschmeyer, chairman of the award committee and pastor of Mount Pleasant Congregational Church, of which Colonel Tufts is board chairman.

Citing Colonel Tufts for rendering "Herculean service" to the Washington community for 40 years, Dr. Buschmeyer recalled that he had helped organize the Goodwill Industries, the Community Chest and the Chinese Community Church, and was president of the Federation of Churches from 1932 to 1934, depression years when the federation was having a hard financial struggle.

Briefly responding to the tribute, Colonel Tufts said his work in the Community Chest had shown him that the value of such an enterprise was not to be measured in dollars and cents, but in the human values of people of all races and creeds "rubbing shoulders" for community betterment. Colonel Tufts is chairman of the Chest budget committee.

Committee Heads Named

Committee chairmen selected for the ensuing year were the Rev. Dr. S. Paul Schilling, bases for just and durable peace; Wilbur LaRoe, Jr., civic affairs; the Rev. Dr. Horace E. Cromer, commission on surveys and planning; E. T. Steel, conscientious objectors; Coleman Jennings and Thomas R. Wilson, defense commission; Walter W. Britt, finance; Mrs. Gould Wickey, house, and Dudley N. Carpenter, laymen's missionary.

The Rev. Charles Enders, membership; the Rev. Dr. Edward H. Pruden, public meetings; Henry L. Swinburn, public relations; the Rev. Dr. H. B. Taylor, race relations; Stanley Bell, radio; the Rev. Robert K. Nevitt, religious education; the Rev. F. Bland Tucker, social welfare; the Rev. Dr. Fred S. Buschmeyer, student committee, and the Rev. Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, world council of churches.

To continue in office, while John J. Conley of Ft. Worth, Texas, gathered 1163.

Voting for delegates to the I. T. U. was close, with James A. Leek of The Post receiving 1188 ballots, nosing out James J. O'Connor of the Star, with 959. From the book and club section of the local, Dan H. Stone, with 1230, defeated Leslie P. Cox, Jr., who received 987 ballots.

Delegates to the International body from the Government Printing Office were voted upon as follows: Ray P. Homan, 1364; Morris C. Bishop, 1138; John H. Evans, 986, and Marion P. Brewington, 960.

Is Your Sweet Tooth Aching? Ration Board Can Help Now

Anyone who has had to go sugarless for the past 10 days because he did not get his rationing card on time can indulge his sweet-tooth as soon after 9 o'clock this morning as he can get to one of the rationing boards and get his card.

District OPA Administrator Whitney Leary announced last night that the rationing administrative boards will be open every week day from 9 to 5:30 and there's no deadline this time. It just depends on when one wants his sugar privileges to begin as to when he will register for it.

The boards where these cards may now be obtained are:

Senate Votes 43 Million for D. C. Housing

Most of House's Slash Is Restored To Appropriation Under Lanham Act

The Senate yesterday passed by unanimous consent an appropriation of 43 million dollars for war housing and public works in the District of Columbia—an increase of $13,500,000 over the sum voted by the House.

Passage of the bill, just as it was reported by the Committee on Appropriations Tuesday, required only five minutes after its consideration was moved late in the day by Senator McKellar (Democrat), of Tennessee.

Incorporating two amendments to the House-approved measure, it is now scheduled to go to joint conference for settlement of the differences between the two versions. Principal change in the bill as passed by the Senate is the restoration of $13,500,000. The extra funds are for the construction of 3000 family dwelling units for war workers.

Housing Need Stressed

The restored money brings the total housing appropriation to $25,900,000, the Senate concurring in a House authorization of 12 million with which to erect dormitory units for single workers. Balance of the appropriation is made up of $17,500,000 fund for construction of community facilities such as schools, sewers, hospitals, waterworks and streets.

In a second and minor amendment to the House version of the bill, the Senate struck out a provision calling for extra salary payment to an Army engineer who is to be assigned to the Federal Works Agency to aid in the public works program.

183,000 Coming Here

He pointed out in his report that housing officials had told his committee that 68 per cent of the need for new living quarters was to be supplied by private builders, already erected buildings, or public housing for which funds had already been granted. Homes for an estimated influx of 183,000 workers by the end of this year are needed, his committee was told.

Of the remaining needed accommodations, he said, totaling 15,000 units for single persons and 10,000 for families, all but 7000 family dwellings would be taken care of under the now approved bill.

In response to a query by Senator Barkley (Democrat) of Kentucky, McKellar asserted that his group would be open to requests for more money should the voted amount prove insufficient to meet the strain on the city's housing facilities.

The Senate version of the bill is still seven million dollars under the total of 50 million authorized by the Lanham Act amendment, which gave original authorization for emergency housing work in the Nation's Capital.

Palestine Jews Called Bulwark Of Democracy in Near East

Henry Monks, national president of B'nai B'rith, told a gathering of volunteer workers last night at Woodmont Country Club that the 550,000 Jews in Palestine stand as a bulwark of democracy in the Near East.

Monks' address marked the opening of the United Jewish Appeal campaign which officially gets under way June 1.

He pointed out that one of the greatest problems facing the committee is the feeding of 600,000 Polish Jews now living in Russia. Most of the money raised will be devoted to the overseas relief work of the joint distribution committee. The United Palestine Appeal and the National Refugee Service will also receive a large percentage of the total raised.

The remainder will be divided among the Hadassah organization for hospital work in Palestine; the Jewish Social Service Agency in Washington; the Jewish Welfare Board; the B'nai B'rith for special activities; the Hebrew University of

Bolt Kills 2, Injures 17 At Lorton

Two Guards Among Men Hurt as Barn at Jail Is Struck, Wall Ripped Down

Two prisoners were killed and 15 others and two guards were injured yesterday when a bolt of lightning struck a barn on the Lorton Reformatory grounds in which the men had taken refuge during a thunderstorm.

The dead men are George Adams, 18, of 491 K Street Southwest, and James Johnson, 18, of 28 K Street Northeast, both serving short sentences. Dr. Frank Klune, prison physician, and volunteers administering artificial respiration to the men for three hours. Fifty-one other prisoners were shocked but otherwise escaped injury when the bolt ripped through the barn.

C. O. Botkin, superintendent, said the two guards injured are brothers—named Carney.

Assistance to the injured men was delayed because the telephone lines were down at Lorton all day yesterday. District Welfare Director Conrad Van Hyning asserted that target practice at nearby Fort Belvoir was responsible for severing the communications, as it had been several times in the past.

District Penal Supt. Ray Huff, who drove 8 miles to a telephone to report the accident, did not know the name of the injured guard nor of a construction engineer who saw the lightning strike the barn and ran over to give assistance.

Physician Found

A Dr. King, whom Van Hyning understood to be with the Post Food Administration, was in the neighborhood and helped the Lorton doctor give treatment to the men. The guard was removed to his home, but the two prisoners were treated in the barn.

Van Hyning said that the lack of telephonic communication had been a matter of grave concern for some time, but that nothing could be done about it. The telephone company has been requested several times to install service that would leave no chance for the reformatory to be cut off from the world as it now is, but pressing war demands and the scarcity of equipment have made this impossible.

Two-way radios to keep the institutions in touch with the metropolitan police were requested in the first Blackout Fund, but to date these have not yet been delivered.

A. T. & T. Votes Regular $2.25 Disbursement

New York, May 20.—The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. continued today, in the face of rising taxes and dropping income, its policy of two decades—dividends at the annual rate of $2 a share to its 635,000 owners.

The announcement: "Directors declared the regular quarterly dividend of $2.25," broke tension in financial circles, heightened yesterday when another of "Tel's" subsidiaries cut its payment to the parent company.

"Telephone has done it again," Wall Streeters said and bid the shares up more than $3 within a few minutes and kept bidding, more than wiping out the previous day's losses.

Elsewhere, in the homes of the women who own 42 per cent of the stock of Bell System employees who in some cases have their life savings invested with their mammoth employer, and in the offices of trustees who hold shares for others, there were similar signs of relief.

For the average stockholder has been able to count since 1922 on an income of $261 a year from the 29 shares he owns. The grand total is $42,000,000.

These little stockholders make the world's biggest public utility also the most widely owned.

The directors' decision today meant around $42 million dollars would be distributed on July 15 to stockholders of record as of June 15.

Telephone's dividend record, company officials had warned, was threatened by taxes that Keith S. McHugh, a vice president, said would reduce earnings on the stock to the lowest point in the entire history of the company.

The worst year of the recent depression.

It was figured that tax increases the Treasury proposed would cut earnings per share more than $4. For comparison, the company's 1941 consolidated net profits were $10.26 a share against $11.26 in 1940.

$2.66 a Share Earned

For the first quarter of the year, despite reductions in the payments to A. T. & T. from subsidiary companies, earnings were more than equal to the dividend requirement at $2.66 a share.

Few companies have established dividend records like Telephone's.

And as other businesses felt the pinch of taxes, studied new tax proposals and ordered dividend cuts, late in 1941 and early this year, there were predictions that Telephone would reduce.

For President Walter S. Gifford pointed out, the current situation was unlike that of the depression when the dividend was cut.

In those days the big communications system had surplus funds, idle equipment which it could look forward to using as business improved and more people asked for telephones.

Now the Bell System has a heavy volume of business leaving little room for expansion of gross income. So any tax increases would tend to cut into the amount available to shareholders.

Many Firms Vote Dividend Cuts

Directors of the National Biscuit Co. have declared a dividend of 30 cents a share on the capital stock, payable July 15 to stockholders of record June 15. Previously 40 cents a share was paid quarterly.

Directors of Pennsylvania-Dixie Cement Co. declared a dividend of 50 cents a share on the preferred stock on account of arrears, payable June 15 to stock of record May 29. The previous payment was 75 cents on March 15.

Directors of the American Cigarette & Cigar Co. reduced the dividend by 50 cents a share with the declaration of $1.50 on the common, payable June 15 to stock of record May 29. The last payment was $2 a share on March 14. On June 13, 1941, $2.25 a share was ordered.

New York Cotton

New York, May 20 (AP)—Cotton futures fell 20 to 25 cents a bale today, recovering near the close from heavy early declines which at one time forced prices down as much as 85 cents a bale.

Liquidation, observers said, stemmed from uncertainty over the international situation and some apprehension over what would be done on farm legislation and Government sales of commodities.

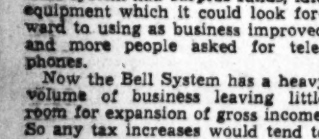

Commission houses and brokers with New Orleans connections were said to have placed more of their cotton in the hands of the market, covering tenders to ease part of the losses.

Good Americans Save Because...

The Outlook Newspapers and Better Business Bureaus Cooperate to Curb Buying Stampedes

New York, May 20.—The "every-man-for-himself" impulse is being controlled in various ways—particularly by rationing and priorities—but one of the most effective controls never is seen. And for this reason:

Merchants and newspapers refrain from "scare" advertisements advising the public to stock up on a certain item because there might be a shortage.

In this they are cooperating with Government to prevent buying stampedes that might create real shortages in items whose production has been limited or eliminated by the war.

Quiet, behind-the-scenes support is given the Government's effort by the National Better Business Bureaus, entirely supported by business, policing the field to prevent chiseling or cheating.

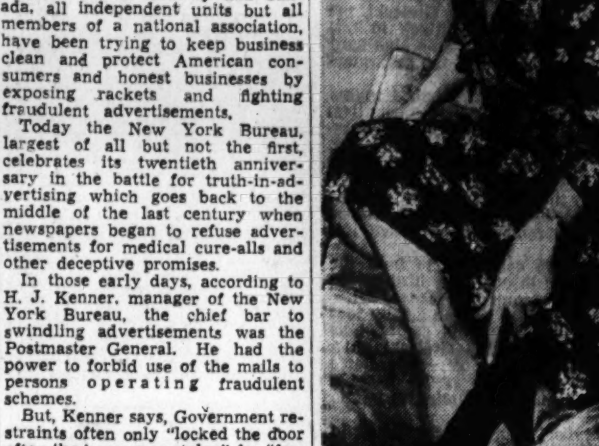

For years the 80 Better Business Bureaus in this country and Canada, all independent units but all members of a national association, have been trying to keep business clean and protect American consumers and honest businesses by exposing rackets and fighting fraudulent advertisements.

Today the New York Bureau, largest of all but not the first, celebrates its twentieth anniversary in the battle for truth-in-advertising which goes back to the middle of the last century when newspapers began to refuse advertisements for medical cure-alls and other deceptive promises.

In those early days, according to H. J. Kenner, manager of the New York Bureau, the chief bar to swindling advertisements was the Postmaster General. He had the power to forbid use of the mails to persons operating fraudulent schemes.

But, Kenner says, Government restrictions only "looked" the danger after the horse was stolen for "frequently, when denied use of the mails under one name and at one address, the swindlers took another business name, moved to a new address and continued to snare victims."

MRS. BRUCE BAIRD, wife of the president of the National Savings & Trust Co. of Washington, demonstrates how to stop a run—in silk hose. She embroilers a design with colored thread on the hose "to go with the run," thereby halting the run. In this case, the design is a curving "Y"

Auto Dealers Fail to Reach Sales Quota

Detroit, May 20.—Pressing for sales in the new-car market with its sharply restricted customer prospects, the National Retail Automobile Dealers have cut modestly into the stocks of new vehicles that have been on their hands since last February.

They have not maintained an average of deliveries to eligible buyers under the rationing program that will move the full quota of 140,000 units by the end of the present month. The upturn, particularly in arms plants areas, since the last relaxation of rationing rules, however, has aided the retailers materially.

When deliveries began on March 2, after two months of no sales activity in new cars, the nearly half a million vehicles in dealers' possession were apportioned so that something like 350,000 might be sold during 1942 while the remainder were placed in what has come to be called the "deep freeze" pool. These were set aside for the limited number of government agencies in 1943.

Recent legislation that permits retail dealers to borrow money on their stocks of unsold cars has been a godsend for the dealers, although some further mortality among the sales outlets is expected before the year-end. Up until about May 1 dealer liquidations have averaged about 10 per cent of the total in business a year ago.

One authority this week expressed the belief the situation respecting the dealer organizations probably would be somewhat "spotty" with those doing business in the arms factory areas in better position to carry on. Typical of the viewpoint is the dealer situation in the Detroit area where new cars have been moving quite rapidly during the last few weeks. It is interesting at the same time that dealer liquidations have averaged about 10 per cent of the total in business a year ago.

Scared by Rumors

"They were scared out by the talk of Government requisitioning or other prospects of use restrictions," a trade authority suggested.

The actualities of the rationing program still is being widely debated in industry circles. The retailers almost unanimously maintain it has accomplished nothing that could not have been brought about automatically by the limiting of tire replacement and control of gasoline consumption. Other sources, however, say that if new car stocks had been "frozen" promptly and sales controlled, there might not now be any reserve stocks on hand.

Wall Street Spurt in A. T. & T. Is Bright Spot As Steel Issues Lead Market Lower

New York, May 20.—American Telephone put a little sunshine in an otherwise drab stock market today, pushing up 3 1/4 points on the company's announcement of the usual quarterly dividend of $2.25 a share.

To many in Wall Street the dividend declaration by the big communications company was unexpected good news. For many weeks there has been much talk that mounting taxes might force a cut in the $2 annual rate paid the last 20 years.

But far from following Telephone this market generally moved in step with the steel which was the defensive throughout. Losses in U. S. Steel, Bethlehem and Youngstown Sheet ran to a point or more and altered new low ground for a year or longer.

In rubbers, aircrafts, farm equipments, copper, rails and industrial specialties moderate declines were the rule. Motors and merchandising stocks held up well and Dupont added 2 points.

Vulnerability of the war stocks was associated by some brokers with a recent shift in ideas as to how long war would last. In this connection Wall Street displayed keen interest in Secretary of State Hull's press conference comment that he saw some grounds for hope that victory for the United Nations might come sooner than had been expected earlier this year.

The Associated Press 60-stock average recorded a net decline of .1 of a point at 33.8. The rail composite was down .3 of a point.

Transactions were the largest in nearly a month at 405,460 shares against 376,780 Tuesday.

Among stocks dipping fractions to a point or so were United Aircraft, Douglas, Sperry, U. S. Corp., Eastman Kodak, Anaconda,

Woolworth Halts Expansion Plans Because of War

Waterbury, N. Y., May 20 (AP)—Officials of F. W. Woolworth Co. are confident of obtaining merchandise as long as any remains to be had and are reasonably optimistic regarding the outlook for sales, E. C. Mauchly, vice president, said today at the annual meeting.

The improvement and expansion program begun several years ago is practically at a standstill because of the war, Mauchly said, adding that thus far in 1942 only four stores had been opened.

Mauchly reported that the volume of sales in the United States, Canada and Cuba for the first four months of the year totaled $119,213,051, an increase of 17.33 per cent over last year.

After nearly two hours delay due to the activities of hecklers, the directors, representing one-third of the board, were elected for three-year terms:

C. Samuel Chamberlain, Charles W. D. E. Mauchly, G. F. Terpening, all of New York City; Lewis H. Gause, Cleveland; Clifford O. Gilbert, Ivan W. Keffer, Toronto, Ont., and Henry E. O'Neill, St. Louis.

The annual report for 1941 showed sales amounting to $37,148,050.27, as compared to $33,474,819.92 for the previous year, an increase of $3,673,230.35, the largest increase in any year in company history.

Contraseasonal Drop Reported In Power Output

New York, May 20 (AP)—Power production declined contraseasonally during the week ended May 16, the Edison Electric Institute reported today, although output was at the relatively high rate of 3,356,921,000 kilowatt-hours compared with a revised total of 3,365,208,000 the previous week.

In the comparable week a year ago energy distributed amounted to 3,311,345,000 kilowatt-hours.

Regional increases from 1941 were topped by the Pacific Coast's rise of 19.9 per cent and the Southern States' 16.7 per cent. New England showed a gain of 8.7 per cent, Mid-Atlantic 8.4 per cent, Central 8.2 per cent and Rocky Mountain 2.5 per cent.

"I told you I would send you a good hand," writes Mrs. Richard I. Morris, who fulfills her promise elegantly with a remarkable freak. "Last night, playing against Sherman Stearns, both vulnerable, he was East and the dealer," she continues. "He bid one club, holding this hand:

 ♥ AK88
 ♦ AQ54
 ♣ A62
 I am South and hold these cards
 ♠ AK1094
 ♥ None
 ♦ None
 ♣ KQJ109

"I bid five clubs, which Sherman doubles, and I make six. My partner's hand is important only because he has four small spades and the adverse spades break 2-2, making all mine good.

"My partner's hand is:

♦ KJ73

"I am quite sure that it is the first time I ever held a complete two-suiter," concludes Mrs. Morris.

Mrs. Morris's hand is outstanding not only because of its freakishness but because it was a win scored against Sherman Stearns, very possibly the finest rubber-bridge player in the Nation. It is a rare day when Stearns is caught by a double. Three aces, a king and a queen certainly look like enough to defeat five clubs, but then the price of sets, like everything else, is going up these days.
